THE PRIMARIES.

Taft came in a lame third in the race for Oregon's support for the republican presidential nomination.

"It is not a protest against the man, but a vote against his administration. Oregon accepts Mr. Taft as an amiable, well meaning gentleman, who lost his steering gear when he entered the White House," says the Portland Journal.

It is a surprising protest, the more astonishing coming as it does on the heels of La Follette's vigorous campaign in the state, a campaign in which the able Wisconsin orator divorced many votes from Roosevelt.

"If the primary had been held two weeks ago President Taft might, and probably would, have carried the state," is the post mortem opinion of the Portland Oregonian, which fought tooth and nail for Taft.

Not so: If the primary had come before LaFollette came, Roosevelt would have snuffed Taft under even more decisively than he did. It may be, as is averred, that a large democratic vote went to Roosevelt. However, the greater portion of any such vote which may have left the democratic camp, enrolled under LaFollette's banner, simply split up the advantage that would have been Roosevelt's alone if LaFollette had not been in the field, and which would have been much more Roosevelt's if LaFollette had not just campaigned locally.

The presidential results, in a nutshell, mean this: Taft is heartily disapproved of in Oregon, a sentiment which seems to be gaining remarkable headway throughout the West. The peculiar and unkillable popularity of Roosevelt with the voters has been demonstrated, doubly astonishing because so little extensive campaigning has been done for him in the state, so very much for Taft, and particularly because the "insurgent" vote was so ably disputed with him by LaFollette.

That Oregon's example will have a powerful effect in shaping political affairs up to, and into, the Republican convention, is undoubted.

That the presidential situation is tangled beyond belief, is equally undoubted. Without LaFollette, Roosevelt would win both nomination and election. Without Roosevelt, LaFollette would triumph at the convention and the polls. With both of them tenaciously fighting, and with next to no hope of an amalgamation of their interests being effected, Taft will get the nomination. And with Taft nominated, thousands of Republican votes which would support either Roosevelt or LaFollette will go to whichever one of the two exceptionally able Democrats is nominated—Wilson or Clark. And that may mean a disruption of the Republican party even more far-reaching than the turmoil of today.

Bourne's defeat by Selling may or may not be a good thing for the state. Undoubtedly Selling is an able, honest business man, and will be a creditable representative at Washington. That he may fall far short of Bourne in attainments is probable, for experience and the national prominence that Bourne has attained as a champion of people's government have placed him in a rarely happy position to accomplish results, had he been returned.

Selling was defeated in his own county, which may be simply a repetition of the honorless prophet—or it may have deeper significance. Certainly his election in the state at large is due to the lavish publicity work done on his behalf. It is also due to the small amount of cam-paing attempted by Bourne, and the nature of the backbone of that campaign. The one ultra-egotistical sentence in Bourne's propaganda stating that the people of Oregon, and not himself, were on trial, took countless votes away from him.

But the race is not run yet. One Harry Lane, of Multnomah county, has the Democratic nomination. Stranger things have happened than for a Democratic running mate to join Chamberlain at the capital.

AN ADVERTISING SERMON.

Hugh Chalmers, the famous Detroit automobile manufacturer and one of the leaders in American advertising, made the following pertinent remarks concerning publicity matters:

"In advertising, be honest, be sensible, be persistent.

"The newspaper of today is the best possible advertising medium.

"There are only two excuses—not reasons—for not advertising. They are: 'Because you have so much business you don't have to,' because you have so little you can't afford to."

"In either case it reminds me of the man with the blue goggles who winked at a beautiful woman he passed on the street; he knew he was winking, but no one else did.

"Be persistent in your advertising; the hardest thing to find today is yesterday's newspaper."

COL. ROOSEVELT SWEEPS STATE

Republican voters, with Senator La Follette a good second. President Taft was a bad third in the race, both in Portland and the state at large.

The race between Roosevelt and La Follette was spectacular, the early returns showing them running neck and neck. La Follette has a plurality in Portland and he made an exceptional showing in the counties covered in his recent speech-making tour. La Follette's recent speech in Portland, where he addressed an audience of 10,000 people, undoubtedly is responsible for the heavy vote given him.

Roosevelt ran strong in the rural districts. In the cattle country of eastern and southern Oregon he was an easy winner, with La Follette second. Through the thickly settled Willamette valley district Roosevelt also won with ease.

Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, was the choice of the Democratic voters for president, though Speaker Champ Clark received a substantial vote in many counties. Governor Harmon, of Ohio, received a very small vote and was not a factor in the race.

Woodrow Wilson did not have a walk-away in obtaining the Oregon preference for democratic nomination for president. While Multnomah county went strong for Governor Wilson several of the other counties gave Champ Clark heavy pluralities. The result is that on the face of the incomplete returns Governor Wilson is leading his opponent by less than 1000 votes in a total count of 12,410. This total probably represents two-thirds of the democratic votes cast in the state.

The figures available give the following: Wilson 6387, Clark 5433, Harmon 590. Wilson's plurality 964. In the vote for president on the republican ticket, President Taft apparently has carried six counties.

There is no certainty that La Follette has carried more than one county. Multnomah. Incomplete returns on Jackson county give him a slight lead over Roosevelt. La Follette also has a slight lead over Roosevelt in Josephine in the incomplete returns, and is close on the heels of Roosevelt in Tillamook.

Roosevelt, it seems probable, has carried all of the following counties: Baker, Benton, Clackamas, Clatsop, Columbia, Coos, Curry, Douglas, Gilliam, Grant, Hood River, Klamath, Lane, Lincoln, Malheur, Marion, Umatilla, Union, Wallowa, Wasco and Washington.

It will not be known who the republicans endorsed as candidate for vice-president until the official count has been made. The names of C. W. Fulton, Thomas McCusker, Dan Kelsner, United States Senator Borah, of Idaho, and numerous others were written on the ballots.

The names of Governor Burke, of North Dakota, and Senator Chamberlain were written in for vice-president and only the official count will show which received the greater number of votes.

FINE NEW ADDING MACHINE.

What is said to be the finest adding machine made, a Burroughs new model, costing $600, has been added to the equipment of the First National Bank. It has electrical attachment and is entirely automatic, and not only adds but subtracts and multiplies as well.
