WOODROW WILSON.

The Democratic sun is rising. That the country will bask beneath its rays for four years is almost a certainty. Whether or not the country will be benefited at the end of the quadruple bask remains to be seen.

But whatever the results of the probable political ascendancy of Democracy, the certain fact remains that in choosing Woodrow Wilson for its standard bearer the leaders of the Democratic party have picked by all odds the best qualified man available. Mr. Wilson enters the arena with no strings tied to him. Thanks to what he has done and left undone in the past, and because of incidents like the repudiation of "tainted" New York's support at the Baltimore convention, Wilson entirely lacks any politically damaging affiliation with "big business." While he may not be an entirely popular figure, Mr. Wilson certainly has the faith of the people—many may not agree with his doctrine, but few distrust his motives. Under the existing complex political situation, no Democratic candidate could reasonably expect a more hearty support in the ranks of the dissatisfied Republicans. His progressiveness quite takes the wind out of the sails of the holier-than-thou Roosevelt, while his sanity equally justifies the support of semi-standpat Republicans who may not be sufficiently enamored of Taft's record to care to back the President for another term of executive inertia and pledges weakly fulfilled if fulfilled at all. And, of course, Mr. Wilson will have the support of Democracy. All in all, every Democrat may be proud to vote for his candidate, and no Republican need feel aught but satisfaction if his personal judgment and personal dissatisfaction are sufficiently strong to outbalance that foolish mental straight-jacket called "party loyalty" and cause him to cast his ballot for Wilson—satisfaction because there is a candidate in the other party who merits such support.

In the primary election, Oregon has already expressed its dissatisfaction with the Taft administration. Both Roosevelt and La Follette outdistanced Taft, while Wilson led handily on the Democratic ticket. In the final election the anti-Taft verdict will be even more decisive, and unless we are gravely mistaken, the other branch of Republicanism with Roosevelt as its mainstay (if such a branch actually materializes) will also be swept to defeat before the Wilson tide.

The coming election is not a matter of parties. It is a matter of men. The situation is too involved to permit party affiliations to figure prominently in the results. Those who are satisfied with Taft—the "judicial" man of complacency—will vote for him. Those who admire Roosevelt—the man of boundless action, sane and insane—will cast their ballots for the Colonel. Those who want Wilson—the man of sound judgment, unimpeachable character and demonstrated ability—will, for once, become Democrats.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

"Seattle, July 1, 1912.
"Bend Bulletin.
"Bend, Oregon.
"Gentlemen: Will you kindly send me a copy of your paper. I am considering locating in Bend and wish to see your advertisements.
"Yours truly,
"(Signed) "JNO. G. ROLAND."

The Bulletin received the above letter last Friday; it is on file in this office. It is similar to scores of others that come in from people who are interested in Bend and want to become familiar with business conditions here. The point is that hundreds of people read the advertisements in The Bulletin just as carefully as they read the news text. If your ad is in the paper, it will be read not only by the people who will buy goods from you, but also by those who might become your competitors here. Small investments in advertising yield large returns.

At the fire Thursday a citizen saved a handful of papers of importance to himself and then retreated to a comfortable position out of range of fire, heat and water. Standing there, many people heard him remark: "I've got all I want out of it; let the other fellows save stuff if they wish—I don't mean to risk spoiling my clothes." The Bulletin feels sure that it echoes the sentiments of every worth-while citizen when it says that men of that calibre will do the town a lot more good by moving than by staying here.

Bend had three days of Fourth of July celebration. Every youngster in town had a good time—probably by all odds the best Fourth in his or her history. Yet there was not one firecracker set off! No one missed them, except pleasantly. There were no mishaps and no regrets; certainly Bend has demonstrated that a Fourth can be successfully celebrated without the dangerous firecracker.

The small calf is likely to be pretty "mussy." For this reason it should be given a clean bed often.

A little pig, just like a growing plant, needs sunshine. In both cases it seems to be a sort of tonic that makes the best development possible.

Sudden changes in ration are inadvisable for any of the domestic animals, but this holds true especially of those that are carrying or are nursing their young.

Pouring a little coal oil on the seed corn in the planter box may prevent crows and gophers from molesting the seed after it is planted, but it is also likely to weaken the vitality of the young corn plant.

Skimping the ration with the dairy cow is usually no economy at all, but merely expensive mismanagement. This, of course, provided she does not belong to the "star boarder" class and is not already eating her head off.

A blanket of fat on a horse, like charity, is a mantle that often serves to cover a multitude of defects. From the standpoint of both utility and investment it is often wise to buy the thin animal and do one's own fattening.

Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson recently completed his fifteenth consecutive year as head of this department of the government. This is the longest term ever served by any previous appointee to this important position.

The value of oats as a ration for poultry is largely offset by the drawback due to the harsh and rough covering. The digestive operation needed to remove this covering requires to offset it about all the nourishment the kernel contains.

A good wash to rub or spray on farm animals pestered with lice is made by dissolving a quarter of a pound of borax in a quart of hot water and adding four ounces of aqua ammonia. Enough should be applied to wet the hair where the lice are thickest.

Skim milk is one of the best additions that can be made to the ration of the laying hens, furnishing as it does protein in a cheap and easily digested form. More than this, it is much relished by the hens, as is true of practically all foods of large protein content.

A Dakota hog raiser who had considerable trouble from his sows' eating their little pigs cured them of the morbid craving responsible for the habit by giving each sow half a pound of salt pork. This seemed to satisfy their carnivorous instinct, and they have given no more trouble.

A classified ad in The Bulletin is read by hundreds and brings the advertiser good returns for the money invested.

CELEBRATION
SUCCESSFULTHREE DAYS OF FUN
ON FOURTH

Elephants, Merry-Go-Round, Balloon, Baseball Games and Other Attractions Provide Entertainment For Both Young and Old.

"Have you seen V-I-o-l-a, the fat girl?"

If you didn't see her, or the elephants, or the balloon, or the pink lemonade man and all the rest of it, your chances are gone for this year, for the "three glorious days" of Fourth of July celebration are over, to the sorrow of all the kids who actually helped set up the tents of Bend's first real circus, and, perhaps, the joy of business men who now have a chance to get down to tacks again.

The celebration proved as big a success as the most optimistic predicted. Aside from the fire, there were no unfortunate incidents to mar the general good time. Although several special policemen were on duty, there was little or nothing for them to do, as the crowds were extremely orderly.

The play which was to have been given Wednesday night, for the combined benefit of the Library and Commercial Club, had to be abandoned, as the fire came just as the show was to start. The performances, however, will be given later, at a date to be announced next week. All tickets sold will be good later.

Wednesday night the street carnival shows started and continued for the three days. One of the most attractive features of this part of the celebration was the merry-go-round, which made a big hit with the kids. An excellent balloon ascension was another drawing card.

The parade, while not as large as expected, was interesting. The Bend Band contributed a lot with their good playing, and the ball team furnished much entertainment.

Thursday there was canoe racing, followed, in the afternoon, by the Metolius ball game, with a very successful dance in the evening at Linster's hall after the fireworks display. A special train between Madras and Bend brought many people here.

Friday there were sports in the morning. The pony race was won by Speck Woods and the horse race by Will Vandeventer on "Red Wing." A bucking contest proved a more than usually interesting affair.

Saturday the Kit Carson circus came to town. There was a show in the afternoon and evening, the former a very creditable performance.

USING ROCK PHOSPHATE.

While ground rock phosphate is one of the very best commercial fertilizers that can be used on depleted soil, it is well to keep in mind the fact that its fertilizing value is greatly lessened if scattered on the surface of the soil as one would scatter ground limestone. The most effective way of using the fertilizer is mixing small quantities of it on the manure and scattering it with that. Certain chemical reactions are necessary for the phosphate to break up and assume an available form, and the presence of the manure hastens this. The next best method of applying the phosphate is to scatter it on the surface of the soil just before turning under a growth of green manure.

WHERE REAL FAILURE IS.

We are wont to consider the failure of popular or representative government as indicated in the grafting of legislators or corrupting of judges, when the bottom truth of the matter is that it is more often shown in the criminal indifference of the so-called good citizen, who has neither the gumption nor the patriotism to get out and take a hand in his precher's cause or primary. It is because of the laziness or self interest of this class, who would rather add a half dollar to their bank account than have no honest man in office, that the rotten political conditions in many sections of the country are due.
