"THE STORE OF BETTER VALUES"

East. She was in Chicago during the Republican convention.

Saturday night about 9 o'clock there was a fire scare when someone, seeing smoke hanging over the Hotel Bend, turned in an alarm. The hose carts were run out, but there was no blaze, the smoke coming from a chimney.

As announced in his ad in this issue, J. H. Minner, who lost all his grocery stock in the fire that destroyed the Everson building, will reopen in the Marley-Simpson stone building on Greenwood avenue within a week or ten days.

There will be services at the Catholic church Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Both today and tomorrow the Bend Company ships a carload of lumber East.

Anton Anderson of Seattle and family arrived Monday and will probably locate here.

Morgan Adkins will leave in the morning for his old home in Lewis county, Washington.

Ward H. Coble returned the first of the week from Portland, where he took in the Elks convention festivities.

The Bulletin has a supply of application blanks for hunting licenses which anyone can secure by calling at this office.

Recently a carload of cement arrived for the Bend Water, Light & Power Co., to be used in the construction of the new electric power house. The cement is stored near the flour mill.

Ben Sawbridge returned last night from North Yakima, where he spent his vacation at his home. Commenting on the comforts of the climate here, he reported that the temperature at Pasco when he went through there was 116 degrees.

A. G. Brook of Seattle has rented the old Drake house, now the property of D. E. Hunter, his son and daughter-in-law moving in yesterday. Mr. Brook Sr. has gone to Seattle on a brief business trip, and will return shortly to make Bend his home.

POWER OF THE OCTOPUS.

The Force Exerted by its Formidable Sucker Lined Arms.

Both the octopus and the cuttlefish have arms that are clothed with a formidable array of suckers, which are wonderful pieces of mechanism. When the sucker comes into contact with an object the central piston, having previously been raised so as to complete fill the cavity of the sucker, is at once withdrawn and a perfect vacuum produced, explaining the great tenacity with which the suckers cling. They number upward of 100 pairs to each arm of the octopus, and once they obtain a grip on the victim, unless the arm is actually torn away from the body of the octopus, it is practically impossible for its prey to disentangle itself.

In addition to these suckers the octopus has a powerful pair of jaws, shaped like the beak of a parrot, behind which is a formidable armor plated tongue used as a mashing organ. The octopus will attack and kill crabs and lobsters of considerable size, ripping open the body by means of its powerful jaws and devouring the contents. In spite of being a creature of such awe inspiring looks the octopus has several enemies in various species of whales, sharks and conger eels. In fact, the latter are particularly fond of devouring the smaller octopuses. Conger eels hunt for the octopus and when found proceed to browse on its limbs. The octopus tries to hug the slippery, slimy conger tight, but in vain, and finding his limbs growing less, discharges its ink in the face of the foe and under cover of the turbid water beats a hasty retreat. It is to escape the too pressing attention of its foes that the octopus possesses the power of changing its color to correspond with that of its surroundings.

A BULL RING BEGGAR.

The Intruder Wanted Bread, but He Got "Thumbs Down."

Sometimes the bullfight in Spain is used to compel the attention of the authorities to grievances that would otherwise go unnoticed, as is seen in the following incident described by Harry A. Franck in "Four Months Afoot in Spain": "The newcomer will long remember his first bull—certainly if, as in my own case, the first banderillero slips at the moment of thrusting his barbed darts and is booted like a soccer foot ball half around the ring by the snorting animal. Still less shall I forget the chill that shot through me when, with the fifth bull at the height of his fury, a gaunt and awkward boy of 17 teen sprang suddenly over the barriers and shook his ragged blouse a dozen times in the animal's face. As many times he escaped a goring by the closest margin.

"The toreros did not for a moment lose their heads. Calmly and dexterously they maneuvered until one of them drew the bull off, when another caught the intruder by the arm and marched him across the ring to the shade of the mayor's box. There the youth, who had taken this means of gaining an audience, lifted up a mournful voice and asked for food, asserting that he was starving—a statement that seemed by no means improbable. The response was thumbs down. But he gained his point, in a way, for he was given a fortnight in prison.

"Incidents of the sort had grown so frequent of late in Seville as to make necessary a new law, promulgated in large letters on that day's program. Printed words in all probability meant nothing to this neglected son of Seville."

The Uncertain Apple Tree.

An apple tree is the result of a graft from the tree that is known to be a producer of a certain kind and flavor of apples. If the seed were planted and one relied on it to produce a select grade of fruit the result would be disappointing, for the reason that from the seed the most remarkable varieties will be shown. Perhaps they will be miserable little crabapples or misshapen, bitter fruit or a useless conglomerate. The seed somehow or other harks back to its origin, notwithstanding years of cultivation. The varieties of apples known today are a result of careful selection and constant grafting of the better kind from year to year until the present development has been attained.—Harper's

Handsome Goeths.

Goethe was pronounced "the handsomest man of Europe." He was a little over six feet in height, but so well proportioned that he did not seem tall. His features were of the Roman type, his hair rather light than dark, his whole appearance commanding. Even to extreme old age he retained a large share of the personal good looks that earlier in life had made him so attractive.

The Unexpected.

A Study in Punctuation.

A celebrated eastern educator comma who has spent much time in studying literature comma tells us that the modern writer uses too many punctuation marks semicolon that he often gets them in the wrong place and that they are a nuisance comma anyhow period.

Another shark on literature comma however comma says that it is impossible for any person to write without using punctuation marks period Being of a genteel turn comma we do not feel like coming right out and calling the latter gentleman a quotation marks liar comma quotation marks but we have demonstrated comma to the satisfaction of ourself comma at least comma that writing can be done without the use of any punctuation mark what soever period How do you like it in terrogation point.—Brooklyn Ezkie.
