Baw a Profit. The artistic temperament often leads toward poverty, but it frequently compensates its victim with a saving grace of homor which makes even the poverty a source of fun. A young woman who was possessed of the temperament and had given up everything else for it suddenly sold a picture for a considerable sum and made haste to apply the proceeds as a first payment on a small cottage she had long desired. The former owner attempted to advise her about the neighbors.

"Now, that couple next door," be said warningly, "they are right good peigbbors, friendly and all that, but keep your eyes open. If they see a chance to make a bundred dollars out of you they won't besitate to do it." "Fine, fine," cried the young woman.

"I'm going over now and see if I can't get them to do it on shares."

An Editor Extinguished. Here is a story of a bumptious edtor, told in W. H. Rideing's "Many Celebrities and a Few Others." The editor sat beside Mr. Gladstone at a dinner party.

"I received a note from you a few days ago." said Mr. Gladstone pleasantly.

"From me? Not from me. I am sure you didn't. You may have had one from my secretary."

Mr. Gladstone, though clearly hurt. nodded his head gently in acquiescence. and the conversation went on, Mr. Gladstone taking a predominant share. But the editor was not allowed to get a word in edgewise for the rest of the evening. Mr. Gladstone would neither see bim nor hear bim, and, except to himself, he was nouexistent.

Bats as They Foed.

Bats fly as soon as darkness begins. They live on such insects as are then on the wing-gnats, mosquitoes, moths and beetles. The service they give to vegetation, even in temperate climates, is considerable. Some not countries could not be inhabited but for them. Most of the race are miscellaneous in their feeding and not very delicate in their taste. They devour indiscriminately all animal substances, whether raw or dressed and in any state.
