Cipriano Castro, Man Without a Country

Deposed Venezuelan, regarded as the greatest international joker, and not wanted anywhere, seeks admittance to America’s Metropolis

Cipriano Castro, self-styled "Joker of the Revolution," has just returned from an extended tour on the northern frontier, where he won the favor of the Indians and was received with great hospitality. He arrived several days ago from France, and attempted to make an entrance at New York harbor. But his plans were frustrated by the immigration authorities, who withheld him from the United States due to his alleged association with various political factions. However, he was able to reach the waters of the East River and was taken aboard a steamer bound for the southern states. It is believed that he will attempt to make his way across the southern states and eventually reach the border of Mexico. His presence in the United States would create quite a stir, as he is known for his mischief-making and is regarded as a thorn in the side of governments around the world.

Convict Leasing Given Hard Jolt by President-Elect Is a Busy Man

Recent Pardoning of Prisoners by Arkansas Governor Soule Knoll of Practice that Began in the Days of Victorian Affairs

Not all the frontier citizens of the south have been adapted as in those of the north. They are as much disposed to make a man of the Indian as the American. They are as much disposed to make a man of the redskin as the white. It is not the only means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to hunt, to kill game, to forge a bow and arrow, and to master the art of making a gun. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to catch the fish, to chase the deer, and to master the art of making a spear. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a fire, to make a shelter, and to master the art of making a wigwam. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat.

The Bend Bulletin
BEND, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1913.
FOUR PAGES

Cipriano Castro, Man Without a Country

Cipriano Castro, self-styled "Joker of the Revolution," has just returned from an extended tour on the northern frontier, where he won the favor of the Indians and was received with great hospitality. He arrived several days ago from France, and attempted to make an entrance at New York harbor. But his plans were frustrated by the immigration authorities, who withheld him from the United States due to his alleged association with various political factions. However, he was able to reach the waters of the East River and was taken aboard a steamer bound for the southern states. It is believed that he will attempt to make his way across the southern states and eventually reach the border of Mexico. His presence in the United States would create quite a stir, as he is known for his mischief-making and is regarded as a thorn in the side of governments around the world.

Convict Leasing Given Hard Jolt by President-Elect Is a Busy Man

Recent Pardoning of Prisoners by Arkansas Governor Soule Knoll of Practice that Began in the Days of Victorian Affairs

Not all the frontier citizens of the south have been adapted as in those of the north. They are as much disposed to make a man of the Indian as the American. They are as much disposed to make a man of the redskin as the white. It is not the only means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to hunt, to kill game, to forge a bow and arrow, and to master the art of making a gun. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to catch the fish, to chase the deer, and to master the art of making a spear. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a fire, to make a shelter, and to master the art of making a wigwam. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat.

The Bend Bulletin
BEND, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1913.
FOUR PAGES

Cipriano Castro, Man Without a Country

Cipriano Castro, self-styled "Joker of the Revolution," has just returned from an extended tour on the northern frontier, where he won the favor of the Indians and was received with great hospitality. He arrived several days ago from France, and attempted to make an entrance at New York harbor. But his plans were frustrated by the immigration authorities, who withheld him from the United States due to his alleged association with various political factions. However, he was able to reach the waters of the East River and was taken aboard a steamer bound for the southern states. It is believed that he will attempt to make his way across the southern states and eventually reach the border of Mexico. His presence in the United States would create quite a stir, as he is known for his mischief-making and is regarded as a thorn in the side of governments around the world.

Convict Leasing Given Hard Jolt by President-Elect Is a Busy Man

Recent Pardoning of Prisoners by Arkansas Governor Soule Knoll of Practice that Began in the Days of Victorian Affairs

Not all the frontier citizens of the south have been adapted as in those of the north. They are as much disposed to make a man of the Indian as the American. They are as much disposed to make a man of the redskin as the white. It is not the only means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to hunt, to kill game, to forge a bow and arrow, and to master the art of making a gun. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to catch the fish, to chase the deer, and to master the art of making a spear. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a fire, to make a shelter, and to master the art of making a wigwam. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat.

The Bend Bulletin
BEND, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1913.
FOUR PAGES

Convict Leasing Given Hard Jolt by President-Elect Is a Busy Man

Recent Pardoning of Prisoners by Arkansas Governor Soule Knoll of Practice that Began in the Days of Victorian Affairs

Not all the frontier citizens of the south have been adapted as in those of the north. They are as much disposed to make a man of the Indian as the American. They are as much disposed to make a man of the redskin as the white. It is not the only means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to hunt, to kill game, to forge a bow and arrow, and to master the art of making a gun. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to catch the fish, to chase the deer, and to master the art of making a spear. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a fire, to make a shelter, and to master the art of making a wigwam. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat. But there are other means by which an Indian is made a man. He is taught to make a canoe, to navigate a river, and to master the art of making a boat.

The Bend Bulletin
BEND, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1913.
FOUR PAGES