QUESTION FOR THE LAWYERS.

A recent happy event in a Bend family has brought up an interesting question in connection with the offer of the Deschutes Banking & Trust Co. made a few weeks ago to encourage the "infant industry" of the city. The offer of the banking company was to present to each child born in Bend between March 1 and August 31 a bank book with an initial deposit of one dollar. The family in question is a bona fide Bend family but the happy event took place in another city of the state. Strictly speaking, therefore, the new arrival is not entitled to the bank book, not having met the requirement of being born in Bend. The bank officials are inclined to view the matter broadly, however, and award the book in this instance to the newcomer as having been born here during the temporary absence of its parents, as the old story has it. So far only one other call for a book has been received by the bank.

WARRANTS CALLED IN.

A telephone message from County Treasurer Jordan this afternoon stated that he had called in warrants up to No. 631, to be paid, these totaling $70,000. This leaves about 400 warrants outstanding which total in round numbers $115,000. Some of these are tied up by injunction and others will be received in payment of taxes and Mr. Jordan states that this will leave only about $40,000 to be paid out by the county in cash to redeem them. The treasurer will furnish a statement of the county's finances as they now stand for publication next week.

ELLIS PLANTS FRUIT TREES.

H. C. Ellis is planting more than 500 fruit trees on his ranch just northeast of town. The trees are chiefly apple, including most of the standard varieties, with Gano, Jonathans and Northern Spies chiefly represented. He is also putting out a few prunes, plums, cherries and crab apples, as well as many currant, gooseberry and other bushes. As an experiment he is planting a dozen English walnut trees. Last year the 250 apple trees already on the place bore their first crop, which gave promise of satisfactory results.

Bend City Council.

SEVEN CHILDREN IN CONTEST.

Entries for the poultry contest received in the past week bring the total number of contestants up to seven, there being six boys and one girl. Many other children at first planned to enter but found themselves unable to do so because their parents were not to be here all summer. The first of the essays presented in the report contest will be published in an early number of The Bulletin.

WILL BUY CHAIRS AND TABLES.

At a meeting of the Library Club yesterday, it was decided to buy 50 chairs and a number of tables for use when the club gives dinners and to be rented to others. The report on the recent cafeteria dinner showed the receipts were $48.20. The club was addressed by Mrs. Wallace Urah, president of the State W. C. T. U., who gave an interesting talk.

MCUISTON TO MOVE.

W. C. McCuiston has rented the quarters on Oregon street formerly occupied by the grocery department of Lara's store. Mr. McCuiston says he will be moved in by June 1, when he intends to have an elaborate opening. In addition to the equipment and fixtures already in the store, Mr. McCuiston expects to install others, making it attractive and up-to-date in every respect.

WORK TO BEGIN AT LAIDLAW.

Under a Salem date line the following appeared in the Portland Journal last week: "O. Luvergaard has informed the secretary of the desert land board that he will be ready May 1 to begin the preliminary work on the Columbia Southern irrigation project. He has been employed as project engineer."

UNDELIVERED TELEGRAMS.

In a city like Bend to which so many strangers are continually coming it is frequently difficult for the telegraph office to make delivery of messages. Unless a newcomer is expecting a message and has left his address at the office, it may be impossible to find him when a telegram comes. The message then remains undelivered. In order to assist in the delivery of such messages, The Bulletin has arranged with the local telegraph office to publish each week in its local columns the names of all persons for whom messages are waiting.

BUILDING TELEPHONE LINE.

Work has been started by the forest service on the telephone line to

Crane Prairie. A. D. Lewis took the material up river Saturday and work was started from Big River, in charge of Ranger Rhea, assisted by W. H. Williams, a homesteader. Nineteen miles will be built.

Dear Amy:-
When people spend nearly one-half of their time in their bedrooms, I don't see why they don't fix them up easily, and for the life of me, the one most necessary thing in a home is a pretty, comfortable bed.
I just know John can work harder, because I make for him a restful place to sleep. You just ought to see our bedroom, Amy. I'm proud of it. Come soon.
As always,
Lou.
