

WILLIAMS HARD AFTER C. O. I.

ACTION ON BOND IS THREATENED

Trustee's Statement May Be Subject of Investigation—Columbia Southern Settlers Granted Two Years Extension of Time.

(Special to The Bend Bulletin.)

SALEM, April 28.—After deciding that it would take no action that might embarrass the Central Oregon Irrigation Company, which has an irrigation project in Crook county, in raising funds for the completion of the project, the state desert land board yielded to the insistent demands of E. B. Williams, a land owner in the Powell Butte district on the project, and at a meeting last week passed a resolution calling upon the company to appear before the board within 15 days and show cause, if any, why the board should not bring action on the company's bond for its failure to comply with the provisions of the contract between the company and the state. The company is said to have failed to enlarge the main Central Oregon canal to a capacity required in the contract and for which the bond of $25,000 was given.

A statement from the trustee, through whose hands certain funds of the company were to pass, shows a discrepancy of $25,000, which Mr. Williams requested that the board should investigate.

Columbia Southern Extension.

The board granted a two-years extension of time for settlers on the Columbia Southern project, in Crook county, to complete their filings on water rights in Tumalo creek. This extension was granted in view of the fact that the state is now ready to complete the project, thus giving the settlers, who have individual filings, opportunity to comply with the requirements of law.

Completed water rights in Squaw creek in Crook county as adjudicated by the board were defined in an order entered by the board at its meeting last week.

IS SUCCEEDING WITH POULTRY

MRS. G. W. SHRINER HAS PAYING FLOCK

In Eight Months Her Black Langshans and Rhode Island Reds Have Paid Over $100—Offer of Eggs For Two School Children.

Although the residents of Bend in general seem to have little appreciation of the profits to be derived from poultry keeping, as recent investigations of The Bulletin have shown, there are a few who have taken advantage of local conditions and made extremely good records, as well as profit. One of them is Mrs. G. W. Shriner, wife of the deputy game warden.

A year ago Mrs. Shriner, who had had little experience in keeping hens, decided to try a small flock for the interest there might be in the experiment as well as the financial gains. Believing in making a beginning in the right way, Mrs. Shriner paid high prices for the best thoroughbred Black Langshan and Rhode Island Red eggs she could get, in some instances paying as high as 50 cents an egg, and from these hatched about 70 of each breed, half pullets and cockerels. In five months and a half the pullets had begun to lay and they kept on laying right through the winter. Since December Mrs. Shriner has had from seven to nine dozen eggs a week and for nearly two months of that time has had a market for all she could furnish at 60 cents a dozen.

With the beginning of the hatching season, Mrs. Shriner advertised settings of eggs for sale in the classified column of The Bulletin. Some 20 settings were sold in Bend and a number of sales were made to people in nearby towns. Using the parcels post, she sent eggs to La Pine, Powell Butte and other towns. Two settings went in this manner to a friend in California.

Mrs. Shriner estimates that since her pullets began laying last fall she has sold $120 worth of their products and in addition, she has used in her own home at least $40 worth of eggs and meat. In order to arouse more interest in the poultry contest, Mrs. Shriner offers two settings for children who have not been able to enter because of inability to procure eggs. She will give a setting of Black Langshan eggs to a boy and one of Rhode Island Reds to a girl. One reason for Mrs. Shriner's success, she feels, is that every morning she gives the birds warm water and warm food. Aside from this, she has no regular feeding schedule.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS THRIVE

Attendance at the Three Averages More Than 200.

The Sunday schools of Bend are having a remarkably large attendance this spring, there now being more children and grown-ups going than ever before. The Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches each has a school which meets every Sunday morning.

The Baptist, which is the oldest and which was formerly a union organization, is the largest. On Sunday, April 20, the attendance broke all previous records, the 100 mark being reached. A year ago the attendance was 69, and recently the pupils who were in the school at that time were found to be only 16, showing a big gain in new members. The Baptists have a cradle roll and home department, bringing the enrollment to 178.

During the past month the average attendance at the Methodist school has been about 57. The total enrollment is 72, giving a high percentage of attendance.

The Presbyterian school is also in a thriving condition despite the fact that it has had obstacles to overcome in the way of meeting place, the new church not yet being completed. On last Sunday the attendance was 52, this being about the average figure.

BIG LOGGING CONTRACT.

W. E. Scott began a logging contract Saturday for The Bend Company, using a big tractor engine. He will haul from the woods to the company's mill 5,000,000 feet of timber, which is being cut about three miles west of the mill, near the brickyard. Mr. Scott has four big trucks to be used with the engine. Two will be loaded while the others are conveying logs to the mill. Mr. Scott has employed about a dozen men.
