AN ANECDOTE OF M'KINLEY.

His Gentle Rebuke to a Department Chief's Subordinate.
President McKinley's scrupulous loyalty to his cabinet officers is spoken of as one of his characteristics. It is said that he never went over the heads of his secretaries to consult an assistant, but held each to responsibility for his department.
Of all the events of his administration probably none was a source of more anxiety to him than the decision of the supreme court on the status of the colonies. It was a matter of great moment whether the highest judicial body should uphold the view of the administration that the constitution sanctioned the possession of colonies which were not granted full representation. There were conflicting rumors and forecasts of the color of the decision, and these added to the tension felt at Washington. Shortly before the announcement of the finding of the court a subordinate officer of one of the departments appeared at the White House at an unusual hour and insisted upon seeing the president on the plea of important business. Having been admitted, he came at once to his errand.
"Mr. President, I have some good news for you. I have just learned authoritatively that the decision of the supreme court is to be in your favor." He fairly glowed with the importance of his welcome message.
"Thank you," said Mr. McKinley quietly. "That is good news. But have you informed your chief?"
"No, Mr. President. I thought you ought to be the first to know it."
"Well, Mr. —, I'm sorry for that. Now, will you please do me the favor to go at once to your chief and give him the information so that he may communicate it to me?"—Silas Harrison in Century.

SPINNING ASBESTOS.

A Thread a Hundred Yards Long and Only an Ounce in Weight.
When it leaves the cobbing sheds asbestos is sent to the spinning mills in bags containing about 100 pounds. It is then first carded by a machine somewhat resembling the saw tooth gin seen in cotton mills. This machine separates the tangled fibers, upon the completion of which operation there occurs a final carding on a regular carding machine. Leaving this carding machine the asbestos is combed smoothly and the fibers are laid parallel in a uniform mass.
The next step is to treat this mass in a rotary spinning machine. First the mass is spun into a coarse yarn. Then it is drawn and spun until it becomes fine and quite strong. In case a hard, strong thread is required for certain fabrics the asbestos yarn is placed in a doubling and twisting machine, where two or more of the yarn threads are combined. If the asbestos is to be impregnated with rubber a smooth, hard finished thread is not desirable.
For a long time the problem of spinning asbestos presented many difficulties by reason of the manner in which the threads persisted in slipping past one another. Eventually it was found that, under the microscope, a thread of asbestos displayed a notched surface and that by means of special twisting the spinning could be successfully accomplished. The result is that, after many years of experiment, manufacturers nowadays are able to turn out a single asbestos thread 100 yards in length and not exceeding an ounce in weight.—Exchange.

SHE MET THE SULTAN.

But Willy Reschid Pasha Fooled the Lady and the Monarch.
A certain Countess of Londonderry wanted to meet the Sultan Mahmud II., to whom no European lady had been presented, but Lord Ponsonby, the British ambassador, refused to trifle with precedent. Lady Londonderry then had a talk with Reschid Pasha, the Turkish minister for foreign affairs. The wily Reschid, desiring to do his best for her ladyship, made known to the sultan that a person had arrived at Constantinople with a wonderful collection of most valuable jewelry for sale and ventured humbly to suggest that his imperial majesty might like to see the gem. The sultan was interested, and an interview was arranged, but Reschid merely told Lady Londonderry that she would be presented and that the sultan, having heard of the fame of her jewelry, had particularly requested that she would put it all on when she came. The gratified lady did so.
On her arrival at the palace Reschid Pasha conducted Lady Londonderry into the presence of the sultan. Her dress glittered with diamonds, pearls, turquoise and other precious stones. "Pekkel!" ("Good!") said the sultan as Lady Londonderry courted. "She has magnificent jewels."
Reschid (to the lady)—His majesty graciously bids you welcome.
Lady Londonderry bowed and expressed her thanks in French, the language used by Reschid.
Reschid (interpreting)—She says she has other jewelry, but could not put on all.
Sultan—Ask her what is the price of that diamond necklace.
Reschid—His majesty inquires whether this is your first visit to Constantinople?
Lady Londonderry—This is my first visit, and I am delighted.
Reschid (to sultan)—She asks a million of piasters.
Sultan—That is too much.
Reschid (to Lady Londonderry)—His majesty says that perhaps you would like to take a walk in the garden.
Lady Londonderry expressed her thanks and said she would like to see the imperial garden.
Reschid (to sultan)—She says 400,000 piasters.
Sultan—Take her away. I shall not give such prices.
Reschid (to Lady Londonderry)—His majesty graciously expresses satisfaction at having made your acquaintance.
Lady Londonderry courted low and withdrew from his majesty's presence to visit the garden with the amiable and courteous Reschid, and afterward she had a delightful story to tell her friends of the kindness with which the sultan had received her.

Long Drawn Out Elections.
No complaint with regard to undue limitation of polling time was possible in the old parliamentary days. The danger was that polling might be prolonged for a fortnight or a month. Drastic action to bring the poll to a close once provoked a riot in the Westminster division of London. At the general election that began on April 25, 1741, the two Westminster ministerial candidates were on the fifth day of polling well ahead, but an opposition party of electors approaching the hustings in great force, the high bailiff (who favored the ministerialists) declared that he feared a riot and closed the poll. The baffled voters rioted and the military were called out. The high bailiff had afterward to apologize on his knees to the speaker and pay a heavy fine.

An Early Postal Experiment.
As long ago as the seventeenth century the attempt was made to prepay letters by using stamps. In 1653 Paris tried a system that even provided pillar boxes for the letters, which were to have a billet, price 1 sol, attached to the letter or parcel. The experiment met the usual experience of the pioneer—ridicule. Mice were dropped into the letter boxes, and when the letters came to be collected it was found that the animals had made a hearty meal of them. As nobody could be sure of the fate of the parcels, the experiment came to a sudden end.

Maeterlinck on the Future.
Maeterlinck in his book called "Le Mort" says of the mystery of the after death that outside of the religions there are four imaginable solutions and no more. These are total annihilation, survival of our consciousness of today, survival without any sort of consciousness, survival with universal consciousness or with a consciousness different from that which we possess in this world.

The Joke on Father.
She had refused him, and he was "all in."
"Reconsider, Annie," he begged. "If you don't I'll blow my brains out."
"Huh," said Annie, "that would be a good joke on father, for he thinks you haven't any."—Ladies Home Journal

Patient.
Binks—Could you lend me $1 until Saturday? Jinks—I'm busted. Won't have a cent myself until Saturday.
Binks—Would you lend it to me then?
—New York Globe.

Nature when she adds difficulties adds brains.—Emerson.

A Voice Without a Soul.
Tibet's dalai lama was greatly disturbed by the first phonograph he saw. Edmund Candler, when in Lassa with the Younghusband expedition, heard from the Nepalese resident how he had recently brought the uncanny toy as a present from the maharajah of Nepal to the priest king. The dalai lama walked around it unasily as it blared forth an English band piece and an indelicate Bhutanese song. Then he thought for a long while, and finally said he could not live with this voice without a soul. So it was passed on to somebody else.

A Paternal Proposition.
"The government throws all the obsolete army weapons in the junk pile. They are unsalable."
"Seems to me the government gives very little thought to pleasing its citizens."
"How now?"
"Think of the innocent joy that would result if they hurled those weapons on the various battlefields for tourists to dig up."—Kansas City Journal.

Ovid and Aviation.
If the aviators of today wish for a classical motto, what better can they take than this passage from Ovid's "Ars Amatoria," 2, 43—
quis crederet unquam
Aeris hominum carperet vias?
which means, "Who would believe that man will ever be able to take aerial paths?"—Youth's Companion.

Real Obliging.
Creditor—I should like to know when you are going to pay this bill. I can't come here every day in the week.
Debtor—What day would suit you best?
Creditor—Saturday.
Debtor—Very well; then you can call here every Saturday.
—London Opinion.

Never Lonesome.
"You really like country life, do you, Dobby?" asked Petlow.
"You bet I do," said Dobsun.
"What do you do with yourself nights?" asked Petlow.
"Oh, I come to town," said Dobsun.—Harper's Weekly.

Traveling Sand Hills.
On the coast of Iowernia there are large tracts of sand heaped up by the wind, hundreds of yards in breadth and from 50 to 120 feet high, and these hills, propelled by the wind, move steadily in an easterly direction. The speed at which these great hills travel is from thirty-nine to fifty-six feet a year. Pine woods, which sometimes come in their line of march, cannot stop them and are completely destroyed. The branches are rotted off by the sand, and nothing is left of the tree but the bare stems, which after a few years wither and die.
