LOCOMOTIVE KILLS HORSES

Team Driven by Mrs. Alt Struck on Grade Crossing by O. T. Train.
When her team was unable to move a heavy load speedily enough while crossing the railroad tracks about four miles south of town, Mrs. William Alt had a narrow escape Friday night and the two horses were killed by the engine of the northbound Oregon Trunk train.
Mrs. Alt was returning to her home, after shopping in Bend. The grade crossing where the accident occurred is a heavy one, and when the horses were directly on the track, it is understood, the wagon stuck. Mrs. Alt heard the approaching train and made an effort to unharness the horses, but the engine struck them before they could be released. Both were killed.

RED TAPE AND A TUB.

A Bath in Senegal Was Something Like a Surgical Operation.
Some years ago, when the capital of the French colony of Senegal was a dull, unprogressive town where officialism and red tape prevailed, a French traveler, with a friend, had a most amusing experience when he wished to obtain a bath. There was no bathing establishment in the capital of Senegal at the time, but rumor had it that it was possible to purchase baths at the hospital.
Accordingly the travelers repaired to the hospital, where they stated the purpose of their visit.
"Certainly," said the official, "take seats. Your names, surnames and birthplace."
"But we merely want a bath."
"Exactly. What is your name, and where and when were you born, and are you government servants, soldiers or officers? No? Well, the rules do not provide for this. Just a moment I will read them again. Yes, here is your case. You must first make out on stamped paper an application to the governor of the colony. After favorable notice from the governor you send another application to the chief colonial doctor, who will send for you and examine you."
"But we are not ill."
"It is the rule. Having examined you, the doctor will give you two non-commissioned officers' bath tickets, to be delivered to the assistant doctor."
"Why the non-commissioned officers' bath?"
"For the reason that in our accounts we recognize only two categories of persons—officers and civil servants, the latter taking rank with officers or petty officers. You are not official at all if officers were to find you in their baths they would probably make a row."
"What period of time will all these formalities consume?"
"Two or three days, provided your application is approved at the government house."—Chicago Record Herald.

ORIGIN OF QUARANTINE.

Dr. Richard Mead's Action During the Plague of 1721.
To Dr. Richard Mead, who was in consultation at the deathbed of Queen Anne and became physician to George I., was due the credit of having first established quarantine.
In 1721, when the plague ravaged Marseilles and its contagious origin was discredited, Dr. Mead declared the plague to be "a contagious distemper," and a quarantine was enjoined. He also proposed a system of medical police, which finds its counterpart in the health officers of today. It was he who declared, "As nastiness is a great source of infection, so cleanliness is the greatest preventative."
He it was who said nearly 200 years ago: "If there be any Contagious Distemper in the Ship the Sound men should leave their Cloaths, which should be burnt, the men washed and shaved and, having fresh Cloaths, should stay in Lazaretto—that is, quarantine—thirty to forty days. The reason for this is because Persons may be recovered from a Disease themselves and yet retain matter of Infection about them a considerable time."
In practice Mead was without a rival, his receipts averaging for several years between 60,000 and 47,000, an enormous sum in relation to the value of money at that period. He possessed a rare taste for collecting. But his books, his statues, his medals, were not to amuse only his own leisure. The humble student, the unrequited foreigner, the poor inquirer, derived as much enjoyment from these treasures as their owner. At his table might be seen the most eminent men of the age. Pope was a ready guest, and the delicate poet was sure to be regaled with his favorite dish of sweetbreads.

Matthew Arnold and the Girls.
Of Matthew Arnold as a school examiner a tale is told by a fellow inspector of a class of girl pupil teachers that he asked Arnold to examine for him. Arnold gave them all the excellent mark.
"But," said the other inspector, "surely they are not all as good as they can be. Some must be better than others."
"Perhaps that is so," replied Arnold. "But then, you see, they are all such very nice girls."

Professionally Considered.
"The Declaration of Independence is a wonderful document," said the patriotic citizen.
"Yes," replied the legal expert. "It's one of the ablest documents I ever saw. And the most remarkable thing is that with all the ability it represents, nobody appears to have received a cent for drawing it up."—Washington Star.

Present Troubles.
"Ah, pretty lady," said the fortune teller, "you wish to be told about your future husband?"
"Not much," replied Mrs. Galley. "I've come to learn where my present husband is when he's absent."—Philadelphia Press.

Turning the Phrase.
"They used to call him a bonehead."
"That was before he succeeded."
"Yes. Now they express it differently. They call him a man of hard, solid sense."—Washington Star.

Distantly Related.
"Say, isn't Swards, the banker, a relative of yours?"
"Yes; he's a cousin—about $4,000,000 removed."—Chicago Tribune.

LAIDLAW TO HAVE PAPER?

According to reports current during the week, Laidlaw is to have a newspaper. Thus far the project seems shrouded in some mystery, but the facts apparently are that a man named Brown is the editor-to-be. It is understood that the paper is to be printed in Redmond by the Spokesman. It will be remembered that some years ago Editor Palmer of the Spokesman conducted a paper at Laidlaw until relations with the local people became so strained that he decamped to his present location.

NOTICE.

In view of the fact that rumors are being circulated to the effect that the Altamont is to be closed, I wish to announce that all such rumors are wholly without foundation. The Altamont will be kept open and will be in charge of Mrs. E. J. Herring.—Advertisement.

A Kitchen cabinet makes cooking easy

Dear Amy:-
I've just bought me a new kitchen cabinet, and now it's just fun to get a dinner ready. I never knew what a convenience a kitchen cabinet was until I got mine.
If you haven't bought one yet, by all means, do so at once. You'll save enough from things you would waste, in just a few months, to pay for it, and it will save you hundreds of steps every day. I wouldn't take anything for mine.
Dad, John is getting better.
Always your friend,
Lou.
P. S.—They have splendid kitchen cabinets where I bought mine. I got it from
