

STATE "IN HOLE"

$1,000,000 SOON

LOW TAX, BIG EXPENDITURES REASON

Total Crook County Taxes $328,418.37—Income From Autos, Applicable for Road Improvement, Neglected—Patrol of Forests.

(Special to The Bulletin)

SALEM, July 21.—The state treasury will find itself "in the hole" about $1,000,000 before any of next year's taxes are paid next April, according to information given out last week by State Treasurer Kay. There is less than a half million dollars in the general fund now, and Mr. Kay says this will be all gone by August 10. Thereafter the state will have to issue warrants without any funds to pay them, such warrants drawing 6 per cent interest. In October a small amount of taxes will be received from those counties which have not paid over to the state all of this year's taxes, but this will be comparatively small.

This heavy deficiency, explained Mr. McKay, is due to the very low state tax levy made this year on the one hand and the heavy appropriations made by the last Legislature on the other hand. The state tax levy was 1.2 mills, the lowest ever made. The appropriations were over $5,000,000.

Remedy Provided.
Under a law passed by the last Legislature, these heavy deficiencies can be avoided hereafter, as the state board is given authority to anticipate what the appropriations will be during legislative years and make a levy large enough to meet the requirements. Under the old law the state board could anticipate only to the amount of $200,000.

The state tax commission has just compiled the first statement showing the total amount of taxes raised in the state this year. Taxes for all purposes amounted to $15,136,438.28. The total amount of state taxes was $1,122,214.48. Of this amount Crook county paid $15,579.25, Curry paid $4305 and Malheur paid $12,291.50. The total value of taxable property in the state this year was $905,011,679. The total amount of taxes raised this year in Crook county was $228,418.37.

Auto Owners Dodge Licenses.

There is not a county in the state in which all the automobiles registered last year have been re-registered this year, according to Secretary of State Olcott. Sheriff Will C. Smith of Josephine county is the only sheriff in the state who has written to the secretary of state asking for a list of the owners of these unregistered machines. He says he is going to see that they buy this year's licenses. Secretary Olcott points out that Sheriff Smith's county will be the gainer by the sheriff's activity, as a new law provides that each county's proportion of automobile license money shall be returned to the county for use in keeping up the roads.

To Patrol Forests.

More than 600 men will patrol the Oregon forests during the dry season this year, according to State Forester Elliott, who is now appointing the 60 patrolmen whose salaries are to be paid by the federal government. The state has 27 wardens and patrolmen, and the remainder of the forest guards will be employed by forest fire associations and individual timber owners. So far this season not a serious forest fire has occurred, and the state forester says the timber owners are better organized to guard against fires and to fight them if any should start, than ever before. The late rains have been very favorable for the protection of the timber, but the present dry spell is rapidly changing this condition.

DINING ON SHIPBOARD.

Different Now From What It Was When Dickens Visited Us.

When Dickens came over to America some seventy odd years ago there was one large table in the dining room for the passengers. The first officer sat at the head, carving the turkey with all the grace he could command between lurches of the good ship, trusting to Providence that the gravy would not slop over. The passengers sent their plates along the line and waited for their helpings.

Today the dining room of a large ship looks like the dining room of a fine hotel. It is just as exquisitely appointed and has every good thing to eat that can be found on land. In fact, one of the new ships has a restaurant named after a famous one in New York, and the two keep in touch by wireless so that the menus, day by day, are the same. Think of having your dinner arranged by wireless—your macaroni by Marconi!

The dining room is divided up into a number of small tables, so that you can have your own party, with only half a dozen of you, with your own waiter, instead of sitting at a long table and passing your plate, as Dickens did.

The development of the wonders of cold storage has done more than any other one thing to make life on the ocean wave one long round of joy. Cold storage gives you the best in the world to eat and every day of the year. A world traveler was telling me the other day that he had eaten grapefruit every morning all around the world. The ship on which he sailed put in a large amount of ice cream made in New York, and 110 days later, when he arrived in San Francisco, he was still eating New York ice cream.—Harold Christie in Leslie's.

ROBING THE BRIDE.

Early Saxon Customs and the Advent of the Flying Veil.

In the old days, as now, the bride generally dressed in white. From early Saxon times down to the eighteenth century a bride of the poorer classes came to the wedding arrayed in a plain white robe as a public warning that since she brought nothing to the marriage her husband was not responsible for her debts.

Brides soon began to add some little touch of color. Blue was for constancy and green for youth, but in some places these might not be used because of feuds between families having these tints in their liveries. Yellow might not be worn, as it stood for jealousy; golden might not, as it meant avarice.

The Anglo-Saxon bride went to the wedding with her hair hanging loose as a sign of freedom, but upon reaching her new house immediately bound it up as a sign of submission. In the days of Shakespeare the veil began to take the place of the flowing tresses, but this, however, was not original with the British, for centuries earlier the Roman and Hebrew brides had worn yellow veils, while the early Christians of southern Europe had enveloped both man and wife in one large cloth.

Whatever was lacking, however, to gorgeousness of dress was compensated among all the nations by the profusion of flowers chosen for their significance.—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Sleeplessness.

When people of nervous temperament retire for the night and cannot sleep it is usually because their brains are still active and refuse to part with the blood which should properly travel elsewhere. What the sleepless really need is a sloping bed, so that the congested head will relieve itself easily of the superfluous blood. For the upper part of the body, being heavier than the lower, inevitably sinks more deeply into the bedding, and even if one props the head on two pillows the neck is curved and strained and obstructs the backward flow of blood.

KUYKENDALLS AUTO HERE.
Coming by auto some 320 miles from their home in Pomeroy, Wash., E. V. Kuykendall and family arrived Sunday. They are occupying their irrigated land east of town, and will be here about a month. After spending some of last summer here, says Mr. Kuykendall, his family found the climate so delightful that they insisted on repeating the experience.
