LAILDLAW'S NAME.

While there no doubt are business reasons for the changing of Laidlaw's name to Tumalo, the change, if effected, cannot but bring to mind some of the things which have come to be associated with the name of Laidlaw, the town, besides those that are unsavory.

The notoriety connected with the name Laidlaw is the way Laidlaw's disadvantages as a name is expressed in the Tumalo Times. In a semi-apology for its own cognomen. Yet some who have observed and perhaps helped its people, would call to mind other matters than those unpleasant that have gone to make up the notoriety of Laidlaw.

For instance, who is there, familiar with the splendid spirit of the Laidlaw people in adversity, familiar with the brave spirit of optimism that has carried them through dark years, who has not applauded the characteristics of the little town and coupled with its name honor for that never-say-die attitude? And who, knowing that the women and the men of Laidlaw have done, knowing of their unselfish efforts for community good, of the privations they have suffered silently, the sacrifices they have made for the common weal, but doffs his hat in sincere admiration when the name Laidlaw is mentioned?

Laidlaw, the name of the town, perhaps will be dropped. That may be good policy. But if so, the good that has been Laidlaw's will not be buried with its bones, but shall live long after its name has passed in the memory of those who have known its citizenship in the times of adversity—and in memory, the good of its good people will far outbalance the blot cast upon it through no fault of those who actually made and kept alive the town.

WATER THAT IS WATER.

"Salt is not salt" is the paradoxical statement made in his advertising by a manufacturer of that commodity, meaning that much that goes by the name of salt really is some impurity. The same assertion may be made of many other things that we all use daily but of none is it probably more true than of water. All over this country, and indeed the world, people are dying of typhoid fever which, for the most part, they have contracted by drinking impure water. And everywhere cities and towns are trying to do away with the impurities in their water by killing them with filtration and chemicals. The result is water, not impure, but yet not that which we have in mind when we say we want a drink of water. We do not want to drink chemicals. These, then, are the two kinds of water that are not water—the impure and the pure made so by chemicals. The third kind that is just water is the rarest of all. It has never been impure. It is pure because it is and not because man has made it so. Recent tests show that that is the kind Bend enjoys. We should see to it that it is always so.

As predicted, a storm of protest is rising against the neglect of the County Court which let die the demonstration farms. It is to be hoped that next year that body will erase the mistake of this summer by supporting the wise work with double generosity. And in the meantime it may be well to remember, when censuring the members of the court, that Commissioner Bayley last year indicated his approval of the demonstration work by supporting it, and that there is every reason to believe he still favors it, could he but have reasonable opportunity to place his desires in action. Also, Commissioner Brown is widely known and respected as a level-headed and capable man; also, he is a farmer. There seems little doubt that he and Bayley will be able to get together and keep together so that entire stagnation will not settle down upon county affairs.

A baseball umpire is suing a club manager for damages because the latter assaulted the umpire and, among other things, caused "paralysis of the nerves of three teeth." There are times when nearly everyone would like to have such a baseball manager around handy.

Week-ends furnish an awfully effective means of disposing of loose ends of the week's change.

ABOUT ADVERTISING.

(From the Country Gentlemen)
More and more the farmer is coming to be an alert business man. And along with his new thrift he is coming to employ business methods in advertising. Such methods should be

BEND WATER IS PURE.
That Bend's water is pure is shown by an analysis recently made by the State Board of Health. Manager Foley of the water company sent a bottle of the water to the board a short time ago and Saturday received word that it "showed a total of 10 organisms per cubic centimeter and the absence of colon bacilli." "That number of organisms is very low," said Mr. Foley, "while the absence of colon bacilli means, of course, that there is no danger of typhoid fever here." The sample sent to the board was a small amount drawn from the faucet in the water company's office. Mr. Foley is now arranging to have frequent analyses of the water made.

far more widely copied than they are. "It pays to advertise" is the deliberate opinion of the mercantile world; it is no less true of the business of farming.

There is an indirect way to advertise the farm and the right methods of its management. By good fences and clean fence corners, by gates that open readily and do not sag, by well-oiled harness and fitly groomed horses, by sleek and gentle cows, by neatly kept buildings and all implements sheltered from the weather, a man may show his neighbors and all the passers-by that he is right up to date and wholly up to his task.

There is also direct advertising, and to this farmers pay all too little attention. It is the part of wisdom to run in a good paper or a series of papers an announcement of what you have to sell, and to keep such an announcement before the eyes of the readers. Men may not buy at once, but when the time comes for them to buy they will know who has the stock or the grains needed. Then every farmer should have a fitting name for his farm. He should have attractive letterheads and circulars. On the envelopes he uses he should place a slogan of a few striking words, or a portrait of his prize winner, or a picture of a scene with Holsteins or Jerseys, as the case of his dairy may suggest, at their grazing.

Demonstration Farm Neglect
Raises Ire of Countyites

Pressure Being Brought to Bear on Crook County Court for Much Needed Action—Squabbles of Body Apparently Responsible for Action.

Last year the County Court appropriated money for the upkeep of the O. A. C. demonstration farms in Crook county. This year the undertaking has been allowed to die, the court taking no action upon it. Whether this is due to the "economy" hallucination of the judge, or simply to the friction which has muddled county affairs since his advent to office, the fact remains that people throughout the county are beginning to realize that the court is letting a mighty opportunity for good slip by. The following clippings show the popular feeling:

(La Pine Inter-Mountain)

The Bend Bulletin contains a deserved criticism of the strange action of the County Court in neglecting to take advantage of the maintenance of agricultural experiment stations in the county, under a special appropriation of $100,000 for that purpose passed by the last Legislature. Inter-Mountain readers will remember that through the efforts of the Central Oregon delegation—Senator Thompson and Representative Forbes and Smith—aided by the co-operation of the Portland Commercial Club and the Multnomah delegation, Senate bill No. 72, which was originally framed at the Central Oregon Development League convention at Lakeview last August, passed both houses of the Legislature with practically a unanimous vote. Under that bill, county courts were authorized to appropriate money for agricultural experiment work, the state putting up $2 for each $1 spent by the county, the amount to be spent in any one county being limited to $2000 a year in counties of less than 5000 square miles and to $4000 a year in larger counties.

Wonderment was expressed last spring in every section as to just why work was not renewed, under O. A. C. experts, at the experiment stations conducted last year. But now the secret is out—that it is due solely to the malicious cry of "economy" by the County Court that they even struck at one of the vital things that means so much to the future of Central Oregon—the maintenance of agricultural experiment stations. The Inter-Mountain agrees heartily with The Bulletin in all of its contentions in that crisp editorial last week.

Oh, You Kids!

(Madras Pioneer)
"Subscriber" sounds a keynote in his communication on the front page of this issue in which he calls on the people of Crook county to ask the County Court to grant an appropriation for the continuance of the agricultural demonstration farms. When the "Flying Squad" visited Madras a few weeks ago, we were informed by Professor Cordley of the agricultural college that he had been led to believe that the County Court stood ready and willing to appropriate the money just as soon as some person or persons made a formal request for same. Since that time numerous requests have gone in, asking that the appropriation be made. But the members of the County Court are at loggerheads. They refuse to do business the one with the other. They are like a lot of school kids who have had a falling out over a big red apple. And in the meantime, we don't get the money to keep up those two demonstration farms next year.

By the provisions of the bill that passed the last session of the Legislature, the state is powerless to aid unless the county comes through with its share of the money. If the county appropriates $2000 for the work a like amount will be forthcoming from the state, while the government and the agricultural college will furnish competent men to take charge of the work. Prompt action is essential if we are to get the pick of these expert farmers.

Get together, you big kids over there at Prineville. Do not allow your personal animosities to get in the way of conscientious effort for the welfare of the county.

REPORT A PLEASANT TRIP

Bend Party Makes Journey to Eugene Over McKenzie Pass.

Members of the auto party which went over the McKenzie pass with O. C. Henkle have returned to town in the last few days and report a very pleasant trip. In the party were R. M. Smith, E. M. Thompson, P. C. Garrison and Claude L. Mannheim. Leaving Bend at 5 o'clock last Friday, they were at the summit of the Cascades by 9 and at 3 o'clock that evening were in Eugene. The next day they went on to Corvallis, going from there to Portland on the Oregon Electric that afternoon.

Mr. Thompson went on to Seattle and to Vancouver, B. C., to visit his old partner here, Mr. Kennedy. Mr. Garrison went to Idaho. Mr. Smith returned yesterday morning and Mr. Mannheim today. Mr. Henkle is expected back about the 15th.

Mr. Smith says that the road on the other side of the mountains is being improved by the government, the heaviest grades being brought down to 10 per cent. Crops in the Willamette valley are looking well, he said, especially the wheat and oats.

AT THE BEND COMPANY'S MILL

Personal and Other Short Items of Interest.

Oliver Johnson, who spent the greater part of last week in Portland, has returned and started to work on Monday morning.

John Tudoroff left Sunday morning for a short stay on his ranch.

Mrs. J. E. Engebretson is expected

In from the ranch this week to join her husband here to remain for some time.

Carl Eakman is building himself what might be termed a detachable house, as he intends taking it apart later and hauling it out to his homestead.

Sunday a crew was repairing and laying new planking on the log haul.

The logging engine—there is only one now—is still making good, hauling something like 10,000 feet a trip.

George Straight, the yard boss, is making things hum here just now, with plenty of horses and trucks around, all the logging horses being kept at the barn here for the present. He is using these for hauling lumber to the cars, loading the trucks with 9000 or 10,000 feet, and it certainly does not take many of these loads to fill a car.

BEND BRICK BEST.

(Madras Pioneer)
Representatives of the Bend brick yard were here this week to demonstrate the value of their product for building purposes, and some of the local contractors were surprised to see that a bed of clay had been found which would produce brick that would stand the test with brick made in any other section of the state.

DIPHTHERIA IS FATAL.

O. A. Thorson received word from Mrs. Thorson last Thursday morning that their oldest child, Ford Jerome, aged 6 years, who had accompanied his mother on her recent trip East, had died the night before of diphtheria. Mrs. Thorson was called to Minneapolis by the illness of her father, leaving Bend on July 16 with her three children. It is supposed that the disease was contracted on the train and realization of its nature did not come until it was too
