

LA PINE GETS JUDICIAL JOLT

SPRINGER HOLDS UP RAPER LICENSE

Result of County Judge's Reversal of Court's Decision is a Saloon Without a License—Legal Entanglement May Be Outcome.

An example of the "one man rule" with which Crook county seems to be blessed just at present centered on La Pine recently, and appears to have made a dent in the Springer enthusiasm thereabouts. An outward and visible sign of the blow beneath the belt administered by the judge to the La Pine people is the fact that today G. W. Raper is conducting a saloon there without a license; that is, Raper doesn't happen to have the license document, although the majority of the County Court authorized the issuance of one to him, until the judge said nay.

The story starts at the last session of the court. Raper appeared and presented a petition, as required by law, asking for a county saloon license. The petition was passed upon by the Deputy District Attorney. It contained 42 signatures; the statute requires a majority of voters' signatures to such a petition, and it happens that at the last La Pine election 41 ballots were cast, this showing the unanimity of the Raper request. Commissioners Brown and Bayley approved the license. Springer hemmed and hawed and frankly said he disapproved of issuing any licenses. But under the circumstances, he is quoted as having added, he guessed the license would have to be issued. Mr. Raper thanked the court and left, the judge remarking that he could "go on his way rejoicing" and warning him to "walk the straight and narrow path."

O-W. ISSUES NEW FOLDER

Central Oregon Receives Attention in Railroad Publication.

The Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Co. has just issued a very attractively prepared, though rather ill printed, folder descriptive of Central Oregon. Its main feature is a large map giving an excellent idea of Central Oregon and of all the Pacific Northwestern territory served by the road, showing wagon roads and points of interest.

Of the 27 small illustrations, 6 are Bend views. These show the Wenan-dy residence, water power dam, warehouse, sheep, Staats' clover field and cows at Jones' ranch.
