

A CAMPAIGN OF ODDITIES.

When the Log Cabin and Hard Cider Enthusiasts Rejoiced.

Political enthusiasm has taken many forms during the lifetime of this nation. The Harrison-Van Buren presidential campaign of 1840 was in some respects the most remarkable the country has ever seen.

The great oddity of the campaign was the log cabin, the corn and the cider barrel. The log cabin idea originated with an opposition paper which had said slyly that "William Henry Harrison better go back to Indiana and stay there in his log cabin drinking hard cider."

The taunt was taken up by Harrison's followers. Log cabins sprang up all over the Union. In every town there was a house warming, and the log cabin was thrown open to the public amid general rejoicing.

It was a campaign of oddities. Some of the symbols have never been surpassed for genuine absurdity.—Magazine of American History.

SIMPLICITY IN THE HOME.

There is Such a Condition as Having Too Many Furnishings.

Many nervous, irritable, dissatisfied, unhappy women would become calm and contented if they would store, give or throw away half of their belongings. Some have abandoned elegant residences and taken their families into hotels or boarding houses who could have continued to keep up their homes if, instead of giving up their houses themselves, they had done away with the superfluous furnishings.

Some one, often the mistress herself, must clean and care for every article of furniture, no matter how humble its use or how ornamental its function, and this round of duties proves many times to be a grievous burden on delicate shoulders.

There is such a thing possible as having too many utensils and tools to work with, so that taking out, replacing and keeping them clean and in order add to the daily labor. Too much furniture in a room, so that walking through it seems a perilous attempt to steer a course without disaster, too many garments to wear, for time is consumed in caring for them, and even in choosing what to put on.—Suburban Life Magazine.

A Widow's Curious Cap.

A very curious cap forms the "widow's weeds" of the Australian aborigine in one part of the great island continent. Near the northeast bend of the Murray river it is the custom for widows to attend upon the tombs of their departed lords. Then after shaving their heads they cover them with pipe clay kneaded into a paste. The head is first covered with a net to prevent the clay from sticking too tightly to the skin, a misfortune which is partly averted by the amount of grease with which every Australian native is anointed. A layer of this clay several inches in thickness is plastered over the head and when dry forms a sort of skullcap exactly fitting the head on which it was molded. As it weighs several pounds, the widow's cap cannot be comfortable.

Weather Vanes.

The best weather vanes are made with the greatest nicety and precision, so that they balance perfectly and turn with the least possible wear. The vane is, of course, longer on one side of the socket than on the other or it would not turn with the wind, but its weight is the same on both sides. If it is a narrow vane, for instance, the weight of the solid head is easily made equal to that of the longer, projecting but thinner feather end, and all vanes, whatever they may be, are balanced as to weight and so adjusted that they turn easily and with the least possible friction.

Understanding.

A well known artist tells of an amusing colloquy in an art gallery where two young women were viewing a copy of Millet's "Gleaners."

One of the young women was carried away by her enthusiasm. "How beautiful! How wonderful! What art!" she exclaimed. "Above all, how artistic!"

Then, after a pause, she said, "But what are those people doing?"

Drawing nearer to read the title, she was enlightened. "Oh, now," she added, "I see! Gleaning millet! How wonderful! How beautiful!"—Exchange.

A Substitute.

Mrs. Crabshaw—When the woman next door returned after being away a week her husband was just contemptible enough to say that he hadn't missed her. Crabshaw—I don't suppose he did. He had the talking machine going all the time.—Judge.

Musical Note.

Tardy Arrival at the concert—Have I missed much? What are they playing now? One of the Elect—The "Ninth Symphony." Tardy Arrival—Goodness! Am I as late as that?—Harper's Bazar.

Her Advantage.

"Your daughter has an angelic disposition." "Yes; we always let her have her own way about everything."

An institution is the lengthened shadow of one man.—Emerson.
