LIGHT AND THE EYES.

Glaring or Dazzling Effects May Result in Permanent Injury.

In a paper read before the International Exposition of Safety and Sanitation in New York city G. H. Stickney called attention to the fact that the most common defect in lighting is excessive glare and absence of diffusion. Glare may emanate directly from the light source or be reflected to the eye by a glossy surface; it can also be caused wherever excessive contrast of intensity appears in adjacent fields of vision. The dazzling effect is unpleasant and interferes with seeing. Under continued exposure eye strain and even permanent injury to the eye may result.

An unshielded light hung over a machine is a common source of eye fatigue. The glare may not be so evident on first glance, but when the workman's eyes have been subjected to such light for a long time discomfort and inability to see result.

Glare from glazed paper, desk tops or polished metal often induces eye trouble, headache and other indisposition, though the sufferers may not be aware of the cause. The remedy is to change the relative positions so that the reflected light is kept out of the eyes as much as possible and to enlarge the dimensions of the light source.—Engineering Record.

Popular Judgment of Genius.

Falre's first entomological work gained the honors of the Institute of France and a prize for experimental physiology. His extraordinary absorption in his entomological pursuits was a source of perplexity to those among whom he dwelt. One morning he was passed by three women vintagers on their way to work. When they passed him again at sunset he was still seated on the same stone, with his eyes fixed on the same spot, whereupon he saw one of them tap her forehead as she whispered, "A poor innocent." But more than one country guard suspected that he was up to no good in his mysterious wanderings about the countryside. However, the sight of the little dark ribbon of the Legion of Honor, with which he had been decorated by the French government, was generally sufficient to allay suspicion.—Western Star Gazette.
