

KINKS IN BILL POINTED OUT

LAURGAARD STEERS CLEAR OF IT

Tumalo Project Engineer May Resign at Close of Year and Then New Bill Would Block the Appointment of His Successor.

O. Laurgaard, Project Engineer of the Tumalo Project, when asked his opinion of the initiative measure now being circulated, whose objects are to abolish the office of State Engineer, abolish the Desert Land Board and abolish the water superintendents, assumed that non-committal air which lurks about mill-building lumbermen these days and sometimes becomes engineers.

"To tell the truth," said Mr. Laurgaard, "the move is a complete surprise to me. I had known nothing at all of it until I saw the newspapers last Tuesday, and I have never seen a copy of the proposed bill."

Mr. Laurgaard explained that his position was a delicate one. Whether he now came out for the bill, or ridiculed it, he would be open for criticism. Therefore, he chooses to remain silent regarding it.

Among other things, the bill proposes to appoint the engineer on the Tumalo Project as State Engineer, until 1915, his salary to be borne equally from the general state funds and from the "Tumalo Reclamation Fund." Just exactly what the last named fund is is not entirely clear. It was pointed out, but one fact does develop that promises peculiar results should the bill receive a favorable vote. Evidently Governor West, sponsor of the new bill, wants Lewis out as State Engineer and Laurgaard in, at least until 1916. But suppose Laurgaard quits at the end of this year?

When questioned in this regard, Mr. Laurgaard said:

"Yes, it is extremely probable that I shall resign at the end of this year. The construction work will be done. The rest of it will simply be a maintenance job, which any competent man, not necessarily an engineer, can handle. Rightfully, the present salary might be cut down considerably. If I am able to get a suitable position elsewhere, at constructive work, I most certainly shall take it at once after November, when the Tumalo work will be about done."

Should Mr. Laurgaard resign, as is probable, two things crop up that may be embarrassing to those who are backing the new bill.

First, the Tumalo act, creating that fund, etc., specifically states that the Desert Land Board shall appoint the Project Engineer. If the new bill abolishes the Desert Land Board, and the Project Engineer resigns, who is to appoint his successor? Apparently, point out those who deem the bill the result of personal malice—an entertaining legal tangle would evolve there.

It has been generally understood that Fred Wallace of Laidlaw is in line to have charge of the maintenance of the Project when the construction work is done and Mr. Laurgaard goes. Should he get the job and should the new bill go into effect then Mr. Wallace would become State Engineer, point out Wallace's friends.

NEARLY STRIKES MOUNTAIN

Rose Festival Balloon Almost Strikes Three Fingered Jack.

Although Central Oregon folks didn't know it, had they looked toward Three Fingered Jack early Friday morning they might have caught a glimpse of the balloon "Kansas City III" of the Portland Rose Festival racers up there close to the peak.

For, according to Roscoe Fawcett of The Oregonian, who was a passenger on the air craft, about 6 a. m., when a dense fog opened for a minute, the sky travellers found themselves within a very few feet of the ragged peaks of Three Fingered Jack, and escaped disaster only through quick work in throwing off sand bags and thus gaining altitude. Mr. Fawcett early this spring married Miss Winifred Abbott, who previously had been a guest here upon several occasions at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Allen.

HELD MEN WERE HERE.

Theodore Boerste and Martin Hallmeyer of Held were in town last week and did a lot of boasting for the Fourth of July celebration that the Pringle Flats Development Association intends to hold at the Flats this year. Incidentally they got generous contributions from Bend merchants, a dozen of whom subscribed prizes of various sorts for the many contests that will be held. One of the chief features will be a bucking and roping contest.

YOUNG FOLKS' MUSICAL

Miss Graves' Class Please Large Audience With Extensive Program.

The Music Story Program given by the pupils of Miss Eva Graves' Fundamental Music Training School occurred June 5th, and proved a most delightful event. Through error, mention of the entertainment was not made last week.

A very comprehensive and interesting program was rendered by the four graduates, Jeanette Keyes, Mildred Klela, Ida Niswonger and Gladys Sather. Miss Graves directed the exercises. Sather's Hall, where the young people performed, was crowded with an appreciative audience. Each of the four young musicians did her part excellently well, and there were no hitches in the program from embarrassment or other cause. Careful and clever training showed in all the work.
