THE LARGEST GLASS BUBBLE IN THE WORLD.

STEEL framework of the great dome of the Palace of Horticulture at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, 1915. The dome is the largest ever constructed, being 152 feet in diameter and 186 feet high and surmounted by a basket thirty feet in diameter, which will be filled with growing flowers. The dome, lighted from within by whirling colored lights, will resemble a huge fire opal.

GOOD ROAD DON'TS.

- Don't let the road drag feet. Don't cuss the mudholes. Clean the ditches. Don't despise sand-olay construction because it is cheap. Don't think that any negro laborer can build a model road. Don't consider the fee of a good engineer a useless extravagance. Don't think that a bond issue is going to liquidate itself. Safeguard the sinking fund. Don't believe that a good road once built will stay there forever. Provide for maintenance. Don't look upon all roads alike. Improve your main traveled roads first and attend to the by-ways later. Don't think that a good road can be built anywhere. Be sure your location is right and then go ahead. Don't forget that proper drainage is the first, second, third and thirty-seventh essential to a good road bed. Don't fail to house your road machinery during the winter. Why should road tools be allowed to rust out simply because they belong to the county?

JUDGING PAINTINGS.

Expert Advice on How to Go Through a Picture Gallery.

I should recommend you to go through a picture gallery as one seeking the face of a friend in a crowd and to let yourselves be led on by your sympathies. If you admire the work of a man, find out all you can about him; see his work as much as you can, especially his beginnings.

In our times a distinction is made between painting which is decorative and painting which is pictorial, which is, I think, an unfortunate distinction, and one which should not exist, for all pictures should decorate the walls or places on which they are placed. That this distinction should exist is perhaps our own fault in forgetting as we do sometimes that a picture should be agreeable to the eye in its color and masses—the good old painters never forgot that.

It seems to me that taste in a picture is something like natural good manners in man, not depending on the elements—the clothes—of the picture, but on the temperament it displays and the measure of its harmony with our acknowledged standards, for a man's picture reveals his outlook on the world and is in that sense a part of him. If we choose a person for a friend, we like him, let us say, to be simple and natural, reliable and without swagger. Whether he is rich or poor, grave or gay, does not matter so long as we can depend on him.

And it seems to me that a picture to be in good taste must have analogous qualities—that it should, like our ideal friend, be in accord with the best standards. It should be in harmony with the best we know.—From "Royal Academy Lectures on Painting," by George Clausen, R. A., R. W. S.
