NEWS OF WAR IN TABLOID FORM

The story of the European war which burst into being less than two weeks ago is told, briefly, by the chronological outline given herewith. Austria quarreled with Serbia. Russia armed. Germany, an ally of Austria, declared war on Russia. France, ally of Russia, goes to war with Germany. Then Germany invades Belgium, seeking entry to France, and thereby breaking treaty obligations of neutrality. Thereupon England declares war on Germany. Belgium joins France, Russia and Great Britain. Denmark has been drawn into the conflict, siding with the British-Russian-French allies. The Balkan states are at each others throats. Turkey, apparently is prepared to fight as an ally of Austria, hoping to regain lost footholds in Europe. Italy, although a member of the Triple Alliance with Germany and Austria, remains neutral, refusing to assist them. It seems probable Germany will declare war on Italy. Spain is neutral, and Portugal is strongly pro-British. Japan, apparently, is about to declare war on Germany, and seize great German possessions in the Far East. The United States has no entangling alliances, and apparently is bent only upon sustaining the integrity and neutrality of China from attack of any of the combatants, a result of which might be far-reaching difficulties in the East, and, probably, new revolution in China. The only serious operations to date have occurred in Belgium. The Germans, attempting to cross that country, have met heroic resistance at the town of Liege, where, apparently, they have been held in check. British and French troops are joining the Belgians. A great battle is expected at Namur, Belgium. There is general fighting along the Russian-Austrian frontiers, and between Austria and Serbia. France has invaded the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine, lost by it to Germany in 1870. A number of minor naval engagements have occurred, much shipping has been seized, probably 40,000 men have been killed, and the commerce of the world has been paralyzed. CHRONOLOGY OF CHIEF EVENTS IN WAR TO DATE. JUNE 28.—Pan-Slavic propaganda, aftermath of Balkan-Serbian wars, culminated in assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to Austrian throne, and his wife. Austria accuses Serbia of encouraging conspiracies against dual monarchy, and, in fact, abetting the assassination. Certain acts of reparation and a complete and unreserved apology demanded by Austria of Serbia. July 27.—Serbia replies, acceding to almost all of the demands, offering to submit her reply to The Hague tribunal if not satisfactory to Austria. July 28.—Austria informs Serbia reply is unsatisfactory and on same day declares war on Serbia formally. Same day troops invade Serbia. Within 24 hours Belgrade, capital of Serbia, is bombarded. July 29.—Russia begins mobilization for the assumed purpose of helping Serbia. July 30.—Germany demands that Russia explain mobilization movements. July 31.—At midnight Germany addresses ultimatum to Russia, demanding demobilization at once. Time limit set for August 1, noon. August 1.—At high noon Russia refuses Germany's demand and German ambassador presents formal declaration of war on Russia. England and France, other members of the triple entente with Russia, intercede in hope of restoring peace. On same day German troops invade Luxembourg, an independent duchy. France mobilizes informally, setting formal mobilization for August 2. State of war declared between France and Germany. German and Russian troops engage in border skirmishes. August 2.—Two German armies enter France. Russian troops enter Germany proper. Germany's action taken for blow at France before Russia can mobilize. British cruisers begin to blockade the Baltic. Great Britain indicates her guarantee of neutrality protection to Belgium will be kept. Great Britain informs Germany that German fleet must not attack French shipping or French coast. August 3.—France declares war exists with Germany and formal declaration is not necessary. Passports demanded. August 4.—Great Britain declares war on Germany, following an exchange of notes, in which England demands of Germany that Belgian neutrality be observed, and imposing other conditions. Germany replied she was invading France. August 5.—Austria formally declares war against Russia. August 7.—Italy reiterates she must remain neutral. China and glassware, Skuse Hardware Company.—Adv. Bend Butter is Best on Bread.

M'PHERSON DENIED PARDON

His Mother Asks West in Vain for Son's Release. SALEM, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Martha McPherson, a resident of Prineville, created a scene at the office of Governor West yesterday afternoon after her hopes of getting a pardon for her son, Logan, were dashed. Governor West had left. His private secretary Miss Fern Hobbs, was alone in the reception room with Mrs. McPherson. The latter hysterically demanded another interview with the governor. When refused, she declared she would kill herself, and went out in the hall, where she fell in a faint. She recovered after a while, and Miss Hobbs called a taxicab and had her taken to the Oregon Electric depot, where she took a train for home. Logan McPherson, the woman's son, was convicted of a criminal assault. His mother was convinced of his innocence, and his case was taken to the supreme court, where the verdict of the lower court was affirmed. While the case was being appealed, and up to the present time, young McPherson has been out on bail. It is understood that the authorities of Crook county held him there with a view of having Governor West pass on the case on his return from the east. With this hope abandoned, McPherson must be brought to the penitentiary to serve his term. WILL MAKE EXHIBITS. Mrs. Florence Lunbeck Powelson returned from her Sisters ranch Sunday, bringing with her her mother, Mrs. Smith. They will live in the Shouse residence, which Mrs. Powelson recently purchased. Mrs. Powelson is busy preparing exhibits of hand decorated china for three different fairs; the Crook County Fair at Prineville, the Sisters Fair and the State Fair at Salem.

Your Home Merchant

Few of us stop to consider what a convenient vehicle the home merchant is to the general public, or his value as a citizen. The merchant is expected to carry everything in stock that the theoretical or practical mind can think of; maintain a quick and faultless service both at the counter and in the delivery department; laugh at our wit and cry at our hard luck tale; accept our small payments and extend our credit; carry the unemployed and unsuccessful over the hard places; support all public benefits and boost for new business ventures that might be beneficial to the growing town, and, above all things, have a total disregard for his own personal convenience. In return for all this, we, as public spirited citizens should show our appreciation by spending our money at home instead of buying our supplies from mail order houses. If we all do this the merchant could carry a larger and better assortment of goods, maintain a more efficient service, and give employment to a larger staff. If an industry is started in a town with the same number of employees as the average store supports, the industrial establishment immediately becomes the object of much praise, while our old benefactor the merchant, is little noticed. Let us show our appreciation of the public benefactor and give the Home Town Merchant our loyal support. A CUSTOMER. Meals at the Altamont 25 and 35 cents.—Adv.
