NEW RAILROADS SAYS McMURRAY

D. W. OFFICIAL ENDORSES CENTRAL OREGON

In Address Here Monday O. W. Official Glowingly Expresses His High Opinion of Bend and Faith in Its Future—Promises Development

Of the speeches at the banquet given to the Ad Clubbers Monday night that of William McMurray, of the O. W. R. & N. Co., showed the best appreciation of the resources of Central Oregon and the future of Bend. It was preceded by verses written by Mr. McMurray in which he called this section the Land of Taboo, thereby indicating his recognition of the part being played here by W. D. Cheney, Taboo of the Emblem Club. The speech in full was as follows:

S. E. ROBERTS BADLY BURNED WHILE PLAYING "VOLCANIST"

But Despite Burns He Stays at Post and Fires Other Charges, Insuring The Success of Entertainment.

Only one accident marred the two days of entertainment accorded the Portland visitors, and even that one did not come to their attention to mar their enjoyment, until after they had returned to their homes.

During the "eruption" at Lava Butte, S. E. Roberts, who had charge of firing black powder and dynamite at the top of the cone, was severely burned. There was a pleasant touch of heroism about the accident, too, for although his hands were badly burned and his face painfully scorched, Roberts stuck at his post and succeeded in reaching the plunge batteries and firing the rest of the explosives under his charge. And even then, fearing that acknowledgment of the accident would mar the pleasure of the Portlanders, the injured man did not put in an appearance until all the visitors had gone. News of the accident was also unmentioned at the banquet later in the evening.

A high wind was blowing, and when Roberts lit the fuse connecting with an open furrow filled with black powder, it was blown from his hands into a mass of powder, which flared up and burned him. He was brought to town in T. H. Poles' car and received medical attention. He is able to get around, but will not have the use of his hands for some time.

KILLS BIG BEAR.

A. A. Gilmore, homesteader in the Millican valley, killed a big bear when out deer hunting last week on the side of Pine Mountain. He was crossing G. F. Hartwig's homestead when he ran into the big fellow and succeeded in killing him with three shots from a 30-20 automatic. Brim weighed about 300 pounds and furnished fresh meat for all the settlers in the neighborhood for several days.

DIVISION GOES ON THE BALLOT

COURT MADE ORDER FRIDAY

Special Session of County Court Held to Act on the Two County Division Petitions—Springer's Tardiness Makes the Action Necessary

What was feared for a time to be a deep laid scheme to keep the county division question off the November ballot caused a little worry in the north and south west sections of the county on Wednesday and Thursday. Later it appeared that there was no plot whatever and the desired order was made by the county court, assuring that the voters will have a chance to express themselves when the time comes two months hence.

The fear of the plot arose when the delegations from Bend and Madras with the Deschutes and Jefferson petitions found that County Judge Springer apparently did not intend to hold any session of the county court this month. Indeed, on Wednesday it seemed that Commissioner Brown was in alliance with Springer for neither of them was on hand to open the session that day, Commissioner Bayley being the only one at his post. Brown turned up on Thursday but still there was no judge and many who had come to the county seat to transact their business gave it up and left.

Friday morning court house officials had a telephone message from Judge Springer, who was then at Sisters, that he would be in Prineville at noon. Friday afternoon a special session of the court was called and the necessary orders made on both the division petitions.

No word has come to Bend yet giving the reason of the judge's non-appearance on the first day of the session but it is not believed that it was the result of any frame-up on the part of those who are opposed to the division of the county. Judge Springer evidently forgot that the court met on the first Wednesday of the month and when he woke up he hurried to Prineville as fast as he could. Commissioner Brown did the same thing and the special session of the court on Friday made everything all right.

Preliminary Rally.

A Commercial Club house warming and preliminary rally was held in the new club rooms in the Johnson building Thursday night at which the attention as it then presented itself was the chief subject of discussion. The absence of President Keyes necessitated the shortening of the program somewhat. Remarks were made by H. H. De Armond and R. W. Sawyer, the former telling of the county court situation in Prineville and the latter discussing questions and the chances of success. Further meetings are planned for the coming weeks both in Bend and other towns in Deschutes county and the campaign promises to be a warm one.

COUNTY WARRANTS CALLED.

County Treasurer Jordan has given notice that all registered general fund warrants up to and including registry number 260 will be paid when presented. Interest ceases September 10.

EXCURSION IS NOTABLE SUCCESS

AD MEN'S SPECIAL TRAIN BROUGHT 103 PROMINENT PORTLANDERS---TWO DAYS ARE WHIRLWIND OF ENTERTAINMENT---NEWSPAPERS ECHO ENTHUSIASM

Sunday morning shortly after seven o'clock the special train of the Portland Ad Club excursion rolled into Bend and 103 of the liveliest visitors any town ever had disembarked and advanced in force upon the community. Thereafter until late Monday night these excursionists were the guests of Bend, and for forty hours they were kept tolerably busy, finally leaving with every evidence of having had a royal good time.

Two weeks ago the Portland men in charge reported they expected to bring about 50 on the excursion; adverse business conditions made such junketing difficult. A week ago they placed the figure at 75. Saturday night they wired that the maximum number, which had been set at 100, was exceeded, and even at that many were turned away.

Not only in numbers did in quality did the Portland guests honor Bend for every one in the party was a professional man or the head of a business—in other words, his own boss. And they represented all the leading names of Portland's business life as well as the Commercial Club, the Rotary Club and other organizations.

In addition to the Emblem Club and the Commercial Club the Portlanders were the guests of the Tumalo Project and of the people of Sisters. They were breakfasted at the Emblem Club, lunched at Sisters, dined at Camp Six, automobile and lunched by the Commercial Club and finally banqueted in the new Emblem Club hall specially erected for the occasion. Incidentally, in their honor a fake volcanic eruption was pulled off at Lava Butte, the burlesque "nature man," Know Joles, impersonated by B. A. Stover, appeared from the tall timber, and all hands were arrested and clad in clownish garb. And on their part they contributed to the gaiety of the occasion by initiating a score of local men into the Order of Muts, a proceeding which left all concerned sore with laughter, and they honored Bend with a delightfully attractive and impressive ceremony, the Planting of the Rose.

The excursion was the largest ever made from Portland to a town the size of Bend, and by the universal admission of all the visitors was the most unique and enjoyable affair of the kind participated in by the Admen. The junket to Bend resulted directly from a visit made to the Ad Club last May by the Emblem Club.

At the breakfast table Sunday morning each Portlander found a card with the following announcement, acknowledging the co-operation of the people of Bend, and others, in the general entertainment: "Gentlemen of the Ad Club:

"It has fallen to our pleasant lot to give you your first welcome and to entertain you at breakfast and in the evenings of both days; but the Emblem Club is a social and dining club, pure and simple; and we wish you to understand that, from the time you leave the Club each morning until you return to the Club in the evening, you are not in the hands of the Emblem Club who accompany you, but are experiencing a voluntary and spontaneous hospitality on the part of the whole population of Bend, of neighboring towns, and even of the farmers of Central Oregon, that fills our hearts with pride and gratitude, and should be to you an evidence of what must be the future of any region the destiny of which rests in the hands of such people.

THE EMBLEM CLUB.

Some conception of the impression made upon the Rose City guests is echoed in the following extracts taken from the many press reports of

SISTERS AND LAIDLAW HOSTS

JOIN IN EXCURSION ENTERTAINMENT

After Arrest in Bend, Lavish Hospitality at Sisters and Camp Six Delights Admen Clad in Burlesque Prison Garb as Jail Substitute

From the time when the first plans were made for the reception of the Admen those in charge here agreed that the excursion should not be an exclusively Bend affair. It was decided to offer neighboring communities the opportunity to share in the entertainment of the Portlanders, so that others would reap the benefits together with Bend; so best would Bend's guests return after getting a real introduction to a representative portion of Central Oregon.

Sisters and Laidlaw, the latter represented by the Tumalo Project, at once fell in with the plan and enthusiastically joined with Bend in the entertainment of the excursionists.

So Sunday morning, as soon as the Admen were breakfasted, they started, in 21 cars, for Sisters. But as the autos speeded down Wall street each was arrested and the occupants hustled to the court of J. A. Eastes, Justice of the Peace. There, under the prosecution of V. A. Forbes and Charles Erskine, the speeders were speedily found guilty of violating Ordinance Number 45, and sentenced to jail. But at the lockup it was explained that there weren't enough cells to go around and that all hands would be freed if they wore convict suits of lurid blue and yellow. After donning the costumes, the Admen then were released by Chief of Police Roberts, and his deputies, R. M. Smith, Claude Mannheim, Ralph Bartlett, Joe McKay and Harry Mangin, and proceeded on their way westward.

Close to Sisters, in a beautiful grove of pines close to a stream, the hospitable westend residents had prepared the biggest kind of a generous picnic lunch, presided over by the ladies of the community. There were chickens, and pies, and cakes and a

JUDGE GALLOWAY HERE

Meets Local Odd Fellows Friday Night.

William Galloway, Grand Master of Odd Fellows of Oregon, on an official tour of 25 lodges of the State, was in Bend Friday and Saturday. At an open meeting of the lodge Friday evening he delivered an address upon the magnificent qualities of Odd Fellowship and expressed pleasure at the condition of the local lodge. Following the address refreshments were served.

Judge Galloway, in addition to being Grand Master of the Odd Fellow lodges in Oregon, is Justice of the Circuit Court and is candidate to succeed himself at the coming general election.

It was his decision, sustained by the Supreme Court, that permitted the construction of the Tumalo Project.

180 GUESTS AT CLUB BANQUET

A HAPPY DEDICATION FOR NEW HALL

Speaking Program is Excellent and Songs Make Hit—Many Novel Effects in Decorations and Lighting are Added Attractions.

The crowning feature of the two days of fun and sightseeing came Monday night, when for the first time the large new hall, erected for this occasion and just completed, was opened and the Portland guests were banqueted by the Emblem Club.

In size, in quality of menu, attractiveness of surroundings and general uniqueness the dinner proved to be the most notable event of the kind ever staged in Central Oregon, and without doubt it left a memory of glowing good fun and bounteous hospitality in the minds of the guests of the evening. There were 180 at the

DISCUSSION OF INITIATIVE LAWS FOUND INTERESTING

Commercial Club Meeting Entertaining—Three More Measures To Be Taken Up Next Saturday.

The Commercial Club meeting and luncheon Saturday was one of the most interesting and entertaining yet held, the gathering listening to the first of the discussions of the measures to be voted on in November.

Three subjects were taken up on Saturday, the constitutional amendment allowing the state to lend its credit for the construction of irrigation and power projects, the amendment requiring voters to be citizens of the United States, and the one creating the office of lieutenant governor. C. S. Hudson and R. W. Sawyer took the two sides of the first question, C. W. Erskine and J. A. Eastes the second, and H. C. Ellis and H. H. De Armond the third. The last speaking was wholly extemporaneous, the subject being assigned to Messrs. Ellis and De Armond at the luncheon, on its appearing that the third set of selected speakers were not able to be present.

Next Saturday at the Wright Hotel luncheon three more topics will be taken up as follows:

On abolishing the Desert Land Board, A. O. Walker, affirmative; G. P. Putnam, negative; on the Paulsen Parker dentistry bill, Dr. J. H. Conrath, affirmative; Dr. H. Ferrell, negative; on the Eastern Oregon State Normal school, J. B. Shouse, affirmative and C. S. Benson, negative.

As these discussions are not only interesting in themselves but furnish the voter with ideas on the measures on which he must vote at the coming election it is hoped that every man and woman voter in town will make a point of attending the coming meetings. The discussion of the law abolishing the Desert Land Board next Saturday is expected to be of special interest to the settlers in this neighborhood.

How to Describe a Lost Ball Game

(Crook County Journal.)
September 3, 1914.

The rejuvenated Bend ball team outplayed the Central Oregon champions and won easily, 6 to 2, last Sunday. String Fleming, U. of O. pitcher, twirled a great game for the losers but his one bad inning, coupled with ragged support, gave Putnam's Pets their first real victory over the county seat ball team within the memory of the present generation.

The features of the game were the fielding of Paul and the hitting of Van Meter for Bend and the kindergarten base running of Prineville. The last three innings were played with a ball minus a cover, as the entire supply of the village was used in the first part of the game. Bend management apologized and promised that a supply would be obtained from Prineville or Portland for the next game.

Bend was the scene of riotous joy after the game. Old men declared that never in their memory had so miraculous an event occurred. Mayor Miller declared a civic holiday, cannons were fired and the band played "Bend Forever."

(The Bend Bulletin.)
September 9, 1914.

The rejuvenated Prineville ball team outplayed the Bend champions and won easily 16 to 3 last Sunday. Norval Springer, regular Bend pitcher, twirled a great game for the losers but his few bad innings coupled with ragged support, gave Gray's Gosling's their first victory over the rail town ball team within the memory of the present administration.

The features of the game were the fielding of Tetherow and the hitting of Bowman for Prineville and the kindergarten batting of Bend. The last three innings were played on a diamond covered with "rust" as the entire water supply of the village was guarded by the hat boy, which wasn't much. Prineville management apologized and promised that a supply would be obtained from the Deschutes river at Bend for the next game.

Prineville was the scene of riotous joy after the game. Old men declared that never in their memory had so miraculous an event occurred. Mayor Clifton declared a civic holiday, cannons were fired and the band played "Prineville Village."

Stretch the Value of Your Income

There are two ways of stretching your income—a wrong way and a right way.

You and your wife can pull on it from opposing ends until the long-suffering pay envelope gasps for breath. That's the wrong way.

Or you and the better half can get right down to brass tacks and work both ends against the middle so successfully that your income will stretch to a healthy bank account with us. That's the right way. Try it.
