OUR PEACE PRESIDENT.

In our own political world, the European war has brought out two important facts. One is that the United States is fortunate beyond belief in the character and ability of its Peace President. The other is the speedy quietness of the sudden change in the world's affairs, due to the war, has placed upon long-continued Republican attacks upon the Wilson administration.

Under great stress the United States has found a worthy leader. In our own preeminent plea that we may be kept from entanglement in the world war, we can look to the President with certainty that no stone will be left unturned to insure our neutrality. His actions of the last year guarantee our freedom from the awful effects of war. Fortunate are we indeed that the vacillating politician Taft, or the fight-seeking Roosevelt, is not at the helm!

In these days big with destiny, when world's history is in the making as never before, it is inspiring to regard a Chief Executive who has the bigness to bury politics, to abandon effort for mere party advancement, and, even at the risk of personal political injury, to turn his back on the ballot box and direct his thoughts unswervingly to the problems of the nation.

And that is what Woodrow Wilson is doing. He has refused to take the stump in behalf of Democratic candidates at the November elections. He has said, in effect, that such things as local politics and partisan battles are too insignificant for notice now, when the large responsibilities of the country as a whole in this time of world crisis, demand his undivided attention.

Here are extracts from the President's reply to Representative Dornum's request that he take the stump next month: read them—they show, we think, the biggest spirit evidenced in national political life since the Civil War:

"America is greater than any party. America cannot properly be served by any man who for a moment measures his interest against her advantage. The time has come for great things. These are days big with destiny for the United States, as for the other nations of the world."

"A little wisdom, a little courage, a little self-forgetful devotion may, under God, turn that destiny this way or that. Great hearts, great natures will respond. Even little men will rejoice to be stimulated and guided and set an heroic example."

"Parties will fare well enough without nursing if the men who make them up and the men who lead them forget themselves to serve a cause and set a great people forward on the path of liberty and peace."

And think for a minute, how the war has knocked the props from under much of the anti-Wilson propaganda.

The first thing canny Roosevelt did when he returned from South America was to attack the administration's foreign policies; they, generally speaking, were the puniest link in the Democratic administrative chain, and appeared the most unpopular. The "weak" course pursued in Mexico was grilled mercilessly, and the ridicule that course sustained at the hands of European observers was hammered home.

But what of all this today? The Mexican policy is splendidly vindicated. Mexico is at peace, the foreign critics are engaged in a hellish war, and the final dying whispers of the howlers at home have been drowned by the exultant praise of the millions who realize where we might be today if a different policy had been pursued.

And the tariff, too. It, too, has been knocked out as a Republican argument. The commerce of the world has been disrupted. Our import and export business is totally upset; probably it never again will regain its old normal lines, for the war will remake (and vastly stimulate) our national commercial life in its relations with the other nations. No figures can be produced to show that such and such a schedule did this and so. No arguments can be advanced blaming lack of prosperity to tariff reductions. Our strategic position as a well-stocked merchant selling goods to all the world is assured—and it will be a starving eager world that must buy our products. Compared to the distress of all our neighbors, our substantial safety and coming great prosperity are incomparable matters of congratulation. And as a political weapon the over-worked tariff has gone to the scrap heap, while the banking reforms instituted under Wilson came in the nick of time to lighten the financial problems of the last six weeks.

Four hundred and fifty thousand dollars is available for irrigation development in this territory. Unless some practical use is found for it before the first of the year it is probable that the money will be tied up elsewhere by Congress. Therefore it is most desirable that every effort be made to adopt some plan for its utilization hereabout. A report is now prepared, and will be issued, perhaps in a few days, regarding a new "west side unit," embracing a tract of land north of the Tumalo Project. It is understood, although nothing definite is yet available, that the project is a very feasible one, and that its development is to be urged by the engineers. Now that the North Canal proposition has blown up, because of the vast difference in the value of the works completed as seen by the C. O. I. and the Government, it is highly desirable that the next best thing for this territory be taken up.

Don't Be Bothered with Coughing. Stop it with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It spreads a soothing, healing coating as it glides down the throat, and tickling, hoarseness, hacking are quickly healed. Children love it—tastes good and no opiates. A man in Texas walked 15 miles to a drug store to get a bottle. Best you can buy for croup or bronchial coughs. Try it. Patterson Drug Co.—Adv.

WAR NEWS
THE PAST WEEK

The German retreat before the advancing English and French forces in the north eastern districts of France has continued for the past week. In some instances the retreat has been almost a rout, many prisoners being captured with large stores of supplies and numerous pieces of artillery. Today a rumor states that the German general commanding the right wing has been captured with a large body of troops. It was the impetuosity of this commander that brought the Germans into the situation in which they now find themselves, he having pressed forward with his army too far ahead of his support.

According to tactical experts the present German position is the one they should have been in had they not attempted to find an easy way into France through the neutral Belgian territory.

The Belgians have been harassing the Germans near Louvain and it is expected that soon they will be able to return to Brussels.

Conflicting reports come from the German east boundary where the Russians are moving forward toward Berlin. It seems undisputed that the Russians have beaten the Austrians severely and today comes the news that the entire left wing of the Austrian army with its German support has been trapped between two rivers and faces annihilation or surrender. The people of Austria are becoming disheartened and it is believed that she may ask for peace soon. The allies have agreed to make no peace except when acting together.

It has been admitted by the British Admiralty that the cruiser which had been reported sunk by a mine was in reality destroyed by a German submarine. A British submarine is now reported as having sunk a German cruiser off Helgoland. There has been no other naval activity in the North Sea but in the Baltic an engagement is taking place between the Russian and the German fleets. Its result is not yet known.

Turkey has finally decided to remain neutral, having been told by England, according to reports, that if she entered the war it would mean the end of her independence. Italy remains neutral although the sympathy of the people is wholly with the allies.

No news of importance comes from Kiao Chau. The Germans have made a sally against the besieging Japanese but have been repulsed.

In South Africa English troops have taken possession of German territory and in the Pacific, German islands have been taken by the English.
