

CIRCUIT COURT RESULTS

Sheldon and McDaniels Convicted of Second Degree Murder.

PRINEVILLE, 2 P. M.—The chief results of Circuit Court procedure to date are two convictions of second degree murder. Ralph Sheldon, who murdered his newly born baby near Grizzly on June 10, entered a plea of guilty and received a life sentence. Gaylord McDaniels, up for retrial after conviction of second degree murder for killing Herman Poch last year, was again found guilty. His sentence has not been announced.

John McPherson was again found guilty of horse stealing, on retrial. His sentence probably will be announced today.

The joint indictment against Mrs. Scoggia and Henry McDowell for the murder of Avery G. Scoggia was severed. McDowell is now being tried for murder and Mrs. Scoggia's case has been postponed until the December term.

The Crook County Fair opened today, with a very light attendance, and apparently, little prospect of representation from the west side.

AGED MASON DIES

Funeral of Hugh Cooper Held on Sunday from Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services over the body of Hugh Cooper were held at the Presbyterian church on Sunday with the pastor, H. C. Hartranft, officiating. Mr. Cooper had been a Master Mason for 53 years and the services on Sunday were in charge of the Bend lodge of that order.

Mr. Cooper came to Bend from Vinita, Oklahoma, about seven months ago in search of health. For a time the change seemed to be beneficial to him but since June he failed rapidly and was confined to his bed to the end. His wife survives him, as do seven children, four of whom, Roy, Edith, Lillian and Janet reside in Bend.

DROUGHT IS BROKEN.

The first heavy rain for over two months fell last night and this morning, there having been nearly half an inch, according to the rain gauge at the government station. There have been light rains in the past week but not enough to lighten up the ground for plowing. Last night's rain improves things materially for the farmer and has also laid the dust which had become very disagreeable in the recent wind.

The Portland Ad Club, during its stay in Bend, visited many points of interest. It became very necessary after the eruption at Lava Butte to look for the leading barber shop. They found it here. Were they right? D—right. An example worthy of imitation. The Metropolitan.—Adv.

estate manipulation. They may lay on the site of the traveler's camp selfish patent upon sun and soil and cascading water, careless of the puny lease-hold imposed by time. They may also fit expanse of opportunity to breadth of ideal and leave enduring self expression where they have lived.

A Community of Good Cheer. The young men of Bend have set up a log temple dedicated to hospitality and good cheer.

This is the Bend Emblem Club and the reason for it. The old name Farwell Bend they changed in implication to Welcome Bend. They must have conceded to Portland Ad Club members merit to be their guests under their own requirements, for last Sunday and Monday was spent with them.

The special train from Portland during Saturday night came to the more than cloud-high altitude that Bend is above Portland, and from the moment the sun and Emblem Club together welcomed the visitors the town was delivered to the most all-inclusive hospitality the Admen had ever experienced.

It was suggested by Dr. E. A. Pierce, a Portland physician, who made a speech, that on the highlands men had a million or so more red corpuscles to each cubic centimeter of blood than those who lived at the confluence of the Willamette and Columbia rivers, and each of those extra corpuscles must have aided in energizing the plan of the two days.

After the admen had been whiked in automobiles to breakfast at the Emblem Club house and before they had had a fair chance to admire the quaint architecture and the green lawn that slopes in the front toward the river, they were urged into machines whose drivers at once violated all speed regulations, were immediately arrested by competent cops, tried, jailed, uniformed in vivid yellow and blue. The uniform was the cause of their entire enterprise, for it caused the Admen to wear the colors of the Emblem Club in a dust excluding suit during the automobile tour that led west toward the mountains where the people of Sisters had spread tables under the pines ready to serve a chicken picnic dinner that everyone enjoyed.

Next call was at the Tumalo Irrigation Project, which as a piece of competent engineering giving assurance of very excellent home-making opportunities excited admiration and will be the subject of a special article in The Journal next Sunday. Even yet the Admen are talking about the dinner served at the project and the masterpiece of a giant cake that constituted both the feature decoration and a concluding dainty of the dinner.

Late return to Bend constituted no excuse for a late start next morning. The Emblem Club, which had extended its degree of the Order of the Honey Bee to some of the more conspicuous and fortunate of the party, was in return initiated into the Order of Muts, which, it must be explained, means Men United to Serve. Then came the planting of a Portland rose, that its beauty and fragrance might symbolize the sense of mutual interests and brotherhood intensified by the visit, and then those always ready automobiles took to the road again. The way Central Oregon automobiles sneer at ruts and laugh at hills is inexplicable to the valley mind. At Benham Falls, and a high point of rocks the Portlanders looked down upon the Deschutes, cast down over

Further down the road a very town-appearing sign indicated "Know Jones' First Camp," and on further

Lava Butte Performs. Even his performing "bear" did not hold attention for more than five minutes, however. Smoke rose out of a mountain to the west. Flames leaped from lava beds. Explosions jarred. Smoke enveloped Lava Butte. That which seemed to be boulders hurled high in air, exploded and re-exploded. The trio who sought shelter behind a tree experienced the terror inviting sensation of having the tree itself blown up. Flour-like substance covered them and they were ill prepared to resist the shouts of laughter at their discomfort. This seemed to be but was not an eruption. It was merely the Bend way of proving to the visitors that for their entertainment they were equal to any effort even to blowing off the top of a mountain.

No Adman will ever forget the banquet of last Monday night. Food was subordinated to the dignity and impressiveness of that occasion. No expense had been spared. The permanent banquet hall had been built for the occasion and it seated more than 200. The table furnishings were all new. The decorations of blue and gold were the colors of the club. The system and order were novel and the lighting effects almost magical. But there was no indication that expense had been incurred for the sake of ostentation. In such a setting a lesson was taught—the Emblem Club's obligation:

"Fide et fiducia—Fidelity to you; confidence in the future. If I deserve this emblem, I veil and efface your faults; I praise your virtues; I utter only wholesomeness and encouragement; I try to be brave, to be honest, to be kind and to be cheerful."

This would be a good climax, but there is a disposition to mention the rare personality of W. D. Cheney, why has communicated from his own ideals and standards the motif of the organization; to speak, too, of a sea of others whose contributions of time and genuine hospitality left better understanding that Bend is a very place to be welcomed to, and undoubtedly a hopeful place to dwell in
