THE GREAT WAR.

We who are so far away find difficulty in realizing the actual existence of the greatest war of history. Its very enormity, and its complicated nature and wide extent, make a fitting name impossible.

The facts are sparsely given us by our western metropolitan newspapers for two reasons. One is that remarkably few facts from the front are to be had, thanks to the censorship, and secondly trans-continental wire tolls, offer scant inducement to Pacific Coast editors when it comes to elaborating the war news.

So, in a way, we of the West miss much of the literary meat of the war, except as it drifts to us later, almost as history, in the magazines and reviews. And we might do well to remember that never in the story of the modern world was picturesque history so rapidly in the making as now.

The spirit of the day is written largely upon the pages of periodicals that come to us from across the Atlantic. Wonderfully interesting they are! The Illustrated London News, for instance, reflects the sentiment of Britain, which is waking to the fact that her greatest struggle is upon her.

An English rubber-tire maker urges patronage as follows: "Centrifugal tires are made in Germany by the enemy. Their purchase here assists him, while the use of any foreign tire diminishes employment for British workpeople."

Then here are lines from the advertisement of Blank, a great tea house: "In the High Court of Justice Mr. Justice Sankey granted an Interim Injunction restraining Lipton, Limited, their agents and servants, from publishing any words to the effect or substance that Blank & Co., or the directorate thereof, is composed of Germans, and that by purchasing their commodities the public is assisting the enemies of Great Britain."

And yesterday Briton and Teuton toasted each other!

WANTED: A HATCHERY.

The sportsmen of Central Oregon appreciate what the fish and game authorities of the state have done especially in the way of stocking the mountain lakes with trout, as described in this paper. But we do not feel that enough has been done for us. Somehow the promises never quite materialize. Whether it be the fault of some official, of the general board or of its representatives is hard to determine.

In the mean time we suggest, as we have suggested before, that there is no more fitting location in Oregon for a hatchery than here on the Deschutes. It would be economical. Why hatch at Bonneville for this territory? Why not do it here? Experts say the conditions are ideal. Certainly this region is entitled to a hatchery, and assuredly our streams and lakes, which serve the sportsmen of so vast a territory, need the trout. There is also, let us whisper, political expediency about the move.

And the facts of the matter are that we deserve that hatchery, we need it, and it is almost in our reach. Had we not better go after it? The Commercial Club and the Rod and Gun Club might best themselves, if no one else will or can.

The Universal Eight Hour Law is rank folly. Worse than that, it is a real menace to the prosperity of the working man and woman it pretends to protect. If it receives the endorsement of the voters thereafter no Oregon farmer can secure help for a working day of over eight hours, no mechanic employed on rush jobs can extend his working day, no employee, however anxious he be, can increase his earnings by extra-paid "over time" work, and no employer can look to his staff for such help in emergencies. On one hand earning power would be impaired, and on the other economy of production limited. Neither for women nor for men is there any virtue in the proposal. It is twaddle. Fortunately, the voters of the state appear to recognize the facts and seem to be preparing to defeat the measure overwhelmingly. But to make assurance doubly sure be sure that you vote "321 X No."

A CORRECTION.

State Engineer Lewis has written the following letter in comment on an editorial in The Bulletin of September 30.

Salem, Oregon, Oct. 3, 1914.

I have noted with interest the editorial in The Bend Bulletin for September 30th with regard to the North Canal and feel that I should take this opportunity of calling your attention to what appears to be an oversight with regard to the price to be paid the Central Oregon Irrigation Company as estimated by myself. The price of $165,400 did not include the water deliveries asked for by the company. The cost of making these deliveries has not been estimated and I have not considered the same for the reason that the United States Government would have nothing to do with this matter. It would therefore appear that the price now set by the Central Oregon Irrigation Company cannot be said to lie between that set by the Jacobs report and that set by myself. There is no way of comparing the figures.

I write this so that you may make whatever correction it seems desirable in your columns to the effect that there will be no misunderstanding as to what the figures mean.

Yours very truly, JOHN H. LEWIS.

WAR NEWS THE PAST WEEK

The week has brought no important changes in the European war situation.

Fighting has been extremely heavy all along the line where the Germans and the Allies face each other, and losses have been enormous. No decisive engagements have occurred, but it seems evident that the German troops have had slightly the worst of it, and some further withdrawals of their troops have been reported.

Austria appears to be overwhelmed by Russia, and reports from Russian sources continue to claim advances and victories for the Czar's forces. If these are accurate it is reasonable to suppose that before long Berlin itself will be threatened by the Russians.

Japan is besieging the German possession of Kiau Chau in China. All parts of the British Empire are rallying to the colors with unprecedented patriotism.
