NO NEW COUNTY.

Deschutes county is beaten.

It was beaten because, we honestly believe, many of the voters were misled. We regret the defeat, and we regret the methods that accomplished it. And we believe that very soon many of those who were persuaded to vote against the new county will have reason to regret their move and will see that they bit off their noses to spite their faces.

From the start Bend, and those affiliated with us in the cause, have made a clean fight. As time goes on it will be seen, and understood, that all the arguments advanced in favor of division were sound. Likewise, experience will prove that the lamentations of the anti-divisionists were ill-founded, just as impartial investigation will show that most of their campaign thunder was unwarranted, so far as truth is concerned.

We entertain the warmest appreciation for the loyal support and assistance of our friends. The splendid vote of several precincts showed a notable spirit of co-operation. It will be Bend's duty and our pleasure to see that full reciprocity is made as opportunity offers.

For those who voted against division we entertain no slightest rancor. The great majority honestly believed they were working for their best interests when they voted as they did. The fault lies chiefly with those who manufactured that belief. Ultimately a day of reckoning will come.

MUD SLINGING

Among all the dirty mire stirred up by the opponents of county division, perhaps nothing has a nastier smell than the following article, signed by J. N. Williamson, which appeared in the Crook County Journal last week.

Mr. Williamson writes: "Editor Journal.—The writer of this article has some 800 acres of land far enough south and west from this point to be within the proposed Deschutes county. Such being the case, the aforesaid writer feels as though he had a material interest in that portion of the new movement.

"To be entirely frank, he is absolutely and without qualification against the creation of Deschutes county at this time. These are his reasons:

"He does not want to pay 63 mills tax on every dollar's worth of property like those people do in Bend who are the head and ears of this whole costly movement.

"He knows that the very boosters who are trying to foist a new county upon those of us who have fixed investments in that region of the country, are doing it for the purpose of furthering their own temporary enterprise and that they will, in all probability, move on to other parts to pursue their questionable calling long before those of us who are trying to make that elevated and none too productive area produce an honest dollar can raise enough money, through taxation, to pay for the court houses, jails, etc., they have foisted upon us.

"The booster, remember, is a migratory bird. Little does he care for final results. His business is to handle the tenderfoot for a few square feet of good, solid lava, call it a town lot and get off with it. Sixty-three mills taxes are nothing to him. Dams, bonds for sewage, new counties and all are directly in his line. As long as they keep coming regularly, just so long he stays, preys upon the unwary and thrives. But as soon as the entire grist is ground and the rattle of the stones tell of an empty hopper, then it is that the boosting bird unfolds his wings, befools his nest and hies himself away to newer fields and greener pastures.

"This may not all happen to what is known as the 'Bend bunch.' Time only can tell—that is, tell the truth. But to the unsophisticated writer thereof, this whole Deschutes county movement seems only to be another effort on the part of Bend talent to unload more Bend lava, leaving as a final asset to the fixed and legitimate industry of that section of the country a fine assortment of broken-down dams, mill sites, bonds, court houses, counties, etc., to keep up and sustain—to sustain—how?

"Let those who have fixed investments within the boundaries of the proposed Deschutes county THINK WELL before they undertake to answer this question.

"As for me, I want none of it now, I had rather wait until we have feathered out before we leave the nest. I had rather wait until we have had time to examine and see how much of this noise is wind and how much of it is solid matter.

J. N. WILLIAMSON

Mr. Williamson is, of course, entitled to his opinion. If he had sound arguments against division he should have stated them. But why such malicious mud-slinging?

It is too bad that a gentleman with Mr. Williamson's rather solid record should exercise such methods. Unfortunately, but perhaps to be excused, the pity is that such bitter criticism naturally provokes consideration of its author's fitness to pass judgment.

Mr. Williamson refers to the "questionable calling" of the "Bend bunch." That bunch, insinuates Mr. Williamson in no uncertain terms, is a bunch of thieves, who will migrate when their dirty work is done. Further, we are accused of being "boosters."

To the last charge we plead guilty. Perhaps that is why in ten years Bend has sprung from nothing to Crook county's leading town, with the largest population, by far the greatest investment in buildings, and a citizenship which wins recognition and praise from far and near.

Yes, perhaps our calling is questionable, to a gentleman of Mr. Williamson's viewpoint. Honestly, with perseverance, with sincere faith in the ultimate greatness of Bend, we are creating a city here. Such attacks as Mr. Williamson's but make us more satisfied with our efforts, and show the outside world that we actually have something to provoke jealous slanders. So far as our migratory character is concerned, we dare say we will be here long after Mr. Williamson has physically gone, just as he already has sunk into oblivion because of his questionable abuse of the public trust as a member of congress which resulted in his indictment and political downfall.

After all, the letter is no more disreputable than its authorship, and Bend is complimented.

THE OUTLOOK.

The success of Jefferson county justifies the argument which was the basis for the movement for the creation of Deschutes county, i. e., that the north end was bound to separate and therefore the south west section must make the attempt. Local jealousy prevented a clear vision of this fact, or, seeing, the sections which opposed division preferred the situation which will arise with the separation of Jefferson over taking the position which they feared would be forced on them in Deschutes county.

It seems certain that what is left of Crook county will find itself in a difficult position next year. Even though all improvement work is stopped, taxes seem bound to be higher. When the voters against Deschutes county receive their tax bills next year we trust that they will ponder whether their wildest fears of the results of division were any worse than the situation in which they will find themselves.

Jefferson county will be watched carefully for the next few years. It is in a position to make itself a great factor in all Oregon division movements in the coming elections and we believe that the pre-election promises and predictions will be amply satisfied there.

LUCK IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

A Suggestion That Grated Upon the Camera Man's Nerves.

When the amateur photographer's friend asked him why he looked peeved the other was glad to explain.

"A friend of ours just asked me to come over and take a picture of her baby," he said. "She apologized for asking, which was unnecessary, because I was glad to do it, but she spoiled the beans by giving as her reason that I had such good luck taking pictures."

"Well, you do, don't you?" inquired the friend.

"There you go," the photographer exclaimed. "There is no such thing as luck in my photography. What vexes me is that every one seems to consider them inseparable.

"Photography is an exact science as running a survey nowadays with those who know how to handle a cam-

ers. With the photometer and exposure tables proper developer and a thermometer for determining its temperature, every last element of luck is removed from exposure and negative making. The same is true of the printing processes. You know in advance how much light you have and how much you need. Factorial tables tell you how long to leave a plate in the developer. Every step is timed with a stop watch. And that's why it annoys me to have people say that my art is a luck proposition.

"Before I had taken as many pictures as stand to my record now there was sometimes luck, mostly bad. Although as it appears to me at present, I got better results than I should have obtained. But if a man with a little experience and the proper outfit exercises as much intelligence as is necessary to boil eggs, photography is no longer a matter of luck, and I thank nobody to call me lucky."—Philadelphia Ledger.

SQUATTER IS ARRESTED

Settler Evicted From Forest Reserve Will Present His Side of Case.

PORTLAND, October 31.—Robert House of La Plua, Oregon has reached Portland in the custody of a deputy marshal, who arrested him on complaint of the Forest Service, for trespass on National Forest lands and for interfering with Forest Service administration.

It is stated that Mr. House has trespassed on certain lands on Davis Lake for over four years, and that his asserted claim to the land is without foundation, since the land was included in the Forest Reserve created by President Cleveland in 1893, one of the first reserves created in the United States. Mr. House claims the land as a homestead notwithstanding the fact that the Secretary of Agriculture has passed upon his application, under the Homestead Act, several times and has in each instance held the land to be non-agricultural on account of the adverse climate, soil, and other conditions which would prevent the practice of profitable agriculture.

It is stated that evil proceedings have been instituted so that Mr. House will have an opportunity to present his side of the case. The Forest Service officials report that Mr. House has rendered summary action necessary because of forcible interference with grazing permittees who were prevented by him from utilizing sheep range for which they had paid the required fees to the government, and because of refusal to discontinue his trespass.

METHODS OF REDMOND OPPONENTS OF DIVISION SCORED BY HOOD RIVER

Statements Alleging Hood River Suffered by Division Branded As Untrue by Leading Citizens There.

Whatever other results of the county division fight, it at least has established an unenviable reputation for the Redmond anti-divisionists led by Gay E. Dobson, so far as their willingness to stick to the truth is concerned.

Just at the close of the campaign when it would be next to impossible to reach the voters with a reply, the Dobson crowd mailed everyone information which boldly announced that Hood River had suffered greatly from division. The statement was "unsubstantiated" with a showing of figures and a battery of alleged "facts," all so presented as to appear truthful and conclusive.

However, the whole statement was misleading, and has stirred up a hornet's nest at Hood River, which rightfully considers itself maligned and lied about, while those voters who were fooled, as they study the truth, will see that they swallowed a lot of false information.

Hood River, it is understood, intends to go after the matter. Here at all events, is the statement hurriedly issued there, just in time to reach some of the Crook county voters. It was accompanied by letters from Hood River's leading citizens strongly endorsing its sentiments.

Hood River, Oct. 31, 1914. Whereas, a measure is now before the voters for the creation of a new County of Deschutes within the confines of Crook county, and whereas the Redmond Spokesman, the official organ of opposition to the creation of Deschutes county, located at Redmond, Oregon, has made statements that are very derogatory to Hood River county in its attempt to show that their separation from Wasco county has not been to the best interests of the residents and taxpayers of said Hood River county; stating among other things, that

First: Taxes have increased as a result of separation from Wasco county from $4 to 115 per cent.

Second: Hood River county is more torn by sectional strife and wrangling than any county in the state as a result of its separation from Wasco county.

Third: Hood River county is not prosperous and its population is rapidly decreasing as a result of its separation from Wasco county.

Fourth: County officials stated that in their opinion if the question of creating Hood River county was voted on today it would not carry.

Fifth: A banker from the city of Redmond has stated that on account of present high taxes the county refused to vote Columbia River Highway bonds until forced to do so by the threat of Samuel Hill and business men from Portland.

Therefore, he it is resolved, that we, taxpayers and officials in the county of Hood River, unreservedly condemn this misrepresenting of facts concerning the affairs of our county and brand the above statements as unfair, malicious and false:
