AUDIT OF BOOKS

Here is Mr. Howard's reply to that letter:

November 7, 1914.

Mr. G. P. Putnam,
Editor, Bend Bulletin,
Bend, Oregon.

Dear Sir:

"Yours of the 6th is at hand.

"I made no offer to allow an audit of the books, as I have not that authority.

"The matter has been taken up with our board of directors, and as soon as I hear from them, will advise you further.

"Yours very truly,

"ROSCOE HOWARD,
General Manager."

The Bulletin yesterday addressed another letter to Fred Stanley, president of the C. O. I. Company, again requesting access to the books for the state insurance department, feeling that in such a case it was the duty of this paper to proceed to do what it could to get justice for the settlers.

Should Mr. Stanley further delay the matter, and Mr. Howard continue to deny making an offer which a score of men here heard him make, it is understood that settlers will make every effort to get action from the state compelling the promised investigation.

Lake counties gave Forbes a plurality of about 200 votes and his lead in Grant county was even greater. As indicated by the returns Mr. Forbes' fight for county division injured him in hostile precincts.

Forecasts concerning the coming legislature in Portland papers, mention Mr. Forbes prominently as a possible candidate for the speakership of the House. However, the fact that Lair Thompson of Lakeview is slated for the presidency of the Senate may mitigate against another Central Oregon man's chances for the other position of honor.
