

NORTHWEST TO BE PROSPEROUS

A. L. MILLS IS MOST OPTIMISTIC

Portland Banker and Financial Authority Says Farmers Benefit Greatly and That Lumber Market Will Improve—Exposition to Help.

"In spite of the handicaps caused by unwise and freak legislation, I believe that times will improve by next Spring and that we will find ourselves fairly well out of the depression that has been recently apparent," says A. L. Mills, president of the First National Bank of Portland.

Farmers' Prosperity Factor.
"I believe that conditions will improve before next spring, first because the farmers of the Northwest are entering a year of prosperity that far exceeds that of the years preceding, and as the farmer prospers so prosper the rest of the people. Where we exported last year 25,000,000 bushels of wheat we will export this year 30,000,000 bushels, at prices about one-third greater than those of last year. This means that the farmer will have $25,000,000 this year as against $20,000,000 last year from his wheat crop alone.

"In the second place, Portland's industries are already beginning to show the evidences that they feel the approach of better times."

Mr. Mills pointed to the fact that the woolen mills in Portland, Oregon City and other parts of the state are running on full time night and day and will be obliged probably to put on additional forces and equipments.

Lumber Industry to Improve.
"The lumber industry," he continued, "which has been at its lowest ebb, I believe is ready to begin improving and within six months we shall see all the mills running on nearly full time on paying orders. The opening of the Panama Canal will throw open to our lumber dealers a vast market in the east.

"One firm here informed me the other day that it had just placed an order for 1,300,000 feet in Philadelphia and that it could be delivered there by way of the Panama Canal at $1 a thousand feet less than it could be delivered by rail in San Francisco."

Fair Likely to Help.
The Panama-Pacific Exposition he also pointed out as one of the factors that will produce good times. He noted that tourists have spent annually in Europe $150,000,000 and that this year the majority of that must come to the West Coast if it comes any place.
