SOME SUGGESTIONS.

At a time when the attention of this section is directed toward securing a half mill tax from the legislature for irrigation purposes it is a satisfaction to find that we are to have the assistance of powerful Portland organization in getting what we want.

If there is to be endeavor to forward irrigation in Oregon, certain suggestions as to an orderly manner of procedure may not be out of place.

First, everybody concedes the importance of bringing irrigable lands into cultivation; second, the vast majority of people believe it can and should be done only by the public authority.

What we should do immediately is this. This legislature should appropriate at least $450,000, as we now have a pledge from the federal government that it will apply a like amount to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior at such places as he may select in the State of Oregon.

This eliminates all local friction and allows the selection to be made by the Secretary, and the rivalry of those representing different projects will not interfere with the passage of the bill.

Meanwhile irrigation meetings should not merely adopt a lot of resolutions and then pass the subject on to the members of the legislature who know but little about the matter and only have forty days' time in which to consider and prepare laws on a most difficult and complicated subject.

THE WHEAT BOOM.

Wheat is selling at $1.50. The unprecedented price naturally makes everyone who depends upon land for his living wish that he had planted more last summer, or had held on to what he did raise until the price soared.

Wishes are the parents of action. Every farmer plans to devote more acre next year to wheat raising. The bonanza prices of the present is driving the country wheat crazy, and everyone who can is determined that when the selling season comes around again he will be provided with the grain bountifully and so be in a position to reap a golden harvest. In short, all the farmers of all the grain districts are planting, or will plant, more wheat than ever before.

The result is obvious. Next year will see a vastly greater production of wheat than did this, for the increased acreage, even with a normal yield, insures a larger total crop.

Therefore let Oregon farmers go slowly. Above all let them not abandon sure profit in any get-rich-quick gamble. It would be criminal folly for anyone to turn his back upon hogs, or cattle or diversified farming for the sake of a possible repetition of the high wheat price of today.

DOGS AND MUZZLES.

The sight of the newly muzzled dogs scraping their heads on the ground in their efforts to rid themselves of their wires and straps is bound to create a sentiment sooner or later, for the repeal of the muzzling ordinance.

It is natural that a dog should try to rid itself of its muzzle and natural that its efforts should arouse sympathy. To its owner in particular the idea of his dog having to wear a muzzle seems preposterous.

These views, however, are not the ones that should prevail. A serious epidemic exists in this county. That it has not touched Bend is our fortune.

The disease is spread by unmuzzled dogs and by coyotes. In time it will run itself out, especially if all dogs are kept muzzled.

The Bulletin has been charged from time to time with having been somewhat too industrious in the construction of saw mills on the Deschutes river and the placing of fish hatcheries at Bend.

COMMUNICATED.

To the Editor: There is a strong movement by members of the present legislature to abolish the Game Protection Fund by taking the license money paid in by hunters and anglers and put it into the General Fund.

Fishing and hunting in this state are attracting people from every part of the country. Maine values her fish and game resources at $20,000,000 a year; California at $10,000,000 a year.

SPELL OF THE PRAIRIES.

Where the Ocean of Land Seems Vaster Even Than the Sea.

I had believed that I realized the vastness of the United States without having actually traveled across the country, yet I had not realized it at all, and I do not think that any one can possibly realize it without having felt it in the course of a long journey.

For a long time I lay comfortably in my berth, gazing out at the appalling spread of land and sky. Even at sea the great bowl of the sky had never looked so vast to me.

Presently our craft—for I had the feeling that I was on a ship at anchor—got under way.

Now and then in the distance we could see cattle, like dots upon the plain, and once in a long time a horseman ambling along beneath the sky.

Bayonets in Battle.

The bayonet is used in warfare as much as ever. Its chief value is its moral effect upon a line of troops. The reasons why a comparatively small number are actually killed by the bayonet are that those charged first before the attack of those attacking are shot down or fall back before the concentrated fire.

The "University" of Ham.

The town of Ham has perhaps the most notable chateau in France. As ancient as Rheims cathedral, its enormous walls have held as prisoners Jean of Arc, Coudé, the Huguenot leader, and Prince Louis Napoleon after his attempt at Boulogne in 1840 to win over France.

The Fishing Banks.

Newfoundland would be nothing without that great submarine plateau known as the "banks," on which all the fishing is done. At a small station within the edges of the great bank that the cod loves so well the sea is quite smooth.

Too Commercial.

Robbie—I saw you kissing sister again last night. Castleton—Well, I'm not going to pay you a quarter this time. Ten cents is enough. Hobby—That's the tendency in these days, to cut out the middleman and let the goods go straight from the producer to the consumer without charge.—Life.

Liquid Hydrogen.

The boiling point of liquid hydrogen is 4.3 degrees C. absolute, or 283.7 degrees below common zero C. A temperature of 273 degrees below zero C. is absolute, and physicians are within 4.3 degrees of this intensely interesting scientific point when handling liquid hydrogen.

The Whole Story.

"I hear you are giving up your charge," said one aged and infirm minister to another the other day. "How are your people taking it?"

"Oh, sir," was the answer, "I'm resigning—and they're resigned"—Liverpool Mer.

Does the Memory.

Biz—You may depend upon it that your friends won't forget you as long as you have money. Dix—That's right, especially if you have borrowed it from them.—Boston Transcript.

Preserve your just relations to other men. Their misconduct does not affect your duties.—Epictetus.
