WEDNESDAY, FEB. 10, 1915.

GOOD DAYS AHEAD.

The further a pendulum swings one way, the further will it travel on the reverse swing, and the faster it will move.

The pendulum of prosperity for the United States has advanced to the limit on the negative side. Already it is swinging back, and with saner handling of our tariff problems and a fairer consideration for the railroads and large commercial activities it will be soon past the dead center of business stagnation.

Our local pendulum, here at Bend, has traveled as far as it can go in the reverse direction. Through no fault here, but because of the national depression and the world war, our long-hoped-for developments have been postponed. Gradually the prosperity pendulum has been forced back. But the further it has swung, the greater the strength of its return stroke. And that reverse swing, which spells prosperity for Bend, is about to set in.

The dawn is breaking. It will appear all the brighter because of the darkness preceding it. The Bulletin has no doubt now that lumbering, upon a great scale, will be undertaken shortly. It has no doubt that all its predictions for Bend's future will become realities, and it believes that the beginning of their realization is close at hand.

But it is well to sound a word of warning. Let's try not to have another boom. There is bound to be, of course, a great growth in the town when the mills start. But let us make it, and keep it so, so far as we may, a healthy growth, based on sound foundations. And above all let us remember that there may be delays. He who gambles on construction tomorrow, or next month, is playing with fire. Just bear it in mind that nothing big may come for a year, and so arrange your plans that if better befall, you will be doubly satisfied, and if worse, you will not suffer.

Oregon has had a Republican Governor for a month. The daily output of press clippings concerning the Executive office has fallen off several hundred per cent. Governor Withycombe hasn't got the knack of getting on the front page every other day, and staying there. He hasn't raided a single tavern yet. Not once has the militia been called out. No Eastern Oregon town has been put under martial law. He hasn't even pardoned a murderer or a horse thief. There has been nothing spectacular, nothing at the State House different from the customary procedure of normal governors elsewhere. In short, folks at Salem are beginning to feel that the circus days are passed and that gubernatorial dignity has come back into its own.

It looks like an off year for state-aid irrigation. The legislature is too short-sighted to realize that the wisest economy is expenditure that creates productivity and wealth and that assures the return to the State Treasury of the amount advanced for such constructive development. This so-called economy is especially futile when it involves the permanent loss of $450,000 which the Federal Government would have spent here had the State stepped into the breach. It is web-foot finance.

Seldom can one employ a superlative in reference to a human being without exciting controversy. To one man, however, we can refer superlatively without fear of contradiction: to him whose birthday is commemorated Friday, our truly greatest American, Abraham Lincoln.

Speaking of the Mexican situation a news report says that, "Lower California makes a point of being loyal to whatever power may be." That would be easy if it were not for the difficulty of deciding who was in power.

"Money is a Drug on Chicago Market." That headline appeared in a Portland paper the other day. My, but its a long, long way to Chicago!

POTATO STARCH FACTORY STUDY

STATE UNIVERSITY GETS DETAILS

Plant Costing From $10,000 to $15,000 Will Care for Cull Product of About 5,000 Acres—Canal Freights Would be Large Help

University of Oregon, Eugene, Feb. 5.—A potato starch plant costing from $10,000 to $15,000 and properly conducted will during a season take care of the cull product from about 5,000 acres, according to figures gathered by the State University school of commerce. The facts are furnished at the request of George W. Bradley, of Madras, Jefferson county, Oregon. The Agency Plains country is peculiarly adapted to potato growing, but settlers often encounter market conditions so bad that further production is discouraged. Mr. Bradley, accordingly, asked that information be gathered covering factory use of potatoes. The department of industrial survey of the school of commerce replied as follows:

"Potato starch commands three to four cents a pound in the New England market. It brings as a rule one and one half times the price of corn starch. Analysis of more than 50 varieties of potatoes grown in Oregon gives an average starch content of 15 per cent.

"Generally it would be better to market the best potatoes for table use because the maximum allowance for potatoes for starch manufacture, delivered at the factory, is 25 cents a bushel.

"If only 50,000 bushels were to be handled in a season, three men to a shift and three shifts could handle the output. A storage warehouse is required. The longest working period is generally from frost to frost, through the cold weather. Heat causes starch to sour quickly, and potatoes lose starch through age.

"Potatoes are not peeled for starch manufacturing purposes. Roughly about 48 hours is required for production; thereafter the residue may be used for distillation of alcohol or returned to the ground for fertilizer. The starch-making process is briefly: grinding, settling, clarifying, drying. Only one grade produced.

"Competition with potato starch comes from corn starch, cassava starch, sago starch, and similar starches. These latter starches are used in the manufacture of textiles, for household purposes, and for candy and preserve manufacturers. Starch is usually marketed in sacks and barrels, except for household use.

"Potato starch is not marketed and little called for in the Pacific Northwest. Railroad rates would have to be investigated and a market developed. The rate from Portland to the Atlantic coast via the Panama Canal would be 20 cents a hundred. The consumption in Oregon, Washington and California of all kinds of starch is said to be about 10,000 tons during a year.

"Grinder, settling vats, dryer and power plant are the requisites for a starch factory."

SPANISH DINNER GIVEN

M. and Mrs. G. W. Shriner Entertain Members of Eastern Star.

The members of the Order of the Eastern Star were entertained at a Spanish dinner by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Shriner at the American Bakery on Wall street Monday night. While the order was holding its regular meeting early in the evening the dining room was decorated in Spanish colors and when the guests arrived they found a most attractive setting for their entertainment.

The seven course dinner provided by Mrs. Shriner for her guests was of Spanish dishes entirely from recipes learned by her when living in Mexico. The waitress was in Spanish costume and the table decorations were Spanish.

The guests who were present were, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Minor, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McKay, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Larson, E. M. Lara, Miss M. E. Coleman, Mrs. A. M. Lara, Mrs. Maddock, Mrs. L. C. Rudow, Mrs. P. C. Garrison, Mrs. A. M. Pringle, Mrs. H. B. Ford and Fred Huey.

My back seemed to give out and the pain and lameness extended down into my hips. My whole body was lame and sore mornings and the action of my kidneys wasn't right. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me right away and soon my back and kidneys were in good shape." Price 50 cents at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Kiser had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

NO HORSE SALE.

Having been unable to find any horses in the Silver Lake country the party of San Francisco horse buyers who were to be here tomorrow, returned from that section sooner than was expected and sent word about that they would be buying in Bend Saturday afternoon. About 40 horses were brought in by their owners who waited until nearly 7 o'clock for the buyers to arrive. When they finally got here it was announced that no horses would be bought, the reason being apparently because no car for transportation had been sent in here.

DEATH OF MRS. BARNES.

Mrs. Harriett Barnes, whose serious illness was reported in The Bulletin last week, died on Thursday and was buried on Friday in the Pilot Butte cemetery. She was nearly 79 years old and had been a resident of this section for the past 12 years, living on her homestead adjoining Wiestoria. The only member of the family surviving is a daughter, Miss F. L. Barnes, of Portland, who was with her mother at the end.

HELD IN $500 BOND.

This afternoon in Justice Eastes' court Wallace H. Meacham, pleaded not guilty to the charge of issuing worthless checks and was ordered to furnish bonds in the sum of $500 for his appearance on February 20 for trial. A warrant for Meacham's arrest was issued last week when he was in Silver Lake and he returned yesterday and surrendered himself.
