

MINING CLAIMS ON ALKALI LAKE

FILINGS ARE MADE BY BORAX COMPANY

Hearing Set for August 23 to Determine Character of Lake—Result May be to Take It from Jurisdiction of State of Oregon.

(Oregon Journal.)

SALEM, July 28.—That the Oregon Borax Company has filed mining claims on the bed of Alkali lake and has made application to the land office at Washington to have the same surveyed and included as part of the public domain, developed today at State Engineer Lewis' office, where notice was received from Surveyor General Edward Worth that a hearing would be held August 22 to determine the character of the lake, which is located in the northern part of Lake county.

If the action asked by the Oregon Borax company, a California concern, is taken, the lake will be removed from the jurisdiction of the state and placed under the control of the federal government. A survey of the township in which Alkali lake is located was made in 1885, at which time Alkali lake was meandered, thus indicating that it was a navigable lake, the bed of which belonged to the state.

Affidavits submitted by A. L. Weil, attorney for the Oregon Borax Company, contend that the lake should not have been meandered and that the survey was in error in this particular. It is also asserted that the lake frequently dries up. It has deposits of carbonate of soda.

According to the commissioner of the general land office, the lands were secured from Klamath Indians by treaty in 1864, proclaimed in 1870, or subsequent to the swamp land act in 1861, and would not therefore, be subject to the swamp land act.

Alkali lake belongs to the same group as Abert and Summer, the last named two being under lease to Jason Moore.

LETTER TELLS OF TRENCH LIFE

"White Bangs"—particularly the latter, come so rapidly that you don't get much time to duck. There are casualties occurring right along of course but the waste of ammunition is simply enormous. When you remember that the battle line extends for hundreds of miles it gives a person a headache trying to think of the cost both in men and money. Italy's coming in is going to shorten the war a good deal partly by the aid of her army and navy but chiefly owing to the fact that the main supply of Germany is cut off. "I haven't heard from any of you people for weeks though my having changed my battalion may be the trouble. I hope now that prosperity has hit the States Bend is booming. If I got through all right I may pay you a visit as I think I'll come back by way of the Pacific. "I will drop you a line once in a while unless some Hun gets me and puts me out of business." The Post Card. The post card, which Mr. Pringle has received, is one supplied the English soldiers to send messages to friends and relatives without any possibility of information being given which will have any bearing on the situation of the war itself. Only the address is permitted to be written on the front side and the signature on the back, the rest of the back side of the postal being taken up with printed sentences which are to be crossed out by the sender according to his situation, the remaining line or lines being the message given. The post card is as follows: Front. FIELD SERVICE POST CARD. The address only to be written on this side. If anything else is added, the post card will be destroyed. Back. Nothing is to be written on this side except the date and signature of the sender. Sentences not required may be erased. If anything else is added to the post card will be destroyed. I am quite well. I have been admitted into hospital sick and am going on well. Wounded and hope to be discharged soon. I am being sent down to the base. I have received your letter dated; telegram dated; parcel dated. Letter follows at first opportunity. I have received no letter from you lately; for a long time. Signature only: Sergt. Pringle, No. 3 Company, 2nd Battalion, Canadian, France. Date, July 11. (Postage must be prepaid on all letters or post card addressed to the sender of this card.) find "yours"

Get all the smoke-pleasure you pay for. Find the right cigarette—a SENSIBLE one that fits your own likes and dislikes.

It may or may not be Fatima

—but this will help you find it.

Tastes differ—in fashions, foods and pretty girls. Also in cigarettes. A cigarette that started out to please every man's taste would end up by pleasing none.

Most of us like our cigarette smoke deliciously cool and refreshing. The Mexican likes his hot and dry, with a nice little peppery sting in it.

Some men like a cigarette wholesomely, fragrantly mild. Others of us hunt for a cigarette almost as heavy as a black cigar.

Most of us want an "easy" cigarette—a SENSIBLE one, so that no matter how steadily or how many we smoke, we'll feel as fit as a fiddle. Other men, though, don't care about that. They smoke only a few—so they want a kick like a mule's in each puff.

All of us want our smoke "full-bodied"—it must satisfy that smoke-hunger. But the cigarette that just fills the bill for you may not do at all for your next-door neighbor.

Somewhere—among all the brands on the market—is the one—just-right cigarette for YOU!

Maybe it's the very one you have now in your pocket—but are you SURE? Maybe it's some entirely "different" cigarette—it may or may not be Fatima.

But "find it!" Until you do, you're cheating yourself out of a whole lot of smoke-pleasure. Also you're wasting some money.

How to Find "yours"

To avoid blindly trying too many different cigarettes, ask yourself, first of all, this question:

"Just what do I like in a cigarette?"

If you smoke only a few every day, you may prefer a cigarette which is rather rich or heavy and "oily." Or you may like one which has a rather strong "oriental" taste with a pungency almost like perfume. Or you may want a cigarette with that noticeably "sweetish" Egyptian flavor. But if you smoke quite often—if you would like to smoke whenever you feel like it and without any effect on the tongue or throat or any fear of a heavy or "heady" feeling afterwards—then you should choose some cigarette such as Fatima, a cigarette composed of all-pure tobaccos of considerable aroma, mellowed by being aged and carefully blended to produce a fragrant and wholesomely mild, yet "full-bodied," smoke. And the smoke must be noticeably COOL. For otherwise your tongue or your throat will soon signal you to stop smoking so often.

If you will ask any Fatima smoker, he will tell you that Fatimas never make him "feel mean"—no matter how many he smokes.

That is why Fatimas are considered the most sensible cigarette by such a large majority of smokers. And that is probably the main reason why hardly any Fatima smokers ever switch! They like a sensible cigarette—and one with a good, pure taste to it.

But the Taste is up to You

All cigarettes are pure, but when it comes to the taste, nobody can help you choose. You simply have to decide for yourself.

Of course, Fatima's taste may not appeal to you. But most men who try Fatimas like the taste so well that they seek no further—otherwise Fatimas could never have won and held their enormous and growing leadership amounting to over one and a half BILLION cigarettes a year.

The one purpose of this advertisement is to ask you in a fair and square way to give Fatimas (20 for 15c) a good trial. If they don't happen to suit your taste, you'll quit smoking them of course. But if you like Fatimas as well as MOST men do, you'll be mighty glad you read this advertisement—and ACTED ON IT!

Below are two simple tests which you can easily make and which may help you find your sensible cigarette.

It may or may not be Fatima. But be fair to yourself and find "yours."

TWO TESTS FOR ANY CIGARETTE

The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is up to the smoker, but there are other qualities that you should look for in the cigarette that you are going to stick to for your steady smoke. Here are a couple of tests that may help the average smoker to choose more wisely between different kinds of cigarettes.

The first test is for coolness, which means more comfort to the throat and tongue. Light any cigarette. Draw in a cloud of smoke—a small, ordinary puff is not sufficient to make this test. Hold it in your mouth for a few seconds. Let it blow around against your tongue and throat. Now blow out the smoke. If the cigarette contains a high grade of mild tobacco leaves, combined in just the right proportion, it will always feel cool and smooth both to your throat and to your tongue.

On the other hand, if the proportions are not right and if the cigarette contains inferior grades of tobacco or hidden strands of rank, oily leaf, you will feel a stinging sting at the tip of your tongue or that "sawtooth tickle" in your throat.

Test number two—How do you feel after smoking all day?

If the tobaccos in the cigarette include a correct proportion of mild grades—and are so blended as to bring out the best qualities and to neutralize any unpleasant qualities in each of the different types of tobaccos, you will be able to smoke peacefully whenever you feel like it through the day without feeling any effect from it.

But with another cigarette in which the blend is less skillful, even though the tobaccos are of the highest grade, you will find along towards the end of the day that you are likely to have that feeling of having "smoked too much."

Clip out these tests and try them on Fatima
