WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 1, 1915.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The other day we received a letter from a friend, a Seattle physician who is interested in Bend. He was renewing his subscription and took the occasion to say a few kind things which we venture to quote here. He wrote:

"Enclosed you will find check in payment for Bulletin for next year. I want to congratulate you on the notice you are giving the new lumber mills in The Bulletin. I believe everyone in Bend must have been pleased with the news and the notice you gave it. Show the townspeople Bend has something on the way, and the outsiders will know it quick enough. I wish you would mail copies of Bulletin of the Shevlin and Brooks-Scanlon projects to..... Seattle, he wouldn't or couldn't believe it could happen, and didn't hesitate to say so in Seattle."

The following headline appeared in a Portland paper the other day: "Turn back city cash; departments have not spent all the money appropriated for 1915." Goodness gracious! Who's to blame for such negligence?

Here's another friend of The Bulletin who writes: "I would sooner miss a meal than miss the paper."

BUSINESS BREVITIES

FIRE DESTROYS THE BEND HOTEL

maintained a vigil until the flames died down.

Despite the use of every means at hand to save the annex at the rear of the hotel, the heat was too intense for effective work and it took only a few moments for the fire to eat into the roof and exterior walls. The damage to occupants of this building was slight, all furniture having been removed before the building was afire. The firemen were cautious in the use of the high pressure hoses on nearby buildings. When the annex building was afire it was feared that the heat might melt the windows of the R. B. Mutzig building especially that part occupied by A. L. French. This, however, was averted by careful work. Aside from cracked and broken windows and blistered exterior walls, no serious damage was done to adjacent buildings.

"We are unable to account for the exact cause of the fire," said Hugh O'Kane Tuesday morning. "Some of the employees were in the kitchen only a short time before the fire was discovered, and there was no evidence of it at that time. The cook, who sleeps near the kitchen, did not detect any signs of fire until the alarm was sounded by Mr. Farminter, and by that time the fire had attained great headway. I can give only one cause and that is the fire must have started in the roof, possibly from a defect."

Mr. O'Kane is not prepared at this time to make any statement regarding his future building plans.

During the fire Mrs. O'Kane became quite ill from fright, necessitating medical attention. She is now reported to be resting easily.

Notwithstanding the hazards taken by the inexperienced firemen and the falling wires from nearby telephone poles no injuries were reported.

As a result of the damage done by the flames, the Pioneer Telephone & Telegraph Company has been engaged since the fire in adjusting line troubles. More than 60 feet of main cable was burned and put out of commission, and more than 60 telephones, both in the business and residence districts, were without communication with central during Tuesday and part of Wednesday.

Much of the furniture taken from the burning buildings was more or less damaged by water. Only a small amount of office fixtures was taken from the hotel and much of this was badly scorched.

with dynamite were blowing up the tramways leading to the mill in order to cut off any connection between the flames and the mill. Prompt action in this work probably did much to save the mill. When the fire had covered almost all of the south eastern portion of the yard, patching in to the edge of the adjacent timber, the wind from the south drove the flames to the north from alley No. 3 where a large crew was engaged in tearing down and dynamiting the piles near the center of the yard. So terrific was the heat that at every advance made by the flames the men were obliged to retreat.

At 4:30 p. m. it was found that any effort made to fight the fire was a hopeless undertaking. By this time more than three fourths of the yard was ablaze. During the night a large crew of men was kept on guard to protect buildings and what small amount of lumber was unburned.

No Check on Building.
One of the first thoughts attending the fire was as to its effect upon the building now in progress and the construction work that has been contemplated in Bend. According to D. E. Hunter of The Bend Company, who has been advancing a project for the construction of houses, the loss of the lumber yard will have no effect whatever upon the building plans of his company. Mr. Hunter states that there is sufficient lumber available in Bend and the vicinity to care for the immediate demand, and that action will be taken at once to cut logs amounting to about 500,000 feet, to handle the current demand. Lumber to supply needs which cannot be furnished locally will be shipped in so that work may go on unhampered.

Last Wednesday's fire is the fourth to have visited the lumber yard in the last five years. On January 12, 1912, The Bend Company sustained a loss between $20,000 and $25,000 by the loss of 1,500,000 feet of lumber. On April 23, 1910, the sawmill and machinery were burned and in December, 1913, the boiler house was destroyed by fire.
