DESCHUTES RESERVE IS COVERED

Interesting Places in Territory are Described and Resources Listed—Lakes and Streams Offer Opportunity for Pleasure Seeker.

One of the best maps ever issued covering Central Oregon and the Cascade range has just been put out by the Forest Service showing the Deschutes National Forest, and the many lakes and ponds available to the recreation seeker.

Printed on the back of the map are fire warnings and requests for the proper use of the forest, with a description of the forest and of the lakes and streams which afford fishing, camping and other recreation possibilities.

Extracts from this descriptive matter follow:

The Deschutes National Forest comprises an area of 2,176,292 acres located on the east slope of the Cascade mountains. It includes most of the high mountainous country and part of the high timbered plateau surrounding the headwaters of the Deschutes river and its upper tributaries. It extends from the Warm Springs Indian Reservation on the north to the Klamath Indian Reservation on the south.

It is estimated that the Forest contains approximately six billion feet of merchantable timber of which nearly four billion feet is yellow pine. Approximately 49,000 sheep and 4,900 cattle secure at least part of their summer feed from the forest range. Most of these cattle and part of the sheep are owned by ranchers living on lands near or adjoining the Forest.

A large area of irrigated or irrigable land lies in the region north and east of the Forest, outside of the timber belt. Practically all of the water for irrigation and domestic use on this land comes from streams rising in the mountains of the Deschutes forest. In addition to their irrigation value the water from these streams is capable of developing thousands of electric horsepower.

Aside from its timber, grazing and water values, the Forest is attractive to campers and fishermen. There are many mountain streams kept well stocked with fish. Several snow-capped mountain peaks, some of them difficult of ascent and some with glaciers on their slopes, invite the mountain climber. The lower, more level valleys along the streams and lakes afford quiet camping places. Thousands of tourists and pleasure seekers frequent the forest annually. These recreational features are made more inviting because of the many roads traversing the Forest making many parts of it accessible by auto or team.

Among the interesting places on the forest are mentioned the following:

The Metolius river valley and adjacent region may be reached by auto from Sisters, Oregon. Along the river is found good horse feed, splendid camp grounds, and excellent fishing. A huckleberry patch near Cabot Lake can be reached by trail, which continues to the foot of Mount Jefferson. Suttles Lake can be reached by auto and offers a good camping and fishing place. Blue Lake, a water filled volcanic crater, can be reached by wagon only. An excellent trail leads to the summit of Black Butte, a Forest Service lookout station, from which one of the best views in the entire region can be obtained.

The McKenzie road which crosses the mountains west from Sisters, is a fair auto road. The barren lava beds at the summit, about 2 miles wide, are of unusual interest.

Sparks Lake and the surrounding mountains and lakes constitute one of the most interesting regions on the forest. An auto road extends from Bend to the Tumalo ranger station from which a wagon road leads to the ridge south of Broken Top, thence a trail to Sparks lake where is found good camping grounds and horse feed and excellent fishing. The Sisters mountains lie to the north, Broken Top to the northeast, and Bachelor Butte to the southeast. All of these mountains are high, snow-capped peaks, the Sisters mountains having glaciers on some of their slopes. Many interesting pack trips can be taken from the lake. Natural soda springs are located about 2 miles east.

Fall river, the main Deschutes river, and the mountain lakes and streams around its head can be reached by auto road as far up as Crane Prairie. A wagon road, barely passable for auto, extends to Lava Lake. Excellent fishing can be had at most points along the river and at the many mountain lakes. Good horse feed can be secured near the mouth of Davis Creek, at the head of Fall River, at Crane Prairie, at Lava Lake, and at many other points along the line. Many interesting pack trips are possible from the Crane Prairie and Lava Lake region. Davis Lake, Odell Lake, and Crescent Lake can all be reached by auto. Horse feed can be secured at Davis Lake and at the west end of Crescent Lake. Excellent camping grounds and fishing can be had at any of these places. Maiden Peak, a Forest Service lookout station, can be reached by trail from Davis Lake ranger station.

Paulina and East Lakes are reached by wagon road, passable by auto. They furnish good fishing and camping grounds. Some hot mineral springs at East Lake are being developed as a tourist resort. This general region is of unusual geological interest, the lakes being located in an immense crater, having a rim in many places over 1000 feet above the lake level. The highest point on this rim, Paulina Peak, is used as a Forest Service lookout station and can be reached by trail from Paulina Lake. Horse feed is poor.

Several ice caves exist in or near the Forest, among which are the Arnold Ice Cave, 16 miles southeast of Bend; the South Ice Cave, 18 miles north of Fort Rock; and the Edison Ice Cave, 1/2 miles northwest of the Big River ranger station. Lava Butte, an extinct volcanic crater, and the adjoining lava fields lie west of the Bend-La Pine road.

PRINEVILLE ACCEPTS BENDS TURKEY DAY CHALLENGE

Both Towns Materialize Gridiron Army For Game to be Played on Local Field November 25.

Prineville has accepted Bend's challenge for a Turkey Day football game to be played in Bend, and mobilization in both towns has begun in earnest for the leading Central Oregon gridiron battle on that day.

In both towns material is plentiful. Old football stars from many parts of the country are residing in this part of the state and calls have been issued for their appearance at the camps at the earliest possible date for practice. Bend has been on the field several times in the last two weeks and the lineup for the Thanksgiving Day fracas is well in hand. More than a full team reported last Sunday and for two hours the 'has beens' were in action and the results were promising.

Considerable interest has been aroused in Prineville over Bend's action following the suggestion of Douglas Lawson, coach of the Crook county high school, that Bend and Prineville get together Thanksgiving for a game. Prineville has several well known football stars scattered around the Crooked river district and urgent calls have been sent to them to be out for regular nightly practice.

It is hoped that the game may be played on Thanksgiving morning, in order to make it convenient for those having early dinners on that day.

From now on the Bend eleven will be out for regular nightly practice. The men who responded Sunday were Johnson and Pringle, center; Ward and Lamberson, guards; G. Vandeventer, Muszynski and Smith, left tackles; Stover, Rhodes, Woelfen, ends; Kelley and Hoke, quarterback; Erskine, Bates and Houston, half backs and Steidl full back. It
