BUNNING THE BLOCKADE.

It Was Successfully Done Ages Age at the Siege of Syracuse.

Blockading and blockade running is not a young war measure by any means. One of the earliest authentic instances of the practice dates back two centuries before the Christian era. Marcus Claudius Marcellus, commanding a powerful Roman army and an efficient fleet, laid slege to Syracuse, a rich city on the Isle of Sicily. Carthase, Rome's great rival on the north shore of Africa, one of the great sea powers of that time, was not at all pleased with the idea of Rome capturing Syracuse, a free city and probably source of great revenue through trade with Carthage.

Syrayuse was a well fortified city, and there seemed to be no immediate prospect of Rome taking it by storm. a Marcellus decided to starve its inabitants into submission. He put a cordon of ships across the entrance to he harbor and arrayed his army on he hand side so that no succor could o from vilthout. But he had underestimated the boldness of the Cartha-There was no question of grinmus. contraband in those days-conditional

In their swift our driven galleys the sailors of the African city easily eluded the ships set to watch the port and curried provisions and war material into the belenguered city. So successful were the Carthaginians in getting supplies into the city-running the blockade-that had it not fallen through treachery it would have been enabled to hold out indefinitely. While blockades probably had been established before on a small scale, the blockade of Syracuse is one of the earliest instances where the efficiency of a block ade by sea was of vital importance in determining the success of war on an important seaport - Munsey's Maga-2lne.

LEGEND OF THE DONKEY.

Showing Why the Arabs Beat the Brute With Impunity.

In his article on his journey to Babyton, in Harper's, William Warfield tells a legend prevailing among the natives by which they justify beating of donkeys, but not horses.

We stopped to change our mules, in the roadway before the khan sat a group of Arabs. A servant supplied them with little cups of tea from a rude samovar. We saluted them, and. taking our places in the circle, we were served in turn. Some one in the dark doorway was thumping away on a drum. A boy came out of the khau beating a poor lame donkey with fly infested sores. I turned to one of my neighbors:

'Is it not ergel for that boy to beat a lame donkey in that way?

'Effendi, it is the will of God!' "'But you do not allow horses or camels to be beaten thus."

"'Effendi, the donkey is not like the horse, nor yet is he like the camel. The reason is this: Upon a certain day the donkeys went before Allah and complained that they were grievously beaten by men, so that life was a greater burden than they could bear. Then said Allah: "I cannot make men cense from beating you. It is no sin. neither does it cause them any great loss. But I will help you. I will give you so thick a hide that, however much you are beaten, you shall not suffer."

" 'So,' said my informant, 'it is of no consequence if men beat a donkey. So thick a skin did Allah give him that after he dies men use it in the making ;
