

AGRICULTURAL COUNCIL MEETS

AFFAIRS TALKED OVER WITH NEW AGENT

Session Held in Redmond on Saturday, Following Luncheon Served by Domestic Science Class—Resolutions Oppose Single Tax

On Saturday noon, before an excellent repast served by the girls of the Redmond high school in the domestic science building, the County Agricultural Council met for the first time with the new county agriculturist, R. A. Blanchard. The lunch was served at 12:30 and after their appetites were satisfied the council gathered around a table where session was held until 3 o'clock, in spite of the fact that Senator Lane was to speak after dinner at the Potato Show.

Those present at the council were: E. S. Barnard, secretary-treasurer, of Powell Butte; C. P. Hoskins, vice-president, of Lower Bridge; W. P. Mackey, Terrebonne; Wm. Ogg, Redmond; J. L. Gibson, Powell Butte; C. D. Jarrett, Redmond; C. H. Erickson, Alfalfa; Charles O. Christiani, Prineville, and Dr. P. H. Dencer, of Bend.

Work Discussed.

R. A. Blanchard, county agriculturist, opened the session by outlining the relation of the county agent to the United States Department of Agriculture, state college, county agricultural college and the farmers of the county. He also prepared copies of suggestions of the concrete lines of work that can be accomplished. These were distributed to members with instructions to bring the matter up before their local clubs when, with the aid of the agent, a definite program of work for the next year will be prepared.

Paul V. Maris, state leader of county agents, explained the relation of the college to the county. Mr. Maris spoke at length on the duties of the council and the true conception of the county agent, mentioning the effort of the college and the government in creating the conception that the county agent is not an agricultural wizard whose function is to tell farmers how to run their farms.

Resolutions Adopted.

After the council discussed at length the line of work they would pursue with the county agriculturist, whom they direct, a motion was passed adopting the issuance of a monthly County Agricultural Bulletin, in place of the old mimeographed exchange list. This is after the one edited by Mr. Blanchard in his work as county agriculturist in Montana. A new constitution was adopted by the council, which conforms to the state-wide constitution for all county agricultural councils. The following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, we believe that the plan of the Bureau of Biological Survey, together with the assistance of the Agricultural College and the County Agriculturalists has been demonstrated to be economical and effective, and since these departments are willing to continue their cooperation, therefore,

"Be it resolved, That the Crook County Agricultural Council favors the cooperative plan and respectfully urges our county court to adopt that measure of procedure.

"Be it resolved, That the Crook County Agricultural Council is most emphatically opposed to the confiscatory and revolutionary single tax measure, to appear on the ballot of the coming election under the title 'Full Rental Value Land Tax and Homemakers' Loan Fund Amendment,' an dthat we urge upon all those interested in agricultural development and welfare of the State of Oregon, to assist in defeating this bill so overwhelmingly that its sponsors will be discouraged from perennially presenting such measures to the voters of Oregon. Vote 307 X No."

Great credit is due to the girls of the domestic science department of the high school. The girls were under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Lee, and not only set a dainty table, but a well cooked dinner. The effort was a credit to the department and their teacher.

TRIPLETON THRESHER BURNED

The threshing machine of Arthur Templeton, of Sisters, was totally destroyed last Sunday night by fire in the Cloverdale district. The cause of the fire is not known. The Templeton crew was moving its outfit and left the thresher in the road early Sunday evening. It caught fire about midnight.

The McAllister ranch is midway between Bend and Sisters.

GROWTH OF BEND COMMENTED ON BY CRESCENT NEWSPAPER

Editor Jolly Says He Can Scarcely Recognize Place—New Buildings and Beautiful Homes Are Noted.

Under the caption "Bend's Wonderful Growth" the Crescent News has the following to say concerning the growth of Bend:

"When Charley Bates, president of the Oregon State Press Association, was in Bend some weeks ago and remarked that 'There was more industry, more growth and building improvement going on in Bend at the present time than in any city in the state, not to except Portland,' he knew what he was talking about.

"One, like the writer, who has not visited the town in a year would scarcely recognize the place during even that short lapse of time. You can go to any section of Bend—residence, business or industrial—and on every hand hundreds of buildings are in course of construction. And the beauty of it is that every one of them are either privately owned by some sane home builder or has been rented long ago. On the river front the great new Pilot Butte Inn has been started, while further down the river the big framework of an addition to the Bend Milling Company plant looms up as prominently as the mill proper. In the heart of the business section the fine new home of the Central Oregon Bank is nearly ready for occupancy. The walls and roof of the huge, fire-proof business and office block of Hugh O'Kane are up, and the same thing is true of many other new structures of nearly as great importance. Inquiry disclosed that it was impossible right now to rent any of the old buildings; that as soon as the new business blocks are ready for occupancy, other firms will be dumping stocks of goods into the back doors as fast from the front to their future quarter. The population of Bend has nearly doubled in the past fourteen months, and is now close to 4,500.

"As the News has stated before, there is a great lesson to be derived from Bend's wonderful growth—an example of what new blood, cooperation and scrapping ability will do for any community."
