C. O. I. HEARING

ages to settlers. Inadequate upkeep of canals is blamed for large seepage losses.
 "It is questionable," states the brief, "whether the main flume is of sufficient capacity and strength to carry more water than it is at present carrying, and there is no question that there is not sufficient water carried through the flume and canals to properly irrigate the land in cultivation under the segregation."
 It is pointed out that the present flume is not expected to last more than four more years, and that therefore the company should be compelled either to rebuild the flume before it is turned over to the settlers, or to set aside a sinking fund for that and similar improvement work. The amount of $5,000 per year is recommended. Such a method, it is alleged, is the only safe one for the protection of the settlers, who are entitled to inherit a system in a reasonably good state of preservation.
 The brief objects to alleged high salaries paid Company officials in the past, and to the custom of voting a salary to officials who are in arrears in their maintenance fees. Such a course is characterized as discrimination.
 "We believe," the brief concludes, "that the Company's system is not of sufficient capacity to properly irrigate the land not used, not regarding that which is sold under the segregation and that the main flume is in such a condition that some steps must be taken toward providing a fund for rebuilding the same; and therefore we believe that this Commission should take the proper means to prevent the further sale of the lands, to compel the Company to distribute the water equitably and fairly to the settlers on the segregation."
