

THOUSANDS SEE RECRUITS LEAVE

CITY HONORS BOYS IN ARMY AND NAVY.

Crowd Stands Almost Silent as Parting Comes—Mothers and Sweethearts Weep—Kisses Generously Given.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Three thousand of the people of Bend turned out last night to honor nearly 50 Central Oregon lads, most of them from this city, who left to take service in the army and navy. A parade of marchers in close formation, led by the Odd Fellows and the Bend band, was followed by an auto section, the whole stretching over seven blocks. At least two-thirds of those who gathered at the stations, however, were not in the line of march, arriving at the train before the paraders. The Bend Rifles marched from their drill grounds to the tracks shortly after the main parade broke up.

Silence Marks Parting.

So dense was the crowd packed about the depot that many were unable to say goodbye to more than a very few of the boys, and it was after scheduled time when the Oregon Trunk train, with the special army and navy car, finally pulled out. It was not a boisterous, nor a demonstrative crowd. There were too many mothers and fathers and sweethearts who were making their supreme sacrifice, to make noisy patriotism in keeping with the occasion. A few women and girls broke down utterly under the strain, and sobbed as the last farewell was said. Others came through the ordeal dry-eyed, but it was a solemn throng which returned to the city. In the last quarter of an hour before the train left, girls clustered about the rear platform of the station, some with tears, some with smiles, and many with kisses for the boys who were leaving. Three of the recruits were kissed in rapid-fire order by one young woman, who apparently wished nobody to be slighted.

Many Take Train.

A list of the boys who made the trip last night is as follows:
