OPINION GIVEN ON UTILITY LAW

ATTORNEY GENERAL BROWN SAYS C. O. I. IS SUBJECT TO COMMISSION REGULATION — MAY GET ORDERS.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
SALEM, July 10.—Irrigation companies in Oregon are being brought under the jurisdiction of the public service commission for the regulation of their rates and, in some instances of their rates. Attorney General Brown Monday rendered a lengthy opinion to the public service commission in which he holds that the Central Oregon Irrigation company, in Crook county, is a public utility and subject to the regulation by the commission.

Carey Act Involved.
As the company's irrigation project, however, is being reclaimed under the Carey act, and a contract was made between the company and the desert land board as to the maintenance fees that may be charged, the attorney general holds that the public service commission has no authority to make an order changing those fees, or in any way altering the terms of the company's contract with the state.

"I am of the opinion that the commission has jurisdiction to require the Central Oregon Irrigation company to set aside out of the maintenance fees a depreciation fund to be expended in maintenance and keeping the irrigation system in a state of efficiency," says the attorney general. "The commission, however, cannot increase the charge of maintenance in order to create such a fund or to enlarge the same.

Legislation Changes Law.
"The construction which I am placing on the contract between the state land board and the Central Oregon Irrigation company and the public utility act does not in any way alter the terms of the contract between the company and the state land board.

"By saying that the commission has authority to require the company to maintain and keep in good condition the irrigation system is merely saying that the legislature has changed the remedy and has conferred on the commission some of the power and duties formerly exercised by the courts."

FANCY PRICES PAID FOR LAND

NED ANGLAND BUYS 80 ACRES FOR $12,000, AND TOM CROXIN GETS 240-ACRE TRACT FOR $20,000.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
The sale of two of the choicest pieces of irrigated ranch land in the entire Powell Butte section, for top notch prices, was reported this morning. The transfer of 320 acres of land with a small amount of personal property included representing a combined consideration of $22,000. The 80-acre W. S. Marshall ranch was the first property transferred, bought by Ned J. Angland for $12,000 a small amount of stock and a few buildings going with the land. The second deal was that in which Tom Croxin becomes the owner of the 240-acre ranch previously owned by O. E. Butterfield, the consideration being $20,000. Practically nothing excepting the land is included in the Croxin purchase.

RALPH LUCAS NOW SERVING ON OHIO

Bend Boy Who Shipped From Bremerton as Fireman on Michigan, Gets First Transfer.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
Ralph W. Lucas, of Bend, who enlisted in the navy as fireman some two months ago, is now on board the battleship Ohio, location unknown, according to a letter received here by his brother, Fred Lucas. Ralph shipped originally on the Michigan from Bremerton on June 1, but was recently transferred to the other vessel.

The hardships of sea life have not told severely on him, for he has been able to see a number of the major league baseball games in New York City, his brother says.

L. F. SWIFT SEES BRIGHT OUTLOOK

WELL PLEASSED WITH CITY OF BEND.

Head of Swift Interests Well Informed on Local Matters—Asks Questions Continuously During Brief Visit Here.

(From Friday's Daily.)
Predicting a bright future for Bend, L. F. Swift, of Chicago, head of the Swift interests, included in which is the Central Oregon Bank, of this city, left yesterday for Cloud Cap Inn, after spending a brief visit with E. P. Mahaffey, director of the bank. Mr. Swift apparently knew more concerning Bend, its resources and the growth of its industries than many of the actual residents of the city, but well informed as he was, his conversation was a running fire of interrogations.

Building operations in Bend interested him greatly, and after inspecting minutely the Central Oregon Bank, he concerned himself largely with city improvements. On his trip from the "P" ranch in Harney county, he took particular notice of the roads, and advised that the removal of sharp rocks would prove a lure to many auto tourists.

Mr. Swift wanted full information on Central Oregon fishing, and promised Mr. Mahaffey that he would endeavor to return to Bend before the end of the summer to fill his creel. His trip to Cloud Cap Inn will be to recuperate after his long journey, as he intends to stay at the mountain hostelry for several days.

Carleton Swift, of Portland, who was in Bend at the time that the Central Oregon bank was taken over by the Swift interests, will pay Bend a visit within the next 10 days, Mr. Mahaffey announced this morning.

CLUB APPROVES M'NARY'S WORK

BEND BOOSTERS URGE SUPPORT BE GIVEN POLICY FOR DEVELOPING OREGON IRRIGATION PROJECTS.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
Voicing its approval of the course taken by Senator McNary in seeking a $20,000,000 appropriation from Congress for Oregon irrigation projects, the Bend Commercial club, at its weekly luncheon at the Pilot Butte Inn this noon, voted that the other members of the Oregon delegation in Washington be urged to support the measure, and that letters be written to other commercial clubs in Oregon, asking that they make similar requests. The matter was brought up by A. J. Kroenert, who commended the course taken by the new Oregon senator in seeking to make possible the development of now arid land and the consequent increase in food production for the nation.

Clyde M. McKay reported on the proposed auto trip to the dry farming experiment station at Burns, stated that he had found it impossible to secure enough cars to transport a representative number of farmers from the high desert, and advised that the trip be dropped.

The matter of prizes for the annual Flower show was introduced, and on the recommendation of H. C. Ellis that because of the war no cash prizes be put up by the Commercial club, excepting for vegetables, grains and similar products, the club offered its moral support to the show, but advised that money prizes be offered only for exhibits of a strictly utilitarian nature.

G. V. LINTNER GIVEN BERTH AS CAPTAIN

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
Another Bend man has been called to the colors, it became known today when it was learned that G. V. Lintner, locating engineer on the Oregon Trunk in 1910 and 1911, has been given a commission as captain in the officers' reserve. He is at present in Seattle and will probably be called to active service soon.

BEND MAN LEAVES TO CHASE U-BOATS

J. E. Engbretson Seeks Berth as Mechanic on One of Speed Craft—Hillstrom Cares for Business.

(From Monday's Daily.)
To enter the United States navy service as a mechanic on board one of Uncle Sam's submarine chasers, J. E. Engbretson, of this city, left this morning for Portland. He has had previous experience in the navy, and with his technical knowledge, expects he will have little or no difficulty in landing the desired berth. While he is absent from Bend, Mr. Engbretson's plumbing business will be left in charge of George Hillstrom. Through the agency of J. Ryan, the Engbretson residence, a six-room modern dwelling in Kenwood, was sold to D. T. Carnody at a consideration of $2000. The purchase includes the west half of lots 2 and 4, block 18, in Kenwood.

BANCROFT ACT TO BE INVOKED

COUNCIL AUTHORIZES NEGOTIATION FOR SALE OF IMPROVEMENT BONDS—BITTERS MUST BE SOLD OUT IN WEEK.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
To provide for the improvement of city streets and other public properties, the Bend city council, in special session this morning, moved that the sale of city bonds as provided under the Bancroft act, be taken up with Portland bond buyers. By means of this action it is expected that the council will learn what steps are necessary in the future in accomplishing a number of improvements now under way, or which are being planned.

Because of a number of arrests for drunkenness which were made last week, in which the defendants pleaded Hostetter's Bitters as the cause of their intoxication, the motion of Councilman Steidl that all local drug stores be ordered to discontinue the sale of the compound, and be given one week in which to dispose of their stock, was carried.

All bids for the improvement of Newport avenue were rejected.

MERCURY HITS NEW ALTITUDE

97 DEGREES RECORDED THIS AFTERNOON, BEATING THE SEASON'S MAXIMUM—HOTTER TOMORROW PREDICTED.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)
Promises of the weather man that today's temperature would prove "fair and cooler" proved unreliable this afternoon, when at 3 o'clock the mercury rose to 97 degrees, seven degrees above yesterday's maximum, three above the previous maximum for the season, reached Sunday, and two degrees above the maximum for July reached last year.

The lively breeze prevented the full force of the sun's rays from being noticed, and those out of doors the heat was not felt as keenly as the cooler temperature of yesterday.

BOYS ADMIT TAKING AUTOS FOR JOY RIDE

Three are Turned Loose on Good Behavior After Lecture From District Attorney De Armond.

(From Friday's Daily.)
Confessing that they had taken two automobiles within the last week, one belonging to J. E. Engbretson of this city, the other of Washington registry, Joe Salsbery, Buell Hathaway and Robert (Busco) Whitson, arrested yesterday, were paroled this morning by District Attorney H. H. De Armond. In both instances, the cars were returned unharmed after the trio had finished joy riding. Mr. De Armond gave the boys a lecture and turned them loose with the understanding that any further offenses would result in the present charge being brought up. The boys professed entire ignorance of the taking of a third car on the night of the Fourth.

BETTER SHEEP TO BE RAISED

HIGH PRICES PROVE NEW IMPETUS.

Large Ranch Purchases Near Bend for Wintering Animals Forecast Introduction of More Up-to-Date Methods.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
Better sheep, better and heavier fleeces, and a smaller percentage of loss, are some of the chief results which are to come to pass in Central Oregon as the outcome of the record prices being paid for wool. The introduction of up-to-date methods, and the abandonment to a certain extent at least, of the old hit-or-miss range system, is already being noted in the purchase of ranch properties in the vicinity of Bend, the aggregate value of which is close to a quarter of a million dollars.

A large proportion of this land, totalling nearly 4000 acres, and purchased within the last six weeks, is to be used for sheep. A large part of the purchases have been made by Lake county sheepmen hitherto largely dependent on the range, and the land taken over will be used for winter feeding, for raising hay so that at no time will the sheep be wholly dependent on the range for their feed, while it will be possible to afford adequate protection during the lambing season, reducing losses at this time to a minimum. It is a truism among sheep growers that the well-cared for, well fed sheep will produce more and better wool than the range animal. In past years, the low value of wool made this hardly worth considering, but with wool threatening to reach the dollar mark before the close of the season, the sheep is no longer the lowly creature of other days, but has assumed a position of real importance.

Range Growing Less.
Another cause actuating ranchers in the purchase of lands near Bend is the gradual dwindling of the ranges as the result of the constant incursions made by homesteaders. With the national forest for summer grazing, and irrigated lands supplying the fodder for winter consumption, the sheepman will consider himself fairly safe.

So far, land deals in the vicinity have been made chiefly for the benefit of sheep growers, but it is pointed out that these same ranches could be very advantageously used by cattlemen in the interior, not only for wintering, but as feeding stations where shrinkage caused by the long drives could be eliminated before shipping from Bend. With sheep, the element of shrinkage is not considered important.

Not only will the quality of Central Oregon stock improve through better care, but it may be expected that better blood will be introduced to aid in the production of better and heavier wool. This has already begun on the old Ten-bar ranch, bought by Shirley Cleaveland, to be developed into an establishment for the exclusive raising of thoroughbred stock.

Efficiency Keynote.
Once the new system of stock husbandry has been introduced, the old will never be wholly reverted to, declare experts. More efficient methods will make the sheep business profitable, when old style methods, combined with low prices, would mean profits of a very low percentage, they assert. It means increased production, and more money for Central Oregon and for Bend, as the focus of the Central Oregon sheep industry.

Some of the chief ranches which have changed hands, or on which the deals are practically closed in the last month and a half are as follows: O. E. Butterfield to Tom Croxin, $20,000; W. S. Marshall to Ned J. Angland, $12,000; J. D. Flynn to Shirley Cleaveland, $50,000; Sanders ranch to Dennis O'Connor, $17,000; Archie Powell to Dennis O'Connor, $7500; George Millican to Jim Sloan, $50,000; W. J. Jamison to the Black Butte Livestock Co., $90,000.

HEARING IS GIVEN FRED KASPROWITZ

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
Preliminary hearing was held this afternoon before Justice of the Peace J. A. Eastes, in the case of Fred Kasprowitz, charged with attempting an offense against a 10 year old girl, and two still younger in this city.
