

SHEVLIN-HIXON AGAIN WINNER

5-3 SCORE MADE OVER PORTLAND NINE.

Blake's Generosity Helps Locals to Three of Four Tallies in First Frame — Late Rally Keeps Game From Being Tame.

(From Monday's Daily.) With excellent support from Blake, the Portland slabster, the Shevlin-Hixon team, playing an all-star nine from the Willamette Valley town, won in the first inning yesterday afternoon on the local grounds, running up four scores, which settled the game then and there. The final score was 5-3. Unsatisfactory umpiring by Haley, of Bend, was a feature of the game, it should be noted.

After the All-Stars had been blanked in the first half of the first, Blake walked Shoots, and the Bend shortstop was promptly sacrificed to second by Lind. Houston was passed, and advanced to third while Shoots scored, on Boland's single. Knutsen walked, Fox fanned, and Clifford's two-bagger scored Boland and Knutsen. Blake walked no more men during the remainder of the game.

No more scores decorated the tally sheet until the fifth frame, when Shoots tapped one for two sacks, went to third on Houston's sacrifice, and came in on Blake's wild pitch.

Attempt to Tie in Vain. In the seventh, Karr, of Portland, died on third, but this was the nearest to a score which the visitors had made up to that time. In the eighth, however, McHale hit, went down on Whitten's sacrifice, stole third, and came in on Knutsen's wild pitch. Hornby and Fleitstinger walked, Hogan fanned, and Noonan's long hit scored two. Erickson went out, Clifford to Bullock.

In hopes of tying up the score, McDonnell was sent in for Portland in the ninth, but went out on Fox's throw to first. Blake flied out to Houston, McHale hit, and died on first when Clifford caught Whitten's high foul. The score

MARRIED FOUR WEEKS WHEN HUSBAND LEFT

(From Saturday's Daily.) Suit was filed in circuit court last night by A. J. Moore for Mrs. Minta Haberman, plaintiff, in a divorce action against Matthew Haberman. The complaint alleges that four weeks after the marriage in Vancouver in 1914, the defendant left home and has never since returned. Mrs. Haberman asks that she be permitted to resume her maiden name of Hiatt. Another divorce case was that tried in the Prineville court yesterday, in which a decree based on allegations of cruel and inhuman treatment, coupled with desertion, was handed down in favor of Mrs. Ena Gertrude Smith, plaintiff. She was represented by Mr. Moore.

mans, and we made what use of them we could, but that was little. I had orders one day to locate a dugout and prepare it for use as a battalion headquarters. When I led a squad in to clean it up the odor was so overpowering that we had to put on our gas masks. On entering we first saw two dead nurses with our ghastly flashlights, one standing with her arm around a post, just as she had stood when gas or concussion killed her. Seated at a table in the middle of the place was the body of an old general of the German medical corps, his head fallen between his hands. The task of cleaning up was too dreadful for us. We just tossed in four or five fumite bombs and beat it out of there. A few hours later we went into the seared and empty cavern, made the roof safe with new timbers and notified battalion headquarters that the place could be occupied.

During this time I witnessed a scene which, with some others, I shall never forget. An old chaplain of the Canadian forces came to our trench section seeking the grave of his son, which had been marked for him on a rude map by an officer who had seen the young man's burial. We managed to find the spot, and at the old chaplain's request we exhumed the body. Some of us suggested to him that he give us the identification marks and retire out of range of the shells which were bursting all around us. We argued that it was unwise for him to remain in danger, but what we really intended was that he should be saved the horror of seeing the pitiful thing which our spades were about to uncover. "I shall remain," was all he said. "He was my boy."

It proved that we had found the right body. One of our men tried to clear the features with his handkerchief, but ended by spreading the handkerchief over the face. The old chaplain stood beside the body and removed his trench helmet, baring his gray head to a drizzle of rain that was falling. Then while we stood by silently his voice rose amid the noise of bursting shells, repeating the burial service of the Church of England. I have never been so impressed by anything in my life as by that scene. The dead man was a young captain. He had been married to a lady of Baltimore just before the outbreak of the war. The philosophy of the British Tommies and the Canadians and the Australlians on the Somme was a remarkable reflection of their fine courage through all that hell. They went about their work paying no attention to the flying death about them. "If Fritz has a shell with your name and number on it," said a British Tommy to me one day, "you're going to get it, whether you're in the front line or seven miles back; if he hasn't, you're all right." Fine fighters all. And the Scotch kilties, lovingly called by the Germans "the women from hell," have the respect of all armies. We saw little of the pottus, except a few on leave. All the men are self sacrificing to one another in that big melting pot from which so few ever emerge whole. The only things it is legitimate to steal in the code of the trenches are rum and "fags" (cigarettes). Every other possession is as safe as if it wore a patent lock.

The fifth article of this remarkable personal narrative will appear soon it is entitled: No. 5.—Wounded in Action. This article describes the terrible fight the dead and dying, the loss of a pal and the final falling of McClintock in No Man's Land. Simply told, it is one of the most remarkable descriptions of a battle by a participant ever put together.
