

MOOSE PLANNING 1917 IS RECORD BIGGER BUILDING YEAR FOR GAME

SITES PURCHASED FOR STRUCTURE.

Members Buy $1200 Worth of Bonds at Smoker—Date for Annual Carnival to Be November 12—Boxing Matches Please.

(From Friday's Daily.)
The purchase of more building property in preparation for the erection of a bigger and better club, and the announcement that the carnival so successfully conducted last December will be repeated this year, beginning on November 12, featured the smoker given last night by the Bend Moose lodge, at their headquarters on Bond street. It was announced that the carnival will be made an annual affair.

Twelve hundred dollars' worth of bonds were sold to members of the lodge, financing the purchase of the lot on which the Moose club now stands, as well as the site just north. Later it is planned to erect a two-story building covering both lots, the upper story to be used exclusively by the Moose, while the ground floor will be occupied by store rooms.

To Boost Membership.
The lodge decided in favor of a membership campaign, the goal being set for 500 members. The present membership list is 327.

The hall was filled to the limit for the social session which followed the regular lodge meeting, members from the logging camps having come in cars sent out by the lodge. A short boxing match between Billy George and Ray Golden was followed by a one-round go between George and M. H. Symons. Afterwards George gave a number of strength exhibitions, and travelled a rapid pace in shadow boxing.

Refreshments were served during the evening.

WATERFOWL FOUND IN GREAT ABUNDANCE.

Lakes and Marshes of Central Oregon Teem With Bird Life—Sportsmen to Have Best Chances Since 1911—Deer Near.

(From Monday's Daily.)
Waterfowl will be more abundant in Central Oregon than at any time within six years, was the declaration today of Game Warden John Cunningham after a trip through the game country tributary to Bend. Wherever water is found, particularly in the lakes and marshes, ducks and geese are in great abundance, young ones are plentiful and the birds are so tame that they could be killed with sticks, Mr. Cunningham says.

Throughout Central Oregon these conditions hold good, and hunters will find a veritable paradise when the season opens on October 1. Mallards and sprigs, with some woodcock, are the chief varieties of ducks hatching in this section, teal coming in a little later from the north. Wood ducks are practically the only kind of waterfowl given ironical protection by the law. Geese are nearly as numerous, and 200 of the big birds were seen at Tumalo yesterday.

More Marshes This Year.
Heavy snows last winter which melted gradually during the hot season caused many low spots which usually dry up at the end of spring to continue as marshes through the summer, and many more birds have found homes because of these conditions. Mr. Cunningham explains. Another theory as to the sudden influx of waterfowl is that the old generation of birds, frightened away by heavy blasting when the railroad came to Bend in 1911, has passed away, the younger birds following instinct and coming during the warm months to the many lakes and streams of Central Oregon. Quail, protected by the law at all times, are increasing rapidly, Mr. Cunningham states.

Deer On Big River.
Practically no deer hunting has commenced as yet, although the season has been declared open, but sportsmen should have better luck than usual, for only yesterday good sized bucks were seen fairly close in on Big River, and it has been noted that the deer are not nearly so far up in the mountains as is usual. Mule deer predominate, with a sprinkling of blacktail.

BOOSTERS' PAMPHLET IS IN GREAT DEMAND

(From Wednesday's Daily.)
Praise for the pamphlet issued by the Bend Commercial club is being received from many quarters, and requests for copies of the publication are being received at the club headquarters. Among recent commendations are those received from the Bend Park Co. offices in Seattle, and from insurance companies keenly interested in the growth and progress of the city.

J. E. MORSON HERE.
(From Thursday's Daily.)
For the first time since December, 1914, J. E. Morson has returned to Bend, to find it a much changed place since he had been here handling irrigation work at La Pine. He was formerly project manager of the Deschutes Irrigation Company when the lines were first put in and is now back in connection with new development work in the district south of here and will remain several weeks. When Mr. Morson got off the train from Portland this morning he said he felt like another Rip Van Winkle. The town had changed so much he found a guide almost a necessity.

Heating Stoves Ranges

There are a lot of cold, long days ahead—why not be comfortable this winter? It is cheaper to have a stove that really gives out all of the heat than to put up with an old one that eats fuel as fast as you feed it.

We have a carload of stoves for you to select from. These stoves are not expensive, but they are sturdy, fuel saving, home comforting necessities. Air-tight heaters come in various sizes—just the size for your particular need.

Ranges

You can control our ranges, put the heat where you want it—in the oven, on the top, or just where you can get the best results. You do not have to get a big stove to get a good one. We have both the four and the six-hole stoves. These can be fitted with or without hot water pipes, just as you wish.
