

WEATHER AIDS GYM BUILDING

OUTSIDE SHELL FINISHED—TOTAL COST TO BE $40,000—DRIVE TO BE MADE FOR $5000, NEEDED TO FINISH WORK.

(From Wednesday's Daily.) The unusually open winter has been of great advantage in the construction of the athletic club gymnasium, the storm of Christmas week having only slightly delayed the completion of the roof. The shell of the building is now done and the workmen under the direction of Contractor Guy Wilson are busy on the inside, placing the windows and putting things in readiness for the installation of the plumbing and heating pipes and fixtures.

Although many of the younger men of the town who were interested in the formation of the athletic club have left for the war, the remaining officers have felt it essential to carry on the work and complete the building in order to save the investment made before war conditions arose and provide the town with the much needed gymnasium facilities.

The cost of the building complete, exclusive of the lot which was donated by the Bend Company, is now definitely fixed in round numbers at $40,000. A few weeks ago it was shown that $19,100 was needed to complete it and at that time a first mortgage loan of $10,000 was arranged and $4100 subscribed, on athletic club certificates by business men of the town, leaving a balance of $5000 still to be found. To raise this amount a drive will be made in the next few days giving all who have not yet taken a certificate an opportunity to assist in putting the gymnasium "over the top."

Certificates have already been taken and the money paid in by the following:

with such parties for the sale of water.

Order Will Stand.

At any event, the order of the commission, through the act of the Central Oregon Irrigation Company itself, apparently will stand for some time at least.

Mr. Stearns' letter of acceptance of the order of the commission, as sent the commission, is as follows:

"Permit me to call your attention to one provision in your order dated December 27, 1917, and received by me as secretary of the central Oregon Irrigation Company, December 31, 1917, in the matter of the Central Oregon Irrigation Company Water Users' Association vs. Central Oregon Irrigation Company. This provision is as follows:

"The company before beginning of the irrigation season for the year 1918 shall install at the point designated for the delivery of water to the land of each settler a suitable device for the measurement of all water to be used by said settlers."

"I think there should be added after the word 'settlers':

"And the cost of such measuring device shall be charged and collected by the company as a part of the maintenance fees against, or words of similar import.

"The contract between the company and each settler since July 17, 1907, has the following provision:

"All necessary gates and measuring devices for taking water from the point of delivery on lands of the purchaser for distribution thereon shall be installed by the company at the expense of the purchaser."

Points Out Discrimination.

"Under the earlier form of contract used there was no provision in respect to measuring devices, and if your order is permitted to stand without some such amendment as I suggest, it will appear to the settlers, first that the company is ordered to do this work at its own expense; second, if it charges, as it possibly may under the contract referred to, the cost of the installation to settlers under contract made since June, 1907, it will work a discrimination between those settlers and those who hold their lands under earlier contracts, and the result will be that any attempt by the company to collect the cost of installation of these weirs or measuring devices, under present prices of lumber and labor, will cost the company from $8 to $12 apiece—in some instances possibly considerably more, depending upon the size and location of the weirs—and when this cost is multiplied by the number of weirs, you can readily understand that the aggregate amounts to a considerable sum. In fact, if the company has to incur such expense this coming season without remuneration from the settlers, it will be difficult, if not impossible, to establish the depreciation reserve called for in the subsequent part of the order. On the other hand, if your Honorable Commission shall order each settler to pay, as a part of his maintenance fees, the actual cost of the installation of such measuring device, it will not tend to violate the contract between the company and the settler made in accordance with the contract of June 17, 1907, and it will avoid discrimination between settlers who are under contract and those who are under the forms of contracts previously used, and will assist, not prevent, the company from complying with the order to establish a depreciation reserve.

"As you are individually and collectively aware, the settler is not disposed to pay anything that he does not conceive he is legally bound to pay. I have observed that the settler, in his unwillingness and reluctance to pay maintenance fees to the irrigation company, does not differ in such unwillingness and reluctance from the ordinary taxpayer, whether the tax levied be state, municipal or income.

"I hope, after due consideration, of the suggestions above made, you will see fit to supplement and amend the order to the effect suggested.

Good Faith Expressed.

"Except for the provision above referred to, I do not thing the officers and directors of our company can justly criticize the other portions of the order, and we expect in good faith to carry out the directions therein given, although I personally feel like a boy receiving orders from his step-mother, that she has no right to boss him. In other words, I still think your Honorable Commission is without jurisdiction in the matter, and since the hearing before you I have been fortified in that opinion by a decision of Honorable R. S. Bean, Federal Judge, of the same point being raised before him in a case from Southern Oregon. In saying this, however, I do not wish to be understood as reflecting in any respect upon the integrity, ability and fairness of the commission, or its individual members, for whom collective-regard."
