

MAY BRING IN CHOICE STOCK

CARLOAD OF MILKING SHORT-HORN CATTLE WILL PROBABLY BE CONTRACTED FOR—BANKS WILL AID

(From Saturday's Daily.)
Milking shorthorn cattle may be brought into the Bend country shortly by the farmers working through the Central Oregon bank, which has agreed to match dollar for dollar any purchase of such stock to be used in improving the breed on the range. The shipment of a carload of the shorthorns will involve the investment of practically $10,000 or $350 per head.

Already 24 ranchers in Crook and Deschutes counties have expressed willingness to take two head each if the shipment is brought in. It is planned through this to restock the smaller outside range with herds, which will provide both beef and milk.

"For diversified farming," according to County Agriculturist R. A. Ward, who is aiding in the movement, "where the ranchman is not in a position to conduct a straight dairying herd or beef producing proposition a dual purpose cow is needed. The milking short horn fills the requirements of both. Her calf will fatten out as good as any beef animal, while at the same time she produces enough milk to supply a weekly cream check and when through milking brings a good price as beef. She can be milked throughout the winter, dried up and run on the range with her calf in the summer, which is not the case with dairy cattle.

"Only recognized beef breeds are allowed by law on the Oregon ranges and the milking short horn is up to standard."

Income is Fair
The cow should produce 7000 pounds of four per cent milk annually. At present butter fat prices it should bring in $185 each year. Her calf will make as good beef as any beef animal and will bring ready sale. At present Mr. Ward is buying a milking short horn bull for Tumalo for use by the ranchers until the big carload comes in. It is very likely that a milking short horn stock association will be formed in that community very soon. F. N. Wallace is fostering the movement here.

Price lists from every short horn breeder in the United States have been secured and it was found that on their stock, values range from $150 to $1000 apiece. The American Shorthorn Breeders Association has sent Mr. Ward 50 copies of its year book, which are being given out to prospective purchasers. The ranchers are more than willing to do their part in gringing in the stock. E. P. Mahaffey, of the Central Oregon bank, is of the opinion that the value of Central Oregon stock would be much increased by the introduction of the short horn breed.

the brave and the free. So I ask you to back up the work.

Men Must Volunteer.
"I know your local men are anxious to put this drive over the top and make a better record than ever before. This will mean that you are going to have to dig down in your pockets. You out in the hills will have to do it voluntarily for we can't reach you as we reach those in the city."

Mr. Ryan's talk was greeted with enthusiastic applause and it is evident that the sheepmen are ready to pledge all the assistance they can give in furthering the loan.

Another prominent speaker was Gus C. Moser, candidate for nomination for governor. He, too, paid a tribute to the guests. "The men in Eastern Oregon, who are tending the flocks, are doing as great a service as the men across the water," he said. This was followed by a talk on the irrigation work, ending with an expression of confidence in the successful outcome of the war.

Need for Co-operation.

E. D. Cusack, president of the Oregon Bankers' association and candidate for state treasurer, told of the desire of the banking interests to co-operate with the sheep industry, especially during the war. "We want to build up our state so when the time of adjustment comes we will be ready for it," he affirmed. "Oregon is cashing in too much on her industries. What we want is to have the state take care of its own interests and cease paying its money out. The wool industry is just as much interested in the prosperity of the state as any other. What I wish to impress on you is that we need to co-operate in our industries and build up a better state."

Local speakers were A. M. Pringle, just returned from a trip east; E. P. Mahaffey, A. Whisman, R. P. Minter and T. A. McCann. Mr. Mahaffey also emphasized the Liberty loan. "It depends upon us as citizens of this great country who are making money (and we can't deny it) to dig down in our pockets. We have enough citizens here so we can go over the top again without any whining. We must wear our old suits a little longer and make our money go a little farther."

Explains Car Situation.
Explaining the car situation, H. E. Lounsbury, of the O.-W. R. & N. of ices in Portland, gave a short talk. He expressed a desire on the part of the roads to co-operate with the sheep men and all the manufacturers to the fullest extent. He told of the work of the railroads in providing assistance in war gardening and of the problems of transportation. On one line in one day, he said, there are often as many as 26 freight trains carrying war supplies. He urged that every shipper load his cars to the fullest extent. "If you can't completely fill one car go in with another town or business house and use it together," he said.

Statistics showing the extent of the sheep industry in this section were given by County Agriculturist R. A. Ward, the last speaker. He showed that there are now 300,000 sheep on the 15,000 square miles devoted to grazing land for them. The annual wool clip is 2,500,000 pounds. One hundred thousand head of sheep and 762,000 pounds of wool left Bend by rail in the fall of 1916. Forty per cent more territory has been put in alfalfa this year and this will help the industry. "This is a big opportunity for the sheep man to help in producing clothing for the soldiers," he concluded. "I truly believe the sheep men will go over the top in wool production, as they have in other things."

Irish Scheme Throughout.
Music decorations and menu carried out an Irish scheme throughout. The long tables in the dining room were arranged so that three joined the main one opposite the big window. Here the speakers were seated. All along were tiny Irish flags, clever menu cards in green and white and souvenir shamrock boutonnières. At the center of the board was a large section of roast lamb elaborately garnished.

A quartet composed of Mrs. Fred Fish, Mrs. Dell Parker, H. M. Greiner and C. W. Erskine, between courses and speakers, sang clever songs, the words composed to fit the occasion, and accompanied by old familiar melodies. Mrs. C. V. Silvis also gave a vocal number. A full orchestra played the opening selections.

Governor Withycombe was detained in Portland and unable to be present at the dinner.

Everyone Gives.
The last event of the evening was the auctioning of "Bill." Besides Mr. Stanfield's and Mr. Cronin's gifts, other large purchasers were:

T. A. McCann, $300; Dan Hourigan, $200; Mr. Clark of Shaniko, $200; A. M. Pringle, $100; Tom Paxton of Walla Walla, $100; the forest service men, $60; V. A. Forbes, $50; J. E. Larson, $50; Ned England, $50, and George Russell, $50. No bid was for less than $5 and before the sale was over every person present had bought the sheep once, and in some cases twice. The complete list will be printed tomorrow.

Swift & Company Publicity

At a recent hearing of the Federal Trade Commission there was introduced correspondence taken from the private files of Swift & Company, which showed that the Company had been considering for some time an educational advertising campaign.

The need for this publicity has been apparent to us for several years. The gross misrepresentation to which we have recently been subjected has convinced us that we should no longer delay in putting before the public the basic facts of our business, relying on the fair-mindedness of the American people.

The feeling against the American packer is based largely on the belief that the income and well-being of the producer and consumer are adversely affected by the packers' operations, resulting in unreasonably large profits.

Swift & Company's net profit is reasonable, and represents an insignificant factor in the cost of living.

For the fiscal year 1917 the total sales and net profit of Swift & Company were as follows:

Sales
$875,000,000.

Profits
$34,650,000.

This is equivalent to a $3,465. profit on a business of $87,500.

If Swift & Company had made no profit at all, the cattle raiser would have received only one-eighth of a cent per pound more for his cattle, or the consumer would have saved only one-quarter of a cent per pound on dressed beef.
