Elevation and Rainy Weather

Is thirty-six hundred feet elevation too high, or sea level too wet? If so, come and go with me to Long Hollow, where elevation is only a little over twenty-six hundred feet. This is not too high or too low. It is there where we have the beautiful sunshine, and can grow the many nice things that mother use to grow away down in Missouri. One man ripened three thousand pounds of tomatoes, watermelons weighing 42 pounds, and the most delicious sweet corn that ever grew.

I only mention a few of these things so you perhaps will find the very thing you are looking for. And again I wish to call your attention to the wonderful opportunity for raising stock. Alfalfa grows in prolific clusters, there are thousands of acres of outside range, commencing at west side of the property and running to the Willamette valley without an obstruction.

Stock are turned out first of March and stay fat on the range until the first of January. The lands I am offering for sale are what have been known in the past as the famous Long Hollow Ranch owned by the Black Butte Land and Live Stock Company. This was one of the first established stock ranches in Eastern Oregon, and has always been considered the most favored spot, being free from the severest winds and hard freezes.

I have been requested to sell this ranch in tracts of 40, 80, 160 acres and at prices of $2.50 for dry lands and $70 to $80 per acre for lands that have water right and in cultivation. Terms, a small payment down, balance in twenty years, 6% with no payment for five years after the first small deposit. This land will pay for itself and all operating expenses within five years if seeded to alfalfa. Since I placed these tracts on the market I have shown them to fourteen people and have sold ten of them. I only mention this to show you what per cent. buys after looking the land over, and three out of the four will buy if they can raise the money for first payment.

Those that have bought have been in this country for six or more years, and undoubtedly know what they are buying. Remember, you will have to be a married man and living with your wife or you cannot buy one of these tracts. We want families that will live on the land. This is not a get rich scheme with the Squaw Creek district—it is to get the ranch cut up and get more people in the country. 40 acres will make you a good home.
