

Over the Top by Nine O'clock on Fourth Liberty Loan Day Is To Be Slogan For Oregon

The all-important "zero hour" of the battles in France is to have its counterpart in the campaign of the fourth Liberty loan in Oregon.

Battles in France are timed from an hour, or minutes of an hour. This time is known as the "zero hour" and is a secret closely guarded by the division heads. All movements of troops and all action is based on time calculations made from the "zero hour."

Oregon's "zero hour" for the next Liberty loan is 9 o'clock, September 28. This is to be the watchword of the whole drive and through voluntary subscriptions this state is expected to have attained all objectives and again be "over the top" first by 9 o'clock of the day when other states will just be getting into action. County managers and committees in their recent meeting in Portland decided that it could be done; that all Oregon needed was to be told how much Uncle Sam needed, and how badly he needed it, and its patriotic citizens would each do their part so willingly that the effort of soliciting committees would not be needed.

Symbolizing this whole scheme, state headquarters has sent to The Bulletin a graphic interpretation of the spirit of the campaign. It is a small clock with the "zero hour," 9 o'clock pointed out by the hands.

At the top, a soldier in an expression of grim determination brings home the spirit of accomplishment, while at the bottom is Uncle Sam confidently looking at the time indicated. It is up to Oregon to see that he is not disappointed.

Buttons for subscribers to the next loan have also arrived in Oregon and are now being distributed to the county organizations. The button is slightly smaller than the last. It is patterned after the honor flag of the last loan, being a rectangle of white bordered with red and crossed by the four blue stripes, symbolizing the fourth Liberty loan.

Posters and other advertising matter are arriving in great quantities and problems of previous drives with regard to slow deliveries of supplies have been overcome with early movement from Washington in the way of large posters and lithographs and local production of the smaller matters.

Local committees will get what they want when they need it so that they will be able to offer their subscribers every inducement to make his voluntary declaration in plenty of time to make good the plan of the state committees.

BEND MAN LOST IN THE WOODS

HARRY HAYDEN BECOMES SEPARATED FROM PARTY AND WANDERS IN HILLS NEAR EDISON CAVES TILL MORNING.

(From Monday's Daily.) Harry Hayden, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hayden of this city, who was lost last night in the vicinity of the Edison Ice caves, was found today by members of a searching party in the vicinity of Old Bachelor, where he had wandered during the night hours.

Hayden was one of a party of employees of The Shevlin-Hixon Company who left Saturday night for a deer hunt in the vicinity of Edison caves. Arriving at their destination, members of the party spent the day tramping over the heavily wooded hills in that vicinity in quest of deer. Late yesterday afternoon all of them returned to the camp with the exception of Hayden. His companions awaited his return until darkness had set in, feeling no apprehension for his tardiness, merely thinking that perhaps he had taken the track of game and had difficulty in returning. Late in the evening the party heard a shot, presumably from the missing man's gun, and returned it. There was no answer and nothing was seen or heard of the man from that time until he was found today, although his companions remained on the scene searching and calling for him until nearly midnight.

Some time between midnight and this morning members of the party returned to Bend and making up a searching party of woodsmen from the mills left again for the district to further pursue the search. Today additional autos loaded with volunteer searching parties were preparing to leave the city when the news of his rescue was received here.

Fire Protection Needs to be Worked Out by Committee Appointed by City Council

(From Thursday's Daily.)

Division of the city into districts and the organization of a volunteer fire brigade in each of these districts as a temporary relief from the present fire hazard and the compilation of a report of the cost of purchasing and maintaining adequate fire protective facilities for the city of Bend, to be reported to the Commercial club at the meeting next Wednesday, was the chief discussion of the special meeting of the city council called last night to confer with a committee from the Commercial club on this matter.

Judge Eastes, chairman of the Commercial club committee, opened the discussion when he placed before the five members of the council present the views of the business men of the city upon the lack of proper fire protection in Bend. He made it clear that the committee, the members of the Commercial club or the city did not deem it any fault of the council that the present conditions exist, but that it was the desire of the Commercial club to have the council take some action to place the facts before the people and get some action at the election this fall. He brought out the facts that the city had grown in eight years from a town of four or five hundred to between six and seven thousand, but that no provision had been made for the protection of the city from fire to offset this growth.

Hands Are Tied.

Clyde McKay, president of the council and acting mayor, told the committee that the hands of the council were tied so far as the expenditure of money was concerned, and that it would necessitate a special election and bonding issue to provide the funds for the purchase of material called for by the state fire marshal's recommendation. The money could not be raised by straight taxation, he declared, because of the handicap of the 6 per cent. limitation, which will not under normal conditions permit the raising of sufficient taxes to run the city next year, and that already there would have to be a special tax levied to carry back indebtedness to the amount of possibly $9,000.

Would Bond for Purchase.

In his opinion, as with the majority of the council, the simplest way out of the matter would be to issue bonds for an amount sufficient to purchase the material needed, approximately $12,000, and then provide for the maintenance, estimated at $4,000 per year, through a special levy, making in all a total of between $12,000 and $14,000 to be raised by special taxation.

Would Organize Temporarily.

Carl A. Johnson, member of the Commercial club committee, in advocating some measure for temporary protection until the permanent department could be organized, suggested that the city be divided into districts and that volunteers be chosen in each district to take care of the needs in that district. It was his idea that the present equipment could be divided among these various districts, and upon an alarm being sent in from one section the men chosen there could handle the blaze with limited facilities until the volunteers from the other sections of the city had arrived.

Will Report to Club.

After lengthy discussion it was finally decided that the matter would be placed with the fire and water committee of the council, which was instructed to learn the cost of the installation of new equipment as recommended by the state fire marshal, and also measures for temporary relief, to report to the Commercial club at the weekly meeting next Wednesday, at which time the support of the club will be asked in getting the measure on the ballot at the November election.
