SUNFLOWERS SOLVE PROBLEM OF FEED

Tests Made on Cloverdale Ranch Show Big Yield and High Food Values.

CLOVERDALE, Jan. 7.—After corresponding for some time with the agricultural colleges of Montana and Idaho, J. L. Parberry of Sisters believes he has solved the feed problem of Central and Eastern Oregon by using sunflowers for silage. It is almost impossible to raise corn successfully in this locality, and as sunflowers planted on the Parberry ranch grew to heights of eight to 12 feet when irrigated and from five to seven feet when not irrigated, Mr. Parberry is planning to seed about five acres to sunflowers and will erect a 75 or 100 ton silo on his Cloverdale ranch this summer. In Indiana feeding tests conducted for eight years show that steers fed silage made a profit of $15.24 a head, while steers fed no silage show a profit of only $6.85, making a gain of $4.39 where silage was fed. Ohio experiments show that 28 per cent. more butterfat and 17 per cent. more milk are the gains where cows were fed largely on silage over cows fed heavily on grain. At the Montana Agricultural college two plots of ground were seeded to corn and sunflowers for experimental purposes. The one seeded to corn yielded 11 tons to the acre, while the plot seeded to sunflowers yielded from 28 to 36 tons to the acre. These experiments show that silage greatly cheapens beef, milk, mutton and wool by cutting down the cost of grain. Still another experiment shows the saving on clover hay when sunflower silage is fed to dairy cows. Thirty-five pounds of hay and 12 pounds of grain per cow were fed to dairy cows in comparison with 13 pounds of hay and 30 pounds of silage, thus making a saving of 22 pounds of hay and resulting in a general increase in the milk flow. Mr. Parberry has also conversed with County Agricultural Agent R. A. Ward about the sunflower proposition and was furnished with a table showing high food values of sunflowers compared with corn, oats and peas.

Providing that there are no new cases of flu in Cloverdale, school will commence on Monday, January 13.
