WITNESS FOR STATE HAS MEMORY LAPSE

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Because Jeff Kelley, complaining witness in the trial of Barnett Lowell, could not remember having liquor in his possession when he was arrested last Thursday night, the jury in Judge Peoples' court returned a verdict of not guilty to the charge of bootlegging last night. H. H. De Armond conducted the prosecution, E. O. Stadter acting as counsel for the defendant.

Chief of Police Nixon and Sheriff S. E. Roberts testified to having arrested Kelley and finding a partly filled bottle of whiskey on him, while Kelley told of buying the liquor. Lowell denied any knowledge of the sale and produced evidence to establish an alibi.

The jury in the case was made up of R. L. De Courcy, Arthur Schilling, Sylvester L. Staats, Andrew V. Clarno, E. E. Hanna and T. W. Carlon.
