

MAKING CITIZENS OF ALIENS

Excellent Work Done Through Classes Conducted Under Auspices of Bureau of Naturalization.

Many aliens who enter the naturalization courts as candidates for citizenship are much better grounded in the knowledge of American government and institutions than the average native of this country.

The reason for their excellent knowledge of the American government lies in the care taken by the citizenship classes, now conducted in public schools throughout the country by the bureau of naturalization, department of labor, to inculcate thorough familiarity with the institutions of the land of their adoption.

Naturalization is a somewhat complicated process at best, for not only must the alien satisfy the requirements of the state in which he expects citizenship, but he must also meet the demands of the naturalization court, which has the right to reject his application, at its own discretion.

The citizenship classes aim to make the way to citizenship as easy as possible for men and women who are willing to fit themselves for it.—Grit.

SPRUCING UP UNDER FIRE

Soldier in the Trenches Wielded Razor While Enemy Shells Were Passing Above Him.

The sailor who can shave himself in a storm has found his match in the soldier Walter Ehrman, a Kansas City man, saw at the Argonne front.

"He had a mirror between his knees," writes Ehrman, "and he was intermittently shaving himself. Which is to say, that, between acts, he'd mow a section of his face. Whenever a shell would come over he would duck expertly, only to resume his interrupted task in moments of what you might call peace.

"Hey, buddie, do you need a shave that bad?" I asked him.

"Aw, my mug's so blame dirty, had to have it," was his reply.

"And here's another: One of our medics found a pair of hair clippers on the field, and while he was waiting in a shell hole with a doughboy until an enemy barrage should light up, he clipped that doughboy's hair as nice and stylish as you please, till they'd hardly let him in when he returned to the trench, he looked that different."

WHO WILL TAKE OLCOTT'S JOB?

candidate for secretary of state is Sam A. Koser, who has served as chief deputy for nearly 20 years, and who, perhaps, is more thoroughly acquainted with the duties of the office than Mr. Olcott himself.

If Governor Olcott should name Mr. Koser as his successor it might prove an even wiser political move than if he were to name some person of known political strength. Mr. Koser is not a politician, and his worth to the governor as a political asset would be almost negligible. Still, it would be a good brand of campaign material which the governor could put to use four years hence when he aspires to gubernatorial honors.

"Efficiency before politics" is a mighty handy campaign slogan to have on tap at political headquarters when the four-year battle for votes impends.

However, Mr. Koser has by no means the inside track, so far as predictions go, for another possible candidate which sounds more feasible to many who believe they know something of state politics, is Louis Bean of Eugene. Mr. Bean was a representative at the last session of the legislature, and is a brother of Federal Judge Bean.

Mr. Bean is a good politician. Likewise, he enjoys a state-wide political acquaintance, which would prove a thing of value for Mr. Olcott when he goes before an uncertain state constituency for retention as governor.

State Senator W. W. Banks of Portland is the third man who has been named as the possible appointee for secretary of state. It was Senator Banks who led the fight on the floor of the senate against the bill creating the office of lieutenant-governor. It is well known legislative history that this bill was aimed only at Mr. Olcott, then secretary of state. It was an effort by politicians to keep him from ascending to the gubernatorial chair, if possible. Mr. Olcott, naturally enough, feels kindly toward Senator Banks for his efforts, and it is only natural to suppose that he might reward this service with the desired appointment.

However, the capitol prophets must continue to predict for several weeks at least. The fact that Attorney-General Brown, in a recent opinion, held that Governor Olcott might resign as secretary of state and appoint his successor does not put an end to the question. Mr. Olcott insists upon a more definite understanding of his rights, and he has already arranged for the question to be taken before the state supreme court early in April.

When the state's highest tribunal passes upon this point, and not until then, will Mr. Olcott make known his intentions, but from all that can be gathered at this time it is a fairly safe bet that either Mr. Koser, Representative Bean or Senator Banks will be named as secretary of state. If Mr. Koser is named it will mean that Governor Olcott demands efficiency above all else, while the appointment of either of the others will mean that he has a desire to strengthen his political fortress. Nor does this mean that Mr. Bean and Mr. Banks will not make good officials.

National liquor interests suffered a decisive defeat in their initial efforts to circumvent the will of the people of Oregon with reference to prohibition. Efforts by the liquor crowd to secure a referendum on the legislative joint resolution ratifying the national prohibition amendment were defeated when Attorney-General Brown handed down an opinion to the effect that such a question could not be submitted to the voters of this state.

It is more than possible that the liquor interests will carry their fight into the supreme court as intimation that this will be done was made by their representatives this week. The liquor interests bring word to Salem that they are going to exercise every possible legal right in an effort to evade nation-wide prohibition, but their first move in this state cannot be said to be a wise one. Even though a referendum should be called on the national prohibition amendment it would have no bearing on Oregon's prohibition status even though the voters, through some mischance, should register approval of the action of the liquor interests.

Overhears Conversation that Leads To His Recovery, Gains 18 Pounds.

"I have already gotten back about 18 pounds of the weight I lost while I was sick, and now my health seems to be just perfect," said Harry V. Horiocher, in a recent conversation at the Mathewson Hotel, 204 Columbia street, Portland, regarding the benefits he has derived from the use of Tanlac. Mr. Horiocher is a well known contractor and is employed by the Standifer Construction company of Vancouver, Washington.

"On the 20th day of last March," he explained, "I was taken down with an attack of stomach poisoning—ptomaine poisoning I believe they call it—that almost carried me away and since that time, until I got Tanlac, nothing I would eat would agree with me. What little I did eat was sure to sour causing much gas and pain and misery. I lost my appetite almost entirely, and some times just the smell of cooking would make me dreadfully sick at my stomach. My food evidently did me no good, as I fell from 180 pounds to 150. I just had to lay off from my work as I felt too weak and exhausted for several weeks to even attempt to do anything. Just climbing up the stair to my room would exhaust me and take all of my energy. I was constipated all the time, had headaches and noticed that my nerves were going to pieces, as I could not get a good night's sleep. Nothing would do me any good and I became worried about my condition.

"One day while I was in the Owl Drug Store I happened to overhear a lady who was buying a bottle of Tanlac tell the man who was waiting on her that she had been suffering from stomach trouble for years, and that Tanlac was the only medicine she had ever taken that did her any good. Well, she did not know it, but just that little remark of hers sold me a bottle of Tanlac right then and there and if I only knew her name I would like to thank her for putting me on to the thing that put me back to health and strength. My stomach feels now like it was in just as good shape as it ever was. And such an appetite as I do have! I believe that I could eat five meals a day without suffering a particle afterwards. By using the Tanlac tablets in connection with Tanlac I have been relieved of constipation, and I am never bothered any more with headache. I now feel one hundred per cent strong and well and am now putting in full time at my work, and I certainly do think Tanlac is a great medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Bend by the Owl Pharmacy, in Sisters by George F. Aitken and in Bend by the Horton Drug Company. Adv.

CENTRAL OREGON FARMER VOLUME 1 BEND, OREGON. NO. 1 PUBLISHED BY THE BEND HARDWARE COMPANY.

PLANT A GARDEN, SAYS UNCLE SAM

Because War Is Over, No Excuse to Lay Down on Making Gardens.

"What's the use?" The war is over and I can't see why we should go on trying to make food like we did last year."

Yes, the war is over, but the fact that it is over don't add a pound of food or bushel of grain to the world's supply, and won't until all the armies are back home and have a chance to put in a year's work to make a crop. It will be a year or more before the American army sent to France will be back on this side of the ocean and working at their old jobs.

The end of the war means hundreds of millions more hungry mouths bidding in American markets for food than there were depending on us during the war. As you read this there are millions of people in Europe actually starving, hundreds of them dying every day because there is no food available for them. These are absolute facts that we must consider, no matter if we do consider them in a cold blooded manner.

Leaving out of consideration every feeling of humanity we of the South must as a matter of common sense and self-protection use just as much or more effort to make food, at least for our home needs, as we did in 1915. Why? Because food and grain of every kind is high and with the increased demand for American food brought on by peace it is going to stay high for a year or more. This is a direct hit-your-pocketbook reason.

Uncle Sam, seeing all these things, wants you to make a good garden in 1919.

He knows, through the Department of Agriculture, that the home garden is the quickest and cheapest source of food supply, that in 1918 three hundred and fifty million dollars worth of food came from the home gardens of the United States. This was new value in food, never produced before. Uncle Sam wants you to have a share in this in 1919. Will you? We have the seeds and tools. It is up to you.

We Cannot Insure You A Crop.

But our aim has always been to buy our Seed from reliable seed houses. Western seed, grown under western conditions in a western climate for western trade, is our motto.

You certainly would experience better results than from an eastern seed.

Again, Mr. Farmer:

The same applies to you as to the mechanic. Good tools, coupled with a knowledge of the work, harvests better results.

If it is a Plow, make it the Oliver.

If it is a Lawn Mower, we have it.

We buy our implements suitable to this territory and our prices are less. Compare them.
