DANCE MONEY TO GO THROUGH RED CROSS

American Legion Advises Against Administration of Funds by German-Austrian Relief Society.

Money raised Monday at a dance given at the Hippodrome for the benefit of Austrian babies, will be turned over to the Bend Chapter of the Red Cross to be used for relief work by the American Red Cross organizations now operating in Vienna, according to a statement given out by the executive committee of Percy A. Stevens Post, American Legion. This action is being taken by the request of the Legion officials, as it has been ascertained that the German-Austrian relief society, under the direction of which organization the dance was given, is not a nationally recognized war relief association.

To guard against any possible wrongful use of the money raised last night, especially in view of the fact that Austria and the United States are still technically at war, the funds will be administered through Red Cross channels, Charles W. Erskine, chairman of the local post, stated Tuesday.

ALLEGED KILLER IS BOUND OVER

As a reward for four weeks' work while in the east, Deputy Sheriff August Anderson received a telegram Friday informing him that a man going under the name of Frankes has been bound over to the grand jury for the murder of Carl Anderson, brother of the Deschutes county official.

First reports which reached the local deputy sheriff two months ago were to the effect that his brother's body had been found at Willmar, Minnesota, and that a verdict of suicide had been returned by the coroner. Refusing to accept the findings of the Minnesota official, Mr. Anderson left for the east after carrying on a fruitless correspondence. Arriving in Willmar, he investigated the case thoroughly and his suspicions pointed to the man now under arrest. He then retained a Pinkerton operative without informing him of the results of his own work, and obtained an affirmative check.

Finger prints on the handle of the razor with which the crime was committed and on cards found in the pockets of the murdered man were examined by the Bertillon department of the St. Paul police force and identified with those of Frankes as the last step in the chain of evidence.

Robbery is now generally accepted as the motive for the crime, Mr. Anderson states.

Sweet is Sympathy.
Sympathy is one of the great secrets of life. It overcomes evil and strengthens good. It disarms resistance, melts the hardened heart, and develops the better part of human nature.

LIGHTNING STORM DISABLES MACHINE

Disabled by an electric storm Sunday afternoon, the car driven by Mrs. Harry Manion of Bend was towed into the city Sunday evening from south of La Pine. The machine had gone approximately 100 miles when it refused to proceed farther.

The car had passed through a severe lightning storm several miles farther south, but had apparently suffered no damage. Later Mrs. Manion stopped the auto to offer aid to the occupants of another machine stalled by the road, and on endeavoring to resume the trip discovered that the starting mechanism had been disabled.

WAR CHANGES FARM METHODS

FARMERS TURN ATTENTION TO MODERN IDEAS, USING SUGGESTIONS OF EXPERTS TO INCREASE YIELDS.

During the past two years the methods of production and conservation employed by the farmers of this country have advanced 20 years beyond what they would have been during peace times, says G. I. Christie, assistant secretary of agriculture. Prior to 1914 and even up to the declaration of war by the United States, there were farmers in every community who were not interested in county agents, farmers' institutes, the agricultural colleges, or the United States department of agriculture. But when war was declared and Uncle Sam asked the farmers to grow more food-stuffs of every kind, those who had before assumed an attitude of indifference responded to the call. Throughout the nation these farmers, with a spirit of patriotism and an additional inducement of fair prices and assurance of reasonable compensation for their expenditures, called upon the federal department and other agencies that could give them information. The attitude as well as the spirit of the farmers changed from peace-time to war-time farming.

No More Old Methods.

Improved methods and practices adopted and now being applied have come to stay, says Mr. Christie. In future farming operations we should have little question as to the practice of the man who has treated his oats for smut and has increased his yield; the man who has applied fertilizer to his wheat and has increased his crops five to ten bushels an acre; the man who has sought information on the feeding of cattle and has found that by adding protein to the ration he can produce a pound of beef with 9 pounds of corn where the old ration required 13 pounds of grain; the man who was encouraged to build a silo through which he is able to feed a carload of cattle with the crops from 15 acres of land when before it required 25. Men who have learned these lessons have seen the results, and have profited by them are not going back to the old-time methods. Farmers are reaching out and inquiring in a broader way for additional aid.

"There were more tons of fertilizers applied on wheat land than during any previous year," says Mr. Christie. "There was more early plowing. There was better cultivation. There was better selection of varieties and better treatment of the seed. There has been more top dressing of the crop with straw and manure than ever was known in any other year. Part of the crop is due to the weather, some just to plain luck, but the big results that are showing at this hour in the wheat fields all over this country are due to the improved methods employed by farmers.

"There is large and sufficient evidence to show that agriculture has made a rapid, sure and substantial advance. If that is true, then agriculture will not readily revert.

"At no time has the farmer been called upon to give greater attention to the business side of his operations. In this day of high-priced land, labor, seed, fertilizers, machinery, and other materials and equipment, careful attention must be given to economical production. Industrial plants have found it necessary to introduce the cost accounting system in order that the cost of each part manufactured may be determined. In the same way farmers must conduct their business and know more definitely the desirable and profitable lines of production.

"Not every farmer has it within his power to increase his acreage, but he can very materially increase his income by judiciously increasing the size of his business. There is one way of doing this that seems to be open to farmers in practically all parts of the country. The farm management studies conducted by the department of agriculture bring out the fact that the simplest and surest way for the land-locked farmer to make more money is to produce more and better livestock. There is but limited opportunity for expansion in the production of the intensively grown crops, but there is great opportunity for expansion in the production of all classes of livestock.

"The more scrub cows a man has the worse off he is if he persists in trying to produce milk from them, and in some cases the quickest way to increase net returns is to sell a bunch of canners. The high-class hog and the high-class cow, each in its own field, has no equal in efficiency in turning raw products into human food, but until we realize the wide difference in efficiency between the scrub cow producing 2000 pounds of milk and the animal yielding 7000 pounds of milk, or between the razorback hog and the hog that converts corn into pork rapidly and economically, we are not in a position to make the most of this fact.

"So the farmer who seeks to increase his business by going into livestock enterprises will make a grave mistake unless he pays strict attention to the vital question of quality of stock. It is not necessary to begin with expensive registered animals, for good grade stock will serve, but it is essential that great care be exercised in selecting the individual animals that are to serve as the foundation of the herd or flock. When such care is taken, however, there is no safer way for the farmer to increase the size of his business than by intensive production of livestock."

SPRAYING ROOSTS ELIMINATES MITES

The poultry keeper who sprays his chicken roosts thoroughly three times during the season, beginning in April, will have little cause to worry about mites.

The troublesome poultry house mite is sure to appear with warm weather. The most common means of control perhaps is kerosene sprayed on the perches each week, some farmers give the roosts an occasional coat of whitewash.

Stronger liquids such as the commercial tar products are better; they last longer work more thoroughly. It is well to dilute the coal tar products with kerosene, so that a spray pump can be used to apply them. Instructions specially adapted to each preparation are supplied by the manufacturers, and if carefully followed, result in a thorough elimination of the pests.

Prize Mixer.

"A good mixer, isn't he?" "You betcha!" replied a citizen of Grudge. "He can tell more funny stories, borrow more money, pay less of it back, get more signers to petitions, be elected to more lodge offices and do less honest work than any other three men in town."—Judge.
