"That completed our second big feature on an Alaskan story," says the company's wire, "and are now looking for logging and timber locations to produce our next picture, a romance of the timber, to be played by an all star cast, and requiring extensive logging scenes. Kindly advise if your mills and camps will be in operation during the month of November, also if we may have the cooperation of your Commercial club and camps in securing the necessary scenes.

BUSINESS MEN BEHIND LEGION

ALL ARE WORKING FOR REVEILLE WEEK.

Programs to Be Distributed Outlining Complete Events for Week— Popular Girl Contest Is Started This Morning.

"It's an American Legion affair," declared officers of the Percy A. Stevens post, American Legion, discussing Reveille week, which starts Monday evening and continues until Saturday night. And without more questioning Bend got shoulder to shoulder with the ex-service men and is working to help make Reveille week the biggest week of celebration ever known in Bend. Every indication is that the week will be six days and nights full of "something doing every minute." Every corner of the surrounding territory for more than 25 miles has been plastered with poster paper announcing the week of festivity. A committee is now working on a program that will give in detail events of the week. These programs will be printed in great numbers and scattered throughout adjacent territory. Every day will be a feature day and each day and night will be in charge of different organizations. Its "An American Legion affair" this year but those who are giving time and effort now hope the celebration will be known as the Deschutes county fair next year.

"Bargain Day" to be Feature.

That every business man in Bend is lined up for "Reveille" is evidenced in the fact that merchants, through the efforts of secretary McPherson, of the Commercial club, have subscribed $200, to be used for a free display of fireworks on Thursday evening, following the demonstration by the Bend fire department. The merchants are going to join in a "bargain day" feature when they will each have a wonderful amount of goods that will be sold.

mer and we expect twice as many in 1920."

Thomas A. Marlow, president of the National Bank of Montana and Republican state committeeman, explained the purpose of the Yellow-car tour further.

Will Develop Northwest

"Our government has at last come to the point of adding a travel bureau to its service," said Mr. Marlow. "It has been forced to this because of pressure from Europe. The governments of Switzerland, Italy, France, Great Britain and the rest are flooding America with tourist propaganda. They want Americans to spend their vacation dollar overseas. Before the war, Americans did this at the rate of half a billion a year. The West cannot afford to have the tide of tourist travel turned away."

merely exchanged for logged off lands as provided in the bill, he suggested an amendment, according to which 75 per cent of government stumping acquired by a private operator, might be paid for through exchange, the remaining 25 per cent being purchased by a cash payment. Mr. McPherson said that both the Bend mill companies and the administration of the Deschutes National Forest are willing that these changes should be made in the bill providing they do not delay its passage, and the committee was empowered to do the matter of taking up the proposed amendments with Congressman Sinnott.

Mail Route Petitioned.

Jared Moore reported on the Alfalfa rural mail route, stating that 30 names are now on the petition and that the community seems to be in favor of a route connecting the Bend, rather than having an extension of the Powell Butte route. A meeting will be held soon in Tu to in regard to securing a route from Bend to that community, he announced.

A wire was read from Secretary Cornwall, of the Pacific Logging Congress, thanking the Bend Commercial club for the entertainment furnished the members of the congress during their visit to Bend and the vicinity on Saturday.
