RIPPLING RHYMES

By WALT MASON

Making a Hit.

A friend whose name I do not mention had tried for years to gain renown; he tried all ways to win attention, and set folks talking in the town. But all the chances seemed against him, none yielded to his smile or lure; the pent-up Uticas, they fenced him, and kept him painfully obscure. He wrote fine odes and none would read them, men only laughed to see him soar; he made high talks and none would heed them, and people voted him a bore. And when he'd failed in projects twenty, and was to humble walks resigned, fame came his way, and came a-plenty, and now he's in the Public Mind. He is the pride of every voter, and men discuss him near and far—the man who does not own a motor, the guy who has no choo-choo car. When strangers visit in our city, we show the pesthouse and the jail, ye editor, so wise and witty, the banker with his bunch of kale. We view the local legislature, the court house, with its doors ajar, and then produce that freak of nature, the man who doesn't own a car.

this morning returning to Lakeview from a business trip to Portland.

Four from Bend were advanced to the rank of knight at Redmond, six esquires from the latter lodge also receiving the work in the third rank. A banquet followed the initiation. The new Bend knights are A. J. Moore, H. H. Wilcox, Cassie Flynn, and Carl N. Peterson.

SUPPLY OF VIRUS IN CITY IS SMALL

Approximately 120 persons can be vaccinated against smallpox with the supply of virus now on hand in the Bend drugstores, it was learned Saturday, but an increased amount can be secured with little difficulty, local night, quickly ignited the wooden wall and resulted in destruction which will probably necessitate the replacement of the better part of the building. The Sunday school room in the rear was slightly damaged by water and the room in the extreme east of the building, formerly used to house the city library, was not touched. To replace the building, it is estimated, would cost $5,000, while only $1,500 insurance was carried.

According to this order, children and their instructors must be inoculated at the earliest possible date. The vaccination may be performed by any licensed practitioner, but in case children or parents are unable to pay the required fee, the work will be done by the county or city physician, with no charge to the individual.
