ENUMERATION MADE OF MILK DRINKERS

Redmond children are not heavy milk drinkers, according to figures given by Miss Margaret Brems, county Red Cross nurse, following a survey just completed. Out of 169 pupils questioned, 54 did not partake of milk regularly, 74 drank a pint or more each day, and 441 made a practice of taking at least one glass daily.

At the Pleasant Ridge school Miss Brems examined 31 children, finding not one to be perfect. Most of the defects, however, were minor ones, such as poor teeth.

Miss Brems has started a health crusade in both the Redmond and Terrebonne schools.
