POWELL BUTTE VOTES AGAINST NEW SCHOOL

Taxpayers Show Opposition To District Plans—Children Are Hurt When Thrown From Horse.

POWELL BUTTE, Dec. 21.—Powell Butte turned out en masse on Friday to vote "no" on the Redmond high school bonding issue. Powell Butte is already in the union high school district against its "voice and vote," and has already been taxed to build a high school in Crook county. Hence the protest. Powell Butte was outvoted, as was foreordained, but the voters took that means to show their opposition to being taxed in the Redmond high school district when they did not vote to join that district in the first place, but were drawn in by the overwhelming majority of votes from other parts of the district.

Quite a serious accident occurred last Wednesday near the O'Callahan ranch, when two little girls, who were riding horseback after the mail, were thrown from their horse and both of them seriously injured. They were Ruth Calvin, daughter of Kate Bushnell Calvin, and Clara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Peterson. Ruth was the more seriously injured of the two and at first it was thought her neck was broken. The girls were carried into the O'Callahan home and their parents and two physicians called. It was not until the following day that the girls could be moved to their homes. Clara is rapidly recovering from the fall, but Ruth is still confined to her bed and may be for some time yet.

DRAWN WITH MASTER HAND

Walter Scott's Portraits of the Past a Notable Contribution to English Literature.

No wonder that Walter Scott, who, having shown the world in the Minstrelsy and the Lay that he was author and poet, and being himself a novel reader, should be utterly disinterested with the quality of the existing supply. The French Revolution, distinguished by its loving principle and action, had ended in substituting a feudal empire for an effete monarchy; and even when Napoleon was redividing Europe into kingdoms and principalities for his family and his followers, there had sprung up—or rather revived—a deep devotion to the chivalry which had done so much in the past, and whose traditions had ingrained grace into history and breathed reality into song.

To this feeling, this principle, Scott had ministered in his poems; and now, acknowledged head of the romantic school, he resolved to extend its limits, beyond the ballad to the narrative poem and use prose as the more suitable medium. He strove to delineate the past as it seemed in the eyes of men who were dubious of the present and afraid of the future—noble, stately, glittering and gay, with the pulse of life ever beating to heroic measures. His view of feudalism in "The Talisman," "Ivanhoe" and "The Fair Maid of Perth" was not the caricature of a few preceding authors had drawn, but a portrait—faithful, if idealized.—Robert Shelton Mackenzie.

SHRINE'S MEANING NOT PLAIN

Erected to the Memory of Japanese Maid, But Its Precise Idea Hardly Apparent.

One of the pretty shrines of Japan is based on the story of a beautiful girl, and to this day accidentals can not figure out if the shrine was to perpetuate a tragedy or an honor. The story is that Yamatodake, one of the greatest warriors in the history of the country, halted for a night at the village of Shimodaira. He was weary of battle and strife, and sent out word to the village that he wished to be entertained by the prettiest girl there. Kennachiya was selected, and it is told how she spent the evening singing and dancing for the warrior. He went on his masterful way the next morning leaving the little maiden to mourn his passing, and to give birth to his child in due time.

Now, the child died, as did its mother, and the village erected the shrine, and every few years it is rebuilt and made more beautiful. But what no accidental can discover is whether the shrine was built to remind the citizens of the militarism of the old days that trod with relentless heels on beggar and wealthy alike, and thus to pay tribute to a tragedy, or whether it was built to show that the great warrior honored the humble village by taking one of its membership into his arms.

DIDN'T GET CHIEF'S MEANING

Sailor Misunderstood, but After All, Kangaroo is as Good a Name as Any Other.

The Kangaroo received its name through the failure of white men to understand the language of the Australian bushmen. Captain Cook, discoverer of Australia, gazing shoreward one day, saw a group of natives about what seemed to be a most peculiar animal. He sent a group of men ashore to get it, and was still more amazed when told of its shape, its habit of carrying its young in a pouch and its remarkable leaping ability. He wanted the natives' name for the specimen that he intended to take back to England.

"What's the name of that beastie?" demanded an English tar of the natives' chief.

"Kan ga roo," returned the native.

"Kangaroo, eh?" repeated the sailor, and, satisfied, returned to his captain. The fact is, however, that the words spoken by the chief are merely a phrase meaning "I, or we, don't know."

DEAL JUSTLY WITH CHILDREN

Almost Every Country Now Has Courts to Handle Cases of Juvenile Delinquency.

The example set by the United States in establishing juvenile courts has been followed by all the principal countries of Europe. Spain, the last to fall in line, has adopted the modern viewpoint that delinquent children should not be treated as criminals, but rather as victims of adverse conditions and surroundings. In working out the details of the law, Spanish authorities have followed America's experience, according to information received by the children's bureau of the United States department of labor.

Under the Spanish law the children's judge is not necessarily a member of the bench. He is assisted by two advisory members appointed by the commission for the protection of children. Privacy is guarded very closely in the Spanish juvenile courts; no one except probation officers is allowed in the court unless by special permission, and the press is forbidden to publish any information about cases of juvenile delinquents.

Since Chicago established the first juvenile court in 1899, similar courts have been established in England, France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Russia, Austria and Hungary.

The Navipendulum.

One of the problems which naval architects have to confront is the rolling of a ship on the waves, and the "navipendulum" is an invention for dealing with it experimentally.

The apparatus consists of two parts: A plate to which a motion corresponding to that of a portion of the surface of a wave is imparted, and a pendulum of a peculiar shape which rolls upon the moving plate in the manner of a vessel supported by water.

The same pendulum can be made to represent different vessels of given size and shape by adding or removing artificial resistance to the oscillatory motion.

This instrument has been employed to study the rolling of the Italian battleships as well as those of other countries.

Do Well Without Meat.

Less than a third of the world's population gets what we should call three good meals a day, yet the working capabilities of the, from our point of view, underfed continents of Asia and Africa will compare very well with either Europe or America. The average annual meat consumption of the world is 39 pounds a head, yet both the Australian and the American eat nearer 180 pounds per head, and the Englishman is not far behind with about 120 pounds.

Criticizes Use of Oil.

Dr. White of the United States geological survey has declared it "no less than an economic crime to use oil under boilers as fuel," because the supply of oil was so rapidly declining in the United States and elsewhere and because it would soon be "a very serious problem as to getting the necessary amount of lubricants—which is really the most important part of the rock oil business."

Symbolism of Animals.

In the symbolism of animals, the ant typifies frugality and provision; the bear, ill temper and uncouthness; the bull, straightforwardness; the bull dog, pertinacity; the butterfly, sportiveness and living in pleasure; the dove, innocence and harmlessness; the fox, cunning, artifice; the goose, conceit and folly; the grasshopper, old age; the mule, obstinacy; the owl, wisdom; the peacock, pride; the swan, grace.

NICKELL FINED $200 FOR MAKING LIQUOR

Pleads Guilty in Justice Court, and Fact of First Offense Saves From Heavier Penalty.

Charles Nickell of this city, charged with manufacturing whiskey, pleaded guilty in justice court this afternoon, and was fined $200 by Judge J. A. Eates, being assessed, in addition, costs to the amount of $22.50. The case was the result of a raid conducted Tuesday night by Sheriff S. E. Roberts, which netted a still, a quantity of corn mash and five gallons of moonshine, taken from Nickell's house near the foundry.

Judge Eates explained that he had levied a light fine in consideration of the fact that it was a first offense.

Nickell declared that he had learned his lesson, and promised the judge that he would not appear again as a defendant.

They will make a mistake. They will not come in on a fine storm, and none need fear the weather. They will not come in on a fine storm, and none need fear the weather. They will not come in on a fine storm, and none need fear the weather.

Those who live by the coast do not want a better weather sign than the Best Weather Sign.

The Spider as a Silk Maker. Successful experiments have been recently made in the island of Madagascar with the use of spider's web in the place of the thread of the silk worm in the manufacture of silk. It is claimed that a fabric has been made from the spider's thread that is far superior in many respects to anything that has ever been devised.

EVERYTHING THAT IS BIG HAS HAD ITS SMALL BEGINNING

At some time the large fortune was small, but it grew. Your fortune may be now in its infancy; you may not have more than a dollar that doesn't need to be spent at once for some necessity. But put that dollar away, in a safe place; let it draw interest; by and by put another dollar with it, and then another and another. Like a child your fortune will grow—steadily, surely. In time, what you have put aside, added to what your savings have earned, will amount to enough to make a good investment. You have made the beginning of your fortune.
