

"GALLERY GODS" HAD POWER

Actors Respected Those Who Sat Among the Clouds in Old Drury Lane Theater, London.

Nearly every American has at some time in his career, generally the earlier part of it, been a "gallery god." That is to say, he has seated himself high in the topmost gallery of a theater, to follow with tenseness the adventures of the heroine and hero. How he obtained his title of "gallery god" is a matter that goes back a great many years, to the old English Drury Lane theater in London.

The theater was decorated in a somewhat giddy manner, with cupids and cherubs scattered about in careless confusion. To carry on the motif of airy summer days peopled with lightome creatures of fairy gardens, the decorators painted the ceiling a bright blue, and then placed puffy white clouds here and there to represent the sky, with the smiling faces of wee angels and fairies peering out. The gallery was built to get money, and not to give any particular comfort to those who paid their penny or so to sit there, so that the heads of the gallery sitters were in reality among the clouds. The actors had a great respect for this gallery, nevertheless, for its displeasure was manifested by booing in no uncertain tones, and the desire for the approval of the gallery provided the phrase "gallery gods."

PAINTED OVER COURT FINERY

Ruse by Which Nuns Had Queen Depicted as a Member of Their Religious Order.

Through a chance discovery in the garret of a ducal palace in Madrid, a three-hundred-year-old romance of a wonderful Velasquez has been revealed. Hidden for three centuries as a picture of a nun, this portrait of Queen Isabella of Spain, the first wife of King Philip IV, has recently been restored in London.

In the disguised picture practically nothing but the face and hands of the original was left uncovered, and the secret was first guessed at owing to the paint peeling away from the nun's hood, when there was revealed the fringe of a lace collar.

Princess Isabella of Bourbon was married to Philip in 1615, and in 1624 was staying in the convent of the nuns belonging to the order of the Descalzas. As a mark of the kindness she there received she presented the nuns with this Velasquez portrait of herself.

Later Isabella wished to enter the convent, but the pope would not consent. The inmates of the convent called in a painter, and secretly instructed him to paint out the queen's court dress and the lace handkerchief in her left hand, and to present her in the complete garb of a professed nun.

Excellence Need Fear No Rival.

Multitudes of employees constantly live in terror of some one who, they fear, is after their place. They are suspicious of office politics, suspicious that somebody working close behind them is trying to crowd them out. What is the result? This fear and suspicion interferes with their advancement to the place above them. Instead of looking back and thinking of the men after their place they should, instead, look about to the man above them, and be prepared for an advance when there is a vacancy. Perfect yourself in your line of work and you need never have any fear of others' rivalry. There is always room at the top for the man or woman who has stamped the trademark of individuality, superiority and distinctiveness upon his or her work. Such a one need have no fear of the usurpation of his rights by others. His position is assured.—Orison Sweet Marden in the New Success.

In Algerian Bazaars.

Cobbled steps mark the ways of the Moors in the Kasbah, the native quarter of Algeria, and once the traveler leaves the streets where street cars clang and Europeans walk, he must climb. Peppercorns and onions hang in rosaries beside bazars. Mosques are hidden here and there in nests of houses, and cafes are open to the street with the guttural gossip of the Arab drinkers and the click of dominoes drifting outward.

Sandals of leather, laced and filled with golden threads, are made by black-eyed Arab girls with long, soft eyelashes. Some of these girls are only twelve years old, but married; and they sit on carpets, twittering through their veils at passersby, meanwhile embroidering deftly the things they have to sell for gold.—Century Magazine.

First Girl Ever Photographed.

While France claims to have invented photography through the genius of Daguerre, the painter, America is proud of the fact that it was one of her sons who photographed the first face.

After years of patient labor Daguerre succeeded in taking sunlight pictures of scenery on a sensitive plate.

This was in 1839, and a year later Prof. John W. Draper of New York took a photograph of his sister Dorothy, the first person to have her likeness reproduced on a prepared background with the help of the sun's rays.

It took an hour to take the photograph, and the picture may still be seen.

FAMOUS DOORS OF HISTORY

Marvel of Workmanship Seen on Many of Those of Churches of the Old World.

Among the famous doors of history are the carved wooden doors of the church of Santa Sabina, Rome, depicting in relief, scenes from the Old and New Testaments. These are one of the most remarkable examples of early Christian sculpture extant.

In the earliest times, as in Babylon, doors swung on sockets instead of hinges.

In Roman days wooden doors were decorated with bronze and inlaid, and throughout the Middle Ages richly carved doors of wood adorned the churches.

In the Gothic period, wooden doors were decorated with wrought-iron hinges which were often elaborated into intricate ornamentation covering a large part of the door.

The doors of the cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris of the Thirteenth century are the finest examples of this class.

During the Renaissance in Germany and France, elaborately carved doors were among the most beautiful products of wood sculpture.

Some of the old English doors were formed of narrow planks placed side by side and in dwelling houses generally, in the Middle Ages the doors were small and fairly simple, meant for strictly practical purposes and often provided with some means of defense.

The doors of the Norman period were round headed, while with the Thirteenth century, came the doorway with the pointed arch and later the flattened arch. In the case of interior doors, splendid old polished mahogany doors were important features in some old English homes and there were old oak doors of wonderful beauty, especially when found in oak-paneled rooms.—From the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

SAMPLE OF DUTCH THRIFT?

Hollanders Said to Be Greatest People in the World to Abbreviate Written Words.

The Dutch are the greatest people in the world for abbreviations, says the Detroit News. It seems to be a national trait of the Hollander, and not only are the missives between Neerou and her daughter and Myneher and his son liberally sprinkled with the shortening of Dutch as she is spoke, but the advertisements in the Dutch newspapers are also thrifflily abbreviated so as to permit of the maximum amount of expression with the minimum of type.

Private correspondence as well as business correspondence in Holland is a network of abbreviations, so much so that a Hollander who has not been in his native land for a good many years, but still retains a knowledge of his mother tongue, is likely to fall by the wayside in reading a letter from an old friend from whom he has not heard in a long time.

The Dutch lover is quite accustomed to be told in a letter by his sweetheart how much she loves him in abbreviations that suggest more a Russian stock ticker news item than the love-laden words of a romantic maid.

Which Way Do You Sleep?

Do you sleep with your body lying from east to west, or are your toes pointing southeast while your head lies northwest? If you are lying in this position, you are under the pressure of the magnetic meridian. In other words, you are sleeping under a tension and there is a bad effect on the blood pressure and the pulse rate. "Change your bed with the head north or south and you'll sleep better."

These are some of the theories propounded by Dr. W. W. Bailey of Davenport, Ia., secretary of the Central Society of Physical Therapeutics, which held its convention in Chicago a short time ago. The convention was made up of licensed doctors of the Middle West who rely more on physical methods of curing diseases than on medical methods.

Pigs Squal for Squalia.

Animals will often tell us all we want to know about the weather.

Watch your dog. If he refuses food in the morning, and is found subsequently chewing grass on the lawn, a downpour may be anticipated. Sheep will scatter far and wide over a hillside during fair and settled weather, but prefer to huddle together under shelter when a storm approaches. Some people say that the higher the sheep on the hillside, the finer the weather.

If cattle go reluctantly to pasture in the morning, or lie down early in the day, bad weather is imminent, as it is when the morning's milk supply is scanty, or the beasts themselves low and look at the sky.

Pigs, of course, are infallible barometers; they squeal and grunt incessantly when storms approach.

Egypt Grew Cotton in 200 B. C.

Cotton has been grown in Egypt since 200 B. C., but it was not until a hundred years ago that Jumel, a French engineer, suggested the introduction of the commercial varieties. In 1822 the famous American sea island cotton was the first sown. Five years later a Brazilian variety was introduced. The two strains were mingled and from them came the famous "Ashmouni" plant and the still finer "Mutam", which is one of the most productive cottons in the world.

ORANG FEARED THE CAMERA

Photographer's Presence of Mind Probably Saved Him From Death or Fearful Injury.

As a rule orangutangs, the fiercest of the apes, are caught young and tamed before they are shipped to Europe and the United States. One of these animals that arrived in London came with the best of characters. He was considered a very tame, steady-going creature, and an expert was engaged to photograph him.

The man entered the orang's cage as he had entered many others. He had not exposed many plates before he saw that the animal was intent on mischief. He was a very powerful beast, and the man would have stood no chance at all if the orang had attacked him.

The man's only chance was to use the camera as a weapon. Making a sign to the keeper to keep silent, the photographer pointed his hand camera at the orang and with slow and steady step approached him. The keeper was outside the door ready to open it; but neither of them uttered a sound. The photographer was relieved to see the orang gradually retreat and at the same time to be able to rise from the crouched and menacing position he had taken. Once the creature was on the move the man knew he had a chance. He succeeded in working the orang around to the corner furthest from the door, which the keeper had silently and slowly opened. Still pointing his camera at the beast the man very slowly backed out of the cage, the door was slammed to and he was safe.

COMPLETE WORK OF TODAY

Unfinished Tasks Simply Mean That One Has Placed a Mortgage on His Tomorrow.

Leave today's work undone and you mortgage tomorrow. And tomorrow may bring the big opportunity you have been looking for so long.

Try to keep tomorrow for yourself. Try to keep it free. Don't load it up with work that should be done when you leave your desk tonight.

You never know what it may bring. You never know what chances there may be tomorrow—if you have it clear—to show somebody who can pay a big salary what you can do.

Your days are important, every one of them. Each has its own work that must be done.

Start every day with a clean sheet. Say: "This is the work that is to be done today—that must be done today."

Then do that work, and do not leave any of it hanging over into the next day.

Once fall behind in your work and your tomorrow will soon be mortgaged for a long way ahead. That means wage slavery. It means lack of a chance to seize opportunity—or to make opportunity.

Look forward to your tomorrows as days of achievement—days in which to plan and do new tasks—not to finish old ones.

You will be glad to see them then. You will be glad of the fresh eight hours that can be employed in something that is valuable and interesting.—John Blake, in Chicago Daily News.

Burro Saw the Point.

One who knows says that some people claim that animals can't reason, but if they were around burros awhile like he was when he ran a burro train up in Colorado they'd change their minds.

One of the burros fell down in crossing a stream and he was loaded with sugar, and it took about fifteen minutes to get him on his feet and his load didn't weigh more than half as much when they started out again.

For months afterward that critter always contrived to fall down when crossing a stream of water.

It didn't lighten his load any, for the driver never trusted him with sugar any more, but he still had hopes until they happened to load him with sponges one day.

That cured him.—Los Angeles Times.

Arab Put Comfort First.

The beautiful villas that remain in Algeria are Moorish villas, for the Arab does not care for things artistic and comfortable that other races of the earth demand. If he were given a house he would first remove the doors and burn them; he would next drive a hook into the facade to hitch his mule to, and then he would abandon the chimney-place inside the house and build his fire in the middle of the room, decking all the walls with smoke. His personal ideas of comfort come first.

The Algerians are not like the French. They are different in manners, customs, habits and morals, says Charles Divin in the Century. Even the Arab remarks it, and calls all people who come from France "Parisian Romans."

Novel Idea of Aviation.

A certain Francis Lana, some two centuries ago, worked out to his own satisfaction that a vessel, with its air supply exhausted would sustain itself suspended in the atmosphere. He produced such a vessel but there is no evidence to show that his scheme was ever attempted as an air-machine.

Now women and children can fly through the air, and that so simply that the children make pictures of their flight, and think no more of it than they do of going by train, or by boat.

Taking Care of Indoor Plants.

To make ferns grow rapidly indoors and look fresh and green, chop a few oysters fine and mix with the soil and then water well. This may be done every fortnight. Wash the leaves of your rubber plant with a cloth wet with olive oil. This nourishes the plant and keeps the leaves dark green and velvety. Add a few drops of ammonia to a quart of lukewarm water when you water house plants. The chemical acts as a tonic and fertilizer and makes the foliage fresher. And be careful, when real winter weather comes, not to water your plants with water too cold. Water running from a faucet in January is far too cold for tender plants. Add enough hot water to make the drink you give your plants lukewarm—as rainwater always is in summer time.

Story of the Pansy.

The centenary of the pansy was celebrated a few years ago by the English florists and the history of the flower as given at the time was as follows:

"Just one hundred years ago Lady Mary Bennett, a daughter of the earl of Tankerville, was so struck with the simple beauty of a tiny wildling violet tri-color that she collected some of the best plants and gave them careful cultivation. The first batch of seedlings raised by her gave such promise that systematic selection was at once instituted, and thereafter the improvement of the genus was taken up by the leading growers. Thus to an enthusiastic amateur we are indebted for one of the most popular and beautiful of our garden flowers."

Outrage.

In Denver they tell a story of a newly rich family that became discontented with the services of their old physician, despite the fact that for many years he had kept all of them in excellent health.

"So you have decided to get a new doctor," said a caller to the lady of the house, who had confided in her friend.

"I certainly have," said the other. "The idea of his prescribing flaxseed tea and mustard plasters for people as rich as we are!"

Many Cigarettes Consumed.

In 1908 not enough cigarettes were consumed in the United States to be subjected to the internal revenue tax. Today the population of the country, male and female, is burning up 127,000,000 cigarettes every day, or 46,500,000,000 in a year. During the last ten years the consumption of cigarettes has exceeded that of cigars.

Corresponding.

"It seems to me, Maria, that we've had nothing but ham, ham, ham for breakfast all this week," remarked Mr. Brent.

"You forgot another thing we've had, Robert," replied his better half quietly. "We've had growl, growl, growl for breakfast every day, too!"—London Answers.

In the matter of a resolution for the Fryrear road:

This matter comes on at this time to be heard and, it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that a public necessity exists therefor, the court declares its intention to establish a county road by resolution, as follows:

Commencing at the south quarter corner of Section 33, Township 15 South, Range 11, East, thence northerly to the northeast corner of Section 8, Township 15, Range 11, said road to be 60 feet wide.

Further ordered, that due notice thereof be given and that said resolution will be considered by this court on the 5th day of January.

In the matter of the Pilot Butte canal bridge:

This matter comes on to be heard on the petition of certain taxpayers of this county, petition praying for the repair of the bridge over the Pilot Butte canal on the old Princeton road, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that the settlers will repair the road leading to said bridge to make the same passable as a consideration for the repairs to said bridge, it is therefore ordered, that when the settlers along the line of said road have put same in repair, that the county will reconstruct and will build the said bridge.

In the matter of the Tracy Parker road:

This matter comes on to be heard upon the report of the viewers heretofore filed herein, from which it appears that said proposed road is not a practicable highway and should be disallowed, it is ordered that said petition of said Tracy Parker and others be, and the same is hereby, denied.

In the matter of the appointment of special attorneys for the prosecution of A. J. Weston before the circuit court, charged with murder:

Now at this time this matter coming on to be heard, and it appearing that District Attorney Moore is disqualified to represent the state of Oregon herein, and it appearing that upon application of Sheriff Roberts for special prosecutors, the county judge did authorize the employment of R. S. Hamilton and H. H. De Armond to prosecute said case, and it appearing in all things regular, the action of said county judge is hereby confirmed, and the said R. S. Hamilton and H. H. De Armond are hereby authorized to act as special prosecutors in said case and to be compensated for their services by the county of Deschutes, state of Oregon.

The court was then adjourned to meet November 4th, 1920, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.
