

WOMEN'S PROTECTIVE DIVISION WORK IS OUTLINED IN REPORT FURNISHED BY MRS. STOCKWELL

Briefly outlining the work done in this city by the women's protective division, now inoperative, due to the failure of the new city administration to re-create this department, the report compiled by Mrs. E. F. Stockwell, former head of the division, read by Mrs. Carrie D. Manny at the meeting of the Women's Civic League Tuesday afternoon, created much interest. For the benefit of many who were unable to attend yesterday's session, the report is reprinted with such changes as are necessary to make it available for general reading:

"The women's protective division of Bend was established April 1, 1920, with Mrs. Emerson Stockwell in charge. This office was created as a result of an awakened interest in juvenile delinquency in our locality, statistics having been gathered which proved the need of some department to handle these cases. This bureau has endeavored to work out all problems of juvenile delinquency committed to it by constructive, rather than punitive, measures, striving always to cooperate with all other social, city and county agencies whenever interested, and to establish an interest where same is lacking.

"In the work from April 1, 1920, to January 1, 1921, a great number and variety of cases have been handled, always with the constructive idea uppermost. A brief summary of these cases and the methods pursued, follows:

"During these nine months, 18 girls were placed in institutions where they were made to feel that their own folks still cared for them; occasional gifts were sent them, also local papers and encouraging letters. The idea that while in the institutions the girls must be given vocational training, which would enable them to make an honest livelihood, was emphasized, and parents of these girls were persuaded to give money for their education in business and trades schools. The state board for vocational training was called upon to help, with the result that 18 of those girls are now going to school.

"It is felt that much can be done by the home visit, by which the visitor learns the environment, the social history, the personality of the parents, and is therefore better able to understand the child. With this aim in view, about 90 homes were visited. The work has now developed so that often the parents and children come voluntarily to talk their problems over with the head of the department.

"Due, to a large extent, to the floating population of Bend, several women of ill repute were rushing into the city to ply their illicit trade. The first month after this office had been established, eight were compelled to leave town. The hotels were asked to cooperate in this clean-up, a request which has been complied with. The railroad officials also aided materially by putting a stop to the practice, found prevalent among some of its employees, of bringing in girls on the trains. The number of these women has now been materially decreased.

"To find suitable employment is another phase of the work, with the result that about 100 women and girls have been placed in various positions. This placing out is carefully selected and supervised; places of employment visited and reports obtained.

"The women's protective division was on duty at the carnival given by the American Legion, cooperating with it to see that children were off the grounds at 9 o'clock and to prevent any crime from being committed.

"During these nine months, 12 girls who were residing at various points in Deschutes county have been sent back to their respective counties and states. Three of these were maternity cases, two had contracted social diseases, three were not capable of supporting themselves and four had shirked motherhood by means of operations. The division has, by returning these delinquents saved city and county a substantial sum. Furthermore, the county court has asked for the assistance of this bureau in several commitment cases.

"Recently a city ordinance has been passed, through the efforts of the women's protective division, which demands that persons employed in handling foodstuffs must have health certificates, as 28 cases of social diseases were found, the majority of which were in rooming and lodging houses. A monthly inspection of said places aids materially in keeping a clean town and county.

The following states briefly the disposition of cases handled by the woman's protective division:

CAUSE OF FIRE IN AUTO SHOP UNKNOWN

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the vulcanizing and battery-charging shop owned by Louis Doonar and James Dean at the north end of Bond street, early Tuesday afternoon. The equipment lost was valued at approximately $1500, and was without the protection of insurance.

Flames came into being suddenly and without apparent cause as Dean was outside the building, changing a battery for a customer. The fire department answered the alarm and had the fire under control in a short time. From the arrival of the engine until water was being pumped on the burning structure was only 40 seconds, according to several spectators, who held watches on the firemen.

The department use for the first time in this city a four-way valve, which permits pressure to be used through the first line of hose laid from the hydrant to the fire without shutting off the water to make a new connection.

LABEL GUARANTEE DECLARES SPEAKER

Under the auspices of the Women's Card and Label league of Bend, Mrs. L. Gee of Portland spoke before an audience composed chiefly of members of local unions at the Hippodrome last night. Mrs. Gee declared that only by purchasing commodities bearing the union label could buyers be sure that they were using articles made under proper conditions. G. H. Baker introduced the speaker.

Entertainment features of the evening consisted of selections by an orchestra composed of Mrs. A. E. Hill, Ross Zumwalt, G. C. Maltby and F. O. Minor; a piano solo by Marie Gosney, a recitation by Edith McMurtrie, a song and recitation by Virginia Carpenter, a violin solo by Bernice Burkhart, a recitation by Carol Brobert, a tambourine dance by Mildred Simons, and songs and stories by J. J. Powers.

CONTRACT FOR 1921 AGREED TO BY MERCHANTS

CLOSED SHOP CLAUSE STRICKEN

1920 FORM IS FAVORED

Contracts Already Signed Will Be Recalled To Secure Uniformity, As Condition of Agreement, Organizer Promises.

The same contract as that accepted last year will be signed by the members of the Merchants' association of Bend with the retail clerks for 1921. It was decided last night at a special meeting of the employers' organization. Oral agreement was made to this effect with F. C. Preston, general organizer in the Northwest for the Retail Clerks' International union, and N. S. Olson of the Bend local. The contract was to be presented tonight for signing.

The agreement read by Mr. Preston at the opening of last night's meeting was, he said, the same as the 1920 contract, with the exception of minor changes governing hours. There was another change, however, for, where the old contract stated that employes "may have the privilege of membership" in the union, the proposed agreement provided that employes "shall at all times hold membership" in the labor organization.

Says Closed Shop Proviso Error. The change was slight, the only difference being between the principle of the open shop, agreed to in 1920, and the closed shop, which the new contract would have stipulated. The matter was called to Mr. Preston's attention. He explained that an error had been made at the printing office, and agreed to the insertion of the original clause.

It developed also that a number of local dealers had already been approached individually by Mr. Preston and had signed the originally proposed contract form with the understanding that it was the same as that accepted last year. It was on Mr. Preston's promise that these should be cancelled, and contracts identical with the one approved by the Merchants' association substituted, that the final agreement was made.

Discussion of Bend business houses, which display the union card, but which keep open nights and Sundays, resulted in Mr. Preston's declaration that either the card would be withdrawn, or hours to conform with union ideals must be adopted.

Pyramid Points Want Ad Value To Advertiser

The following was received by The Bulletin, offered as a suggestion for a "want ad" advertisement. The idea is exceptionally clever and shows originality. The Bulletin appreciates little novelties of this nature and also considers any form of news, phoned or sent by letter. Following is the correspondence as received at this office:

Bend, Ore., Jan. 8, 1921.
To the Editor: Just a suggestion for the benefit of The Bend Bulletin; a little advertisement—does not take much space in print:
IF YOU WANT TO GET THE WANT YOU WANT TO GET IT IN THE GREAT WANT GETTER, THE BULLETIN (Signed) A READER OF ADVERTISING.

Burial was at Pilot Butte cemetery. Mrs. Sanders was 32 years of age. Born in Roper, Kan., February 23, 1889, she came west with her parents, and on November 11, 1919, was married at Rockford, Wash., coming to Bend with her husband shortly afterward. Her father, mother and husband survive her.

the men placed in office by the vote of the people, and she also scored Dr. Lessing for criticism he had voiced in his talk. Resentment of this criticism was likewise expressed by Councilman Gilbert, the last speaker, who took the floor to explain that the fault he found with the work of the protective division was that no one was ever punished for wrongdoing it uncovered.

Preceding Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Purdy, in a most forceful and convincing talk, pointed out that the intention of the meeting was not to criticize, but to try to point out, as between friends, where it was believed the council was in the wrong, concluding with a plea for the carrying on of Mrs. Stockwell's work until other plans were made, just as he understood, the fire chief was being continued in office pending a study of his work by the council.

of control be designated for that purpose. As it is now, there is no supervision of estimates as prepared by the heads of the various state departments.

Declaring the plant of the state industrial training school for boys is "hopelessly obsolete," Governor O'cott urged the rehabilitation of that institution.

The installation of a box factory at the state penitentiary was urged, not only as a means for employing the time of convicts, but as a means whereby convicts might contribute toward the support of their dependents.

Lands Highway Board.

The work of the "able and self-sacrificing highway commission" was lauded by the executive for advancing the road program "toward the desired goal" during the last two years. He advised the solons to consult with the commissioners before enacting any road laws.

The governor referred to the recent suspension of a large Portland bonding house and urged legislation for the protection of investors in bonds.

Consolidation of state departments and commissions as a measure of economy and increasing efficiency was recommended, particularly the merging of the office of state sealer of weights and measures with the office of state dairy and food commissioner, and the centralization of the board of inspectors of child labor and the industrial welfare commission, which should be centered in the office of the state labor commissioner, the governor asserted.

We Are Not Asking For Sympathy

Far be it from us. But we do want to call your attention to the fact that during the time we have been in business in this community---

- ☑ We have paid our landlord rent.
- ☑ We have paid our help wages.
- ☑ We have bought everything that went into our bread and pastries, that was possible, from the Bend business houses.
- ☑ We have helped support the churches and local charities.
- ☑ We have paid taxes for the benefit of the community of which we are a part and you are a part.
- ☑ We make an earnest endeavor to make our product desirable and wholesome.

In view of these facts we cannot understand why any family in Bend should demand their grocer to supply them a foreign made bread.
